SENATE GROUP RESTORES D.C. MEASURE CUTS

Appropriations Placed Within $614,768 of Budget.

$9,500,000 FEDERAL SHARE RESURRECTED

Revamped Bill to Be Called Up for Consideration in Chamber Today.

By ROBERT C. ALBRIGHT.

The Senate Appropriations Committee yesterday restored District 1934 appropriations to within $614,768 of budget strength, adjusted obvious inequalities in the House bill and prepared to call up the revamped measure for Senate consideration today.

Carrying approximately $39,128,502 in annual and permanent appropriations, against $39,743,270 recommended by the Budget Bureau and $37,399,065 allowed by the House, the measure was reported to the Senate late yesterday by Chairman Hiram Bingham, of the Senate District appropriations subcommittee.

Restoration of the Federal lump sum contribution from $6,500,000 proposed by the House to the $9,500,000 allowed prior to last year provided the outstanding increase in the bill.

Many Items Marked Up.

The only significant cut was an item of $1,000,000 due the United States as the District's third payment on development of the George Washington Memorial Parkway along the Potomac.

School, health, public welfare, police and fire allotments, all were marked up to budget size.

Principal changes in the bill propose:

Removal of the House ban against metered operation of taxicabs in the District, with an authorization for taxicab meters registering not more than 25 cents for the first two miles and 10 cents for every mile thereafter.

Elimination of the House section denying pay increases to employes of the District government under Civil Service reallocations.

Incinerators Favored.

Restoration of the $200,000 required to operate the District's two incinerators in Georgetown and Southeast Washington.

Restoration of the $46,000 working capital fund to continue operation of prison industries at Lorton, Va.

Appropriation of $250,000 for a new P street bridge over Rock Creek, and $250,000 more for highway repair, both from the District's gasoline fund.

Appropriation of $28,800 for mosquito control work, over the opposition of Senator Carter Glass (Democrat), Virginia.

Restoration of funds for the District Militia from $31,817, passed by the House, to $54,400 recommended by the Budget Bureau.

Appropriation of $7,700 for a new

Man in House Gallery Is Picked Up by Police

(Associated Press.)

A man who gave his name as Abraham Wingodow, of Miami, Fla., was picked up by police in the House gallery yesterday and taken to headquarters for fingerprinting. No charge was placed against him. Police explained his fingerprints would be taken for checking with records.

Wingodow attracted the attention of a Justice Department agent as he sat in the public gallery. Bulging pockets were found to contain, among other things, old rags and a bottle of turpentine.

Rainey In

By J. BERNARD McDONNELL.

Election of Representative Henry T. Rainey, of Illinois, white-haired veteran who has made Democratic party and national history, as Speaker of the House seemed assured yesterday, when the vaunted strength of the Tammany delegation, of New York, was ordered out of the fight. Tammany wants its delegation in the House to be in a position to say to the next Speaker, "We elected you and now we want you to do this."

The Tammany decision was announced here by Representative Thomas H. Cullen, of New York, leader of the Tammany delegation in the House. The announcement came in the form of a statement by Mr. Cullen that the Tammany delegation would support him for Speaker on the first ballot in the party caucus Thursday night.

Mr. Cullen has not any chance to be elected Speaker. He does not deceive himself about the matter, either. He is not a serious candidate. Neither is Representative John J. O'Connor, of New York, who has been an announced candidate for some time. If there is an unexpected prolonged deadlock, Mr. O'Connor may be elected Speaker, but there is

MELLON IS NAMED IN $220,000,000 SUIT

Scheme of Foreign Steamer Lines to Evade Income Taxes Is Charged.

The largest civil suit ever filed in District Supreme Court was instituted yesterday, with Andrew Mellon, Ambassador to Great Britain and former Secretary of the Treasury; David H. Blair, one time commissioner of Internal Revenue, and Alexander W. Gregg, former acting general counsel for the same bureau, named as defendants.

The suit asks that Mr. Mellon and his two former aids be made to pay $220,000,000 to the United States Government because of alleged connivance with officers of foreign steamship companies in evading just income taxes.

The papers, filed in behalf of David O. Olson, of the Parkside Hotel, former special employe of the Senate Banking and Currency Committee, charged that Mr. Mellon not only failed to collect $100,000,000 in delinquent taxes from foreign steamship interests but placed the Government in such a position of having to refund some $10,000,000 in taxes to the companies. The identities of the lines that obtained these refunds was not disclosed.

Mr. Olson, through Attorneys

Daladier Is Given Vote of Confidence

French Senate Acts Upon Proposal to Reduce Military Expenditure.

Paris, Feb. 27 (A.P.).—By a vote of 180 to 118 the French Senate today passed a motion of confidence in the government of Premier Edouard Daladier. The question was posed on a proposal to reduce military expenditures by $20,000,000.

The vote followed on assurances by the premier that armed efficiency of the nation would not be decreased by the cut in the appropriation. The Senate debated the proposal on second reading Sunday without reaching an agreement.

Early Sunday the Chamber of Deputies expressed confidence in the government by favoring the military appropriations reduction.

Six Tobacco Employes Are Held to Grand Jury

Charged with embezzlement, six employes of the Washington Tobacco Co. yesterday were held for the grand jury when they were arraigned in Police Court. Bond for each was set at $1,500.

Those held were Adolph Dietz, 26 years old; Clarence H. Gillespie, 24; George M. Downs, 26; Malcolm C. Miller, 26; George E. DeChard, 31, and Floyd J. Stoner, 28. The charges involve several thousand dollars.

Most Violent Eruption Is Begun by Asoyama

Kumamoto, Japan (Tuesday), Feb. 28 (U.P.).—The Asoyama Volcano today was in the most violent eruption of the century. A rain of ashes fell over a 20-mile radius. The flames could be seen for 25 miles. Crops at the base of the mountain were destroyed by lava and ashes.

HOOVER URGES SOUND MONEY IN PARTY NOTE

G. O. P. Looking to Him as Leader, Is Reply of Committee.

SIGNIFICANCE SEEN TO CAMPAIGN IN '36

President Requests Patriotic Cooperation in Place of Strict Partisanship.

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN.

Calling upon Republican leaders to hold the party fast to the fundamental principles which are the "safeguards of our Government," President Hoover declared in a letter yesterday to the G. O. P. executive committee that "upon these foundations lies the freedom, the welfare and the future of every citizen in the country." He said the stresses of the times call more for patriotic cooperation in national affairs than for intense partisanship, but warned his party against prevailing pressures to abandon sound money and more rigid maintenance of the national credit, and firm adherence to the Constitution.

Soon after this letter had been received from the White House, the Republican executive committee, meeting in the Hotel Mayflower, sent to the President a resolution declaring that "the supporters of our great party will continue to look to you for leadership in these difficult and dangerous days."

The committee's resolution gave rise to animated discussion in political circles concerning its possible significance in relation to the 136 presidential nomination. Neither at the White House nor in the committee headquarters, however, was there any comment on this point.

Plans for Aggressive Campaign.

Chairman Everett Sanders, who presided at the committee sessions, said the meeting had been called primarily to lay plans for an aggressive congressional campaign in 1934 and to work out a financial program to handle the current deficit of approximately $200,000 in the Republican national treasury.

Members of the executive committee indicated there had been no proposal for action on the suggestion of Senator David A. Reed, of Pennsylvania, that senators who bolted the party in the 1932 presidential campaign be excluded from the party caucus. This question, officers of the committee said, did not come within the scope of the meeting.

President Hoover repeated his insistance that effective party organization is an essential instrumentality of good government and urged the G. O. P. leaders to hold their machinery in readiness to resist any proposals which might threaten the national welfare.

Committee Visits President.

"Political parties have great obligations of service whether the party is in power or not," he wrote. "In these times cooperation and not partisanship is the need of the country, but it is no less an obligation of the party to subject all proposals to the scrutiny of conservative debate and to oppose those which will hurt the progress and the welfare of the country."

After their sessions at the Mayflower, the executive committee visited the President at the White House. This meeting was entirely informal and no authoritative information was

Justice and Rover Cleared of Charge

Lawyer Had Accused Letts and Prosecutor of Inaccurate Document.

Associate Justice F. Dickinson Letts, of the District Supreme Court, and United States Attorney Leo A. Rover, yesterday were given a clean bill of health by the House Judiciary Committee on impeachment charges filed by Jesse C. Duke, local attorney.

Duke had charged in a petition to the Speaker that Letts and Rover sent to the Court of Appeals "a false, inaccurate, incomplete, deleted and diluted bill of exceptions" in a liquor conspiracy case involving Adolph Rudy Moder and others.

Following a subcommittee investigation, Chairman Hatton W. Sumners, of the House Judiciary Committee, said it was decided the allegations did not warrant further official inquiry.

Borah Is Foe of Arms Embargo on Far East

Britain Will Ban Orders After Present Ones Are Filled.

London, Feb. 27 (A.P.).—A virtual embargo of shipment of arms and ammunition to Japan and China was announced today by Sir John Simon, the foreign secretary, in the House of Commons.

There is one condition—orders and contracts already placed by the two countries will be completed and shipped with the sanction of the government.

Coincident with his announcement, the foreign secretary stated that in no circumstances would Great Britain allow herself to be drawn into the conflict. It was felt that in this statement lies the key to the whole policy of virtual embargo.

It was said unofficially that should an actual state of war between China and Japan come about, the Japanese

Garner Blocks Proposal in House; Is Awaiting Roosevelt Stand.

The powerful opposition of Borah, of Idaho, was raised yesterday against American participation in an embargo on arms shipments to the Orient.

"To put an arms embargo on China and Japan," the chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee said, "is to take sides with Japan under the conditions and circumstances that now exist."

Others who have taken the same view as Borah have contended that Japan is already well equipped, while China must seek war supplies abroad.

Borah spoke out upon developments abroad after the Democratic House leaders had blocked for this session action on President Hoover's proposal to empower the Chief Executive to place embargoes on ship-

REICHSTAG BURNED; MEMBERS ACCUSED

Incendiaries Fire Parliament Building in 14 Places; Communists Seized.

Berlin (Tuesday), Feb. 28 (A.P.).—Wilhelm Goering, cabinet minister without portfolio, early today ordered the arrest of 100 Communist members of the Reichstag a few hours after fire of incendiary origin had swept the first floor of the Reichstag building.

Police began making the arrests shortly after 4 p. m. The Communists will be held pending a complete investigation of the blaze which last night did damage estimated at several million marks.

Herr Goering was placed in complete charge of the investigation. He also ordered the suspension of the entire Leftist press.

How many had been detained had not been ascertained early this morning but it was generally known that in the last several days Communists leaders have gone into hiding, scores having abandoned their usual residences pending the clearing of the political situation.

Every fire company in Berlin last night rushed to the scene of the fire. After two hours' hard work they had the flames under control at 10:45 p. m., but ruins still smouldered in the east wing. The gilded cupola above the Reichstag meeting hall was reduced almost to ruins.

Police arrested a man giving the surname of Van Der Luebbe, 24 years old, who said he was a Dutch Communist. He refused to talk further, but authorities learned, from other sources reports that ammunition had

SPEEDY ACTION SEEN IN ROOSEVELT PLANS

Hyde Park, N. Y., Feb. 27 (A.P.).—President-elect Roosevelt is surrounding himself with his new Cabinet in preparation to plunge immediately into the titanic task of giving the Nation a "new deal" after Saturday's inauguration.

The official Cabinet list neared completion today with Mr. Roosevelt's formal announcement that Senator Swanson, of Virginia, will be his Secretary of the Navy, and Harold Ickes, Chicago lawyer and Republican Independent, his Secretary of the Interior.

The naming of Senator Walsh, of Montana, as Attorney General; Daniel C. Roper, of South Carolina, as Secretary of Commerce, and Miss Frances Perkins, of New York, as Secretary of Labor, is expected in the next two days, before he starts for New York and Washington.

It is very probable that the President-elect will take with him to Washington, on his special train from New York on Thursday, several of the Cabinet, including William H. Woodin, Secretary of the Treasury; James A. Farley, Postmaster General; George

9 Known Dead in Erin After British Blizzard

Dublin, Irish Free State, Feb. 27 (A.P.).—The heavy snowstorm in the British Isles last week caused nine deaths in Ireland, and tonight it was feared that others would be found dead when the snow melts in the midland areas.

Huge drifts hitherto have balked efforts to penetrate the regions. Airplanes may be used to take food to people isolated by the storm. Losses of cattle and sheep throughout the country have been great. Disastrous floods are expected when the thaw begins.

BANK TO CLOSE TODAY TO HALT WITHDRAWALS

NIGHT CONFERENCE RESULTS IN DECISION

Col. Cooper's Letter Explains Reason for Turning Over Control.

In a move for the announced purpose of safeguarding the interest of the depositors, the Commercial National Bank will be placed in the hands of F. G. Awalt, Deputy Comptroller of the Currency, at 8:30 a. m. today.

Announcement of this action was formally made early this morning by Col. Wade H. Cooper, president of the bank, in a statement setting forth the reasons for the decision.

Withdrawals Blamed.

Although Col. Cooper's statement indicated the necessity for this action was foreseen several days ago, his decision was not made until this morning after he and other bankers of the city had conferred with Mr. Awalt at length in the Treasury Department.

Mr. Awalt refused to discuss the situation, answering to all questions that he could not say anything, and finally refusing to answer his telephone.

Heavy withdrawals from the Commercial Bank within the last few days was given as the specific reason for the decision.

Cooper's Letter to Awalt.

"Hon. F. G. Awalt, Deputy Comptroller of Currency—

"Dear Sir: In pursuance of a resolution adopted February 26, 1933, the board of directors of this bank authorizes me to take such action as in my judgment I deem best for the interests of the depositors I hereby, in behalf of the directors of said bank, request you to take charge of the Commercial National Bank of Washington, D. C., at 8:30 a. m. February 28.

"The above action is requested of you because of recent heavy withdrawals of deposits which we feel may continue.

"Respectfully,

(Signed) WADE H. COOPER,
President, Commercial National Bank."

Mother and Four Burned to Death

Parent, 21, Is Believed to Have Used Kerosene in Lighting Fire.

Flint, Mich., Feb. 27 (A.P.).—Mrs. Mildred Hamilton, 21, and four of her five children were burned to death in their home this afternoon when, authorities believe, Mrs. Hamilton used kerosene in lighting a fire.

Ernest Hamilton, aged 6, was outside the house when the explosion occurred. He ran to the nearby home of his grandfather, Hugh Hamilton, to summon aid. The interior of the house was destroyed by flames that followed the explosion. The father, William Hamilton, away at work, collapsed when brought to the scene.

The body of Mrs. Hamilton and two of the four children were found in the kitchen. A three months' old baby lay dead in a crib by the stove.

The force of the explosion had tossed the body of the fourth child more than 20 feet.

Liens Put Against Inaugural Stands

Mechanics Charge Flaws in Amount of Pay at Three Projects.

Mechanics' liens against three of the stands built to accommodate inaugural spectators were placed against the stands yesterday in District Supreme Court when a group of carpenters who claimed they were not paid off in full instituted legal proceedings.

Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, as chairman of the Democratic national inaugural committee, was named defendant in the suits. Attorney John N. Breen, acting for the carpenters, said he hoped in this way to tie up whatever funds the contractors have coming to them for erecting the stands.

Those who filed liens yesterday were A. Desaulneers, $31.12; Claude Beach, $12; Walter J. Yehens, $44; Guy Shappell, $44; H. O. Murray, $22; Robert L. Richmond, $44, and William P. Henley, $12. Mr. Breen said 35 more members of the carpenters' union planned to file liens.

THOUSANDS ARRIVING HERE FOR INAUGURAL

Accommodations at Premium, With 250,000 Expected; Weather Uncertain.

The first throngs of the 250,000 persons who will come to Washington's quadrennial show—the inauguration—poured into the city yesterday, finding it well prepared for the elaborate induction of Frank D. Roosevelt and John N. Garner.

Only finishing touches remain to complete the plans—the hanging of bunting and the decoration of stores and buildings—for the ceremony, the parade and the many official and unofficial functions to precede and follow.

Visitors and Washingtonians find all in readiness, with but one doubt, the bugbear of every inaugural, the weather, still unsettled. Despite qualms to the contrary, a pleasant day is the hope of every one.

Stands Are Complete.

All forms of transportation are bringing the crowds to the Capital—trains, buses, airplanes and automobiles are filled in the pilgrimage which is expected to reach its apex Thursday.

Completed are the stands from which more than 50,000 persons, including the new President and Vice President, will witness the great marching display which will follow the official ceremonies at the Capitol.

No check can yet be made on the number of inaugural visitors who reached Washington yesterday, but transportation officials reported unusually heavy traffic toward the Capital although the occasion is still five days away.

9,000 From New York.

The housing and hospitality committee, of which Mrs. Blair Bannister is chairman, reported yesterday that it was already beginning to feel the full pressure of demand for accommodations during the period.

It was reported yesterday by the inaugural committee that New York State would have the largest representation, with more than 9,000 members of Democratic organizations there booked for the rites. A great portion of this delegation will march in the parade.

To rush for seats in the parade stands is unabated. The supply of $2 seats is practically exhausted and the committee in charge reported that sales volume of the $4 and $5 seats had greatly increased.

Preparations for the day include the guarding of Mr. Roosevelt. Secret service and police have laid careful plans to eliminate any possible chance of disorder and their numbers will make him the most care-

"Spy System" Rapped, Student Council Quits

Chestertown, Md., Feb. 27 (A.P.).—The entire student council of Washington College resigned today and a reorganization of the institution's honor system was announced as the aftermath of a controversy between the council and members of the student body.

Undergraduates expressed dissatisfaction with the personnel of the council and with what they termed "the spy system" under which matriculating students have been pledged to report any violations of rules on the part of their schoolmates.

1 DEAD, 6 HURT AS AMBULANCE SMASHES AUTO

Heavy Vehicle Collides With Sedan at District Building.

BOY DIES IN HOSPITAL; PARENTS MAY EXPIRE

Five in One Family Among Victims in Spectacular Crossing Crash.

An Emergency Hospital ambulance, screaming through downtown streets in answer to a shooting alarm on lower Pennsylvania avenue northwest, crashed head-on with an automobile last night at Fourteenth and E streets northwest, fatally injuring a 3-year-old boy, and critically injuring four other members of the family, the father, mother and 11-month-old baby and a sister of the father.

The ambulance driver and a guest in the family sedan were also hurt, but their injuries were not considered serious.

The automobile was driven by Oren Lentz, 26, of Indian Spring Park, Md. He is suffering a possible skull fracture, a broken jaw, and severe lacerations about his face and chest. Oren Lentz, Jr., the couple's 3-year-old son, was fatally injured. His wife, Mrs. Leah Lentz, 22, suffered a fracture of both arms, a possible fracture of the skull, and severe cuts and bruises about the face and body. Their baby boy, Jerry, received lacerations on his face and a fracture of the left wrist.

Interne Escapes Injury.

Miss Helen Lentz, 21, a sister of Mr. Lentz, received scalp lacerations, and Thomas F. Edwards, 1441 Rhode Island street northwest, suffered bruises, but neither was detained at the hospital.

Clarence Montgomery, colored, driver of the ambulance, was also hurt, suffering lacerations and bruises. Dr. D. Crain, who was in the ambulance, escaped injury in the crash which practically demolished the family car and badly damaged the ambulance.

Shortly before 9 p. m. the hospital received a call that a man had been shot in front of 479 Pennsylvania avenue northwest.

Collide at Crossing.

With siren open, the ambulance streaked through Potomac Park at the rear of the White House and turned into E street. At the intersection of Fourteenth street, Montgomery said he saw the Lentz machine, but thought it would stop upon hearing the siren.

The Lentz car, the right side completely torn away, overturned several times. Both children were thrown to the street.

Witnesses said the ambulance was

(Associated Press.)

Evidence that the National City Co. participated in the sale of $90,000,000 worth of Peruvian bonds to the American people while withholding in its files information of unstable conditions in that country was presented yesterday to the Senate stock market investigating committee.

Victor Schoepperle, vice president of the company, testified that he and its officials knew Peru had "an unsatisfactory debt record" and "was not a good moral risk," but felt conditions were improving.

Earlier, Hugh B. Baker, testifying at the very moment his resignation as president of the company was being made public in New York, had said he could not remember why the company believed the bonds sound in spite of repeated warnings from its officers in Peru.

Confronted by Documents.

Baker's resignation followed closely upon the retirement of Charles E. Mitchell, chairman of the company and of its parent, the National City Bank, as a result of the disclosures before the committee.

While Baker was on the stand, Ferdinand Pecora, committee counsel, drew document after document from the company's files showing representatives of the concern in Peru were frankly critical of conditions there.

He was also presented with the prospectuses on which the bonds were issued to the public, agreed they did not mention the unfavorable information the company had and said under questioning that if they had the public probably would not have bought the securities which are now in default.

Knew Bad-Debt Record.

While Baker was trying to explain why the company issued the bonds in the face of warnings, Schoepperle eagerly tried to break in and explain. Finally Pecora called him to the stand.

"I knew and my associates knew," he said, "that Peru had an unsatisfactory debt record. We felt Peru was not a good moral risk. But there was evidence that under President Leguia there had been great progress in constructive development, economically and in the financial record of the country."

The youthful vice president, who was in charge of the matter for the company, said it would never have participated in the bond issues except that "we were assured by the president he wished to complete the economic development of the country."

He explained at length a program of internal improvements and stabilization which he said President Leguia had agreed upon as a condition to the loans.

"Through these loans," Pecora said, "the American public was asked to restore order out of economic and political chaos that had prevailed over a number of years. Doesn't it all simmer down to that?"

"Under conditions as they exist today," Schoepperle said, "I feel bound to accept your statement. I thought at the time, like a great many others, that we were in a new era. I made an honest mistake. It was an era of optimism."

The testimony showed that the company participated in three issues of Peruvian bonds, $15,000,000 in March, 1927; $50,000,000 in December, 1927, and $25,000,000 in October, 1928.

Woodin Confers With Mills; Confident of Solving Tasks

Announcement of $690,000,000 March 15 Refinancing Expected to Wait Until After Inauguration; Balanced Budget Aim of New Secretary.

Exuding confidence that the tremendous tasks awaiting his attention in the Treasury Department will yield to happy solution under the incoming administration, William H. Woodin spent practically all of yesterday in conference with Secretary Mills, whose desk he is to take over next Saturday.

Although official word from participants in the discussions was lacking, there was no indication that any of the more urgent aspects of the Federal fiscal situation had been solved, or that any definite program for dealing with the March 15 financing had been determined upon by the incoming Secretary.

Returns to New York.

After a crowded day in the Capital, Mr. Woodin returned to New York last night with the intention of remaining there until the end of the week. In authoritative quarters this was interpreted as an indication that no announcement of the March 15 refinancing, which will involve some $690,000,000 in Government maturities will be made until after the inauguration.

Ordinarily such announcements are made two weeks in advance of the maturity date, and under the usual custom of publishing the refinancing terms on the last Sunday of the month, the March 15 conditions would have appeared in last Sunday morning's papers.

Silent on Plan.

There was no comment at the Treasury yesterday on the departure from this custom, nor would officials who are preparing to relinquish their responsibilities at the end of this week discuss the suggestion put forth in New York banking circles during the last ten days that the March 15 financing would be delayed until the fiscal policies of the new administration are definitely announced.

Mr. Woodin received newspaper men at his apartment in the Carlton yesterday afternoon, during the interval between his morning and afternoon conferences with Secretary Mills. He asked, however, to be excused from commenting on Treasury affairs, principally on the ground that he had not yet had time to familiarize himself with the many pressing problems awaiting his attention.

Aims for Balanced Budget.

Friends of the new Treasury Secretary declare that he will enter his important office with a strong inclination toward a balanced budget. This should be accomplished, they believe, by drastic curtailment of expenditures. But as yet there has been no serious thought given as to where the necessary savings, which must aggregate something more than $1,000,000,000 a year, are to be realized.

Mr. Woodin believes Federal finances must be handled as a business proposition and that any bookkeeping devices which might only appear to offer a balanced budget would not be effective. He is generally understood to be opposed to any scheme for segregating public works expenditures in a separate budget, a proposal which has been put forward repeatedly during the last several months by advisers of President-elect Roosevelt on Capitol Hill.

Against Deposits Guarantee.

Although it was undetermined whether Mr. Woodin discussed the general banking situation with Treasury officials, it was revealed that the incoming Secretary harbors no sympathy whatever for the suggestion put forward recently in Congress that the Federal Government should undertake to guarantee all bank deposits. Some of Mr. Woodin's friends and well wishers say his view is that such legislation would be disastrous.

Mr. Woodin approaches his herculean labors in a spirit of great confidence and enthusiasm. Whatever fiscal policies may be decided upon, he has an unshaken faith that everything is going to turn out all right. He will seek advice from all quarters and will actively undertake to enlist the cooperation of all elements of the Nation in whatever Treasury program may be determined upon in the new administration.

Opposes Inflation Plans.

Mr. Woodin obviously is keenly aware of the difficulties confronting him in the Treasury, where one of the toughest financial situations in American history awaits solution. He is instinctively opposed to all manner of inflationary proposals, and is hopeful that the new Congress will move speedily to an effective balancing of the budget.

The prospective political complications confronting the fiscal program of the new administration do not perplex Mr. Woodin. As a man of long business experience, he approaches the Treasury problems as business equations. If he has any reason for thinking Congress may approach them otherwise he has not revealed his misgivings. He expects clear thinking and decisive action in Congress, and probably will be disappointed if the budgetary and fiscal problems of the Government are handled otherwise. Although he ran for Congress in New York City many years ago, his defeat left him with a poor taste for political activity and since that experience he has paid little attention to congressional methods.

Deficit of $1,450,000,000.

When Mr. Woodin takes over the Treasury helm next Saturday, the 1933 deficit will be in the neighborhood of $1,450,000,000. Besides the $694,000,000 worth of refinancing on March 15, the Government faces further flotations before the fiscal year ends June 30. The extent of the additional credits needed can not be computed, however, until the full measure of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation needs for the second quarter are known, and until the present Congress finally decides what new demands will be made on the R. F. C. for refinancing farm mortgages.

A second pressing problem which must be faced almost immediately after March 4 is the question of the $11,000,000,000 war debt owed by Europe. In preparation for this phase of his duties, Mr. Woodin conferred yesterday with Senator Cordell Hull, Mr. Roosevelt's nominee for Secretary of State.

Later in the year some $6,000,000,000 in 4¼ per cent Liberty bonds become callable, in addition to the $1,933,000,000 in 3½, 4 and 4¼ per cent Libertys, which became callable last year. Thus a refunding operation involving possible lower interest rates on some $8,000,000,000 worth of outstanding securities will also demand Treasury attention at an early date.

National Debt Increase.

Plans to convert a portion of the Government's $2,000,000,000 in short loans into longer term securities also must be considered in the near future. The national debt now stands at approximately $20,000,000,000, an increase of about $4,000,000,000 during the last three years. The bulk of this increase is represented in Treasury bills, notes and certificates maturing in one year or less. Conversion of a considerable portion of this short-term paper into longer term bonds is considered an essential step in any program looking to stabilization of national finances. But this decision, in turn, must await final determination of the budget policy of the incoming administration.

With effective cooperation from Congress, however, Mr. Woodin feels that the whole range of Treasury problems can be easily handled.

REPUBLICAN HEADS ASK HOOVER TO CONTINUE HIS LEADERSHIP

available last night as to the plans and policies there projected for the 1934 campaign.

In presenting a long list of fundamental principles which he suggested should guide the party during the next few years, the President emphasized the necessity for a balanced Federal budget and the vital importance of maintaining sound money.

Sound Currency Vital.

"There are certain fundamentals and safeguards of our Government which are not the property of any political party," his letter continued. "They are the common necessity to the entire people. They embrace rigid adherence to the Constitution; enforcement of the laws without respect to persons; assurance of the credit of the Government through restraint of spending and provision of adequate revenue; preservation of the honor and integrity of the Government in respect to its obligations, its securities and its sound currency; insistence upon the responsibilities of local government; advancement of world peace; adequate preparedness for defense; the cure of abuses which have crept into our economic and political systems; development of security to homes and living; persistence in the initiative, equal opportunity and responsibilities of individuals and institutions; and finally every encouragement to the development of our intellectual, moral and spiritual life."

Turning from these long-time policies to the special requirements of the immediate situation, Mr. Hoover urged that emergency measures supported by the party should be so guarded as to insure their dissolution when the credit stringency has passed.

Reserve Strength Required.

"In great emergencies humanity in Government requires the utilization of the reserve strength of all branches of the Government, whether local or national, to protect our institutions and our people from forces beyond their control. This must and can be accomplished without violation of these fundamentals and safeguards."

Following is the text of the resolution adopted by the committee following the reading of the President's letter:

"The executive committee of the Republican National Committee is pleased to have your inspiring message and sends you affectionate greetings.

Appreciation Is Expressed.

"As your administration draws to a close, we wish to express the deep appreciation of the loyal members of our party of your unceasing and effective labors in behalf of the American people.

"Meeting for the first time since the presidential election, we take this opportunity of congratulating you on the great public service which you rendered in the campaign. Your straightforward, penetrating discussion of public issues indelibly impressed the fundamentals of sound government upon the millions of voters in whose hands rests the future of our country.

"The supporters of our great party will continue to look to you for leadership in these difficult and dangerous days and we of the party organization are relying upon your counsel and cooperation in solving the many problems before us.

Tribute to Coolidge.

"We earnestly hope, Mr. President, that the years to come will bring you health of body and tranquillity of spirit and we are convinced they will bring you an ever-increasing measure of gratitude from your fellow countrymen."

A resolution of tribute to the late Calvin Coolidge honored him for "unusual qualities of statesmanship, combined with inherent honesty of purpose and strict adherence to the highest American ideals."

After accepting the resignation of Senator Bronson Cutting, of New Mexico, as a member of the party's national committee, the executive committee named former Representative Albert G. Sims, of Albuquerque, to the vacancy.

Hamilton Is Selected.

About a year ago Mr. Sims married former Representative Ruth Hanna McCormick, of Chicago.

J. D. M. Hamilton, of Topeka, Kans., was named to fill the committee place vacated by the death last summer of David Mulvane.

The Pennsylvania vacancy was not filled because under a rule of the State organization the national committeeman is designated by the Republican State central committee.

Postoffice to Continue At Breathedsville, Md.

(Associated Press.)

The Postoffice Department yesterday rescinded its recent order discontinuing the postoffice at Breathedsville, Washington County, Maryland.

FRENCH AND BRITISH ENVOYS VISIT HULL

Administration Will Insist Debt Revision Follow Tariff Changes.

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

The Roosevelt administration will insist that revision of intergovernmental debts be made contingent upon definite international tariff adjustments, it became known here last night following the interviews yesterday between the British ambassador, Sir Ronald Lindsay; the French ambassador, Paul Claudel, and the Secretary of State-designate, Cordell Hull.

Mr. Hull announced last night that in his conversation with the British ambassador there had been an exchange of "documentary information." The British ambassador had handed him a memorandum, "not an official note," the senator was quick to add, and he for his part had likewise handed the ambassador a memorandum. It is believed that the memorandum from the Secretary of State-to-be was the copy of the address he had made in the Senate relative to the tariffs and the war debts last December.

The Hull interview with the British Ambassador lasted almost two hours and that with Claudel was only a little shorter. The Far Eastern question was only lightly touched upon at both conferences, despite the imminence of an appeal for American joint action with France and Great Britain on an arms embargo.

World Recovery at Stake.

The senator from Tennessee, whose broad authority in all matters pertaining to tariffs made him utterly at home in discussing the new basis of considering the intergovernmental debts with his diplomatic visitors, indicated that the discussion of the debts will be brought more into the framework of the world economic conference. The United States, he insisted, has acquiesced in the request of foreign governments for a discussion of their debts and is now ready to reexamine them in the light of their new information. This is in complete harmony with the principles enunciated by the President-elect, who made the debt conversations "concurrent with and conditional upon" tariff adjustments.

At the same time he announced that in his opinion a considerable impetus to world recoverey would be given by a frank approval from the spokesmen of Great Britain, France and the other European countries of the projected discussions in the world economic parleys. Such a statement coming at this time would go far in allaying the general uncertainty of the conference and would, be allowed it to be inferred, be interpreted as an earnest of the cooperative spirit in these nations.

The new position of the United States will be that of the sympathetic and amiable creditor who is ready and willing to listen to the new examination of the war debts. The old formula of "capacity to pay" seems to have been jettisoned in favor of the newer approach to the debt problem, but under whichever formula adopted the new Secretary of State will hold himself in readiness to hear all the debtors.

Claudel Visit Significant.

The inclusion of the French Ambassador in the discussions yesterday was regarded as a very significant invitation, especially in view of the fact that France is the country whose default last December precipitated similar reactions in Poland and Belgium. The visit of Ambassador Claudel is regarded here as an augury that the French government at an early date will acquit its defaulted payment and thus be admitted to the future debt conversations on a footing of perfect equality.

The Hull doctrine of tariff adjustment is grounded on the statement he made in the Senate on two occasions last December. At that time the incoming foreign affairs chief of President-elect Roosevelt said:

"Of what avail would it be to sidetrack the war debts upon the theory of increasing international trade, while leaving intact the insurmountable tariff and other trade barriers? Let other governments first be asked to define their attitude on these critical phases—these major obstructions to trade and finance—to the end that both individual and concerted action of the nations in support of a comprehensive relief program, including all debts, may be had."

Committee to Get Rent Report Today

Capper to Offer Proposals of Subcommittee; Other Action to Be Asked.

A last effort to get the Senate District rent investigating subcommittee's report approved before adjournment of Congress will be made at a special meeting of the Senate District Committee, called for 2:30 p. m. today.

Chairman Arthur Capper will lay before the full committee Rent Investigator Oscar Brinkman's report on local rent conditions and the subcommittee's recommendations.

Action will be sought on other local legislation, including a bill to give the recorder of deeds authority to increase the fees charged by his office, and a bill authorizing the Jacobs Transfer & Storage Co. to construct a fuel pipe line into its Northeast plant.

Georgia Avenue Group Will Convene Tonight

The Georgia Avenue Business Men's Association will hold their first meeting at their new hall, Second and Upsher streets northwest, over John German's bakery shop, at 8 o'clock tonight.

Professional Bondsman Bill on House Calendar

The bill to regulate professional bondsmen in the District was ordered placed on the House calendar yesterday, following a favorable report last week by the House District Committee.

The regulatory measure, which would empower the courts to weed out undesirables engaged in the business of executing criminal bonds, has already passed the Senate. It would punish unethical collusion between bondsmen, lawyers and police.

WORLD MOVE ASKED TO RESTORE TRADE

Educators, Editors and Industrialists Tell Senators U. S. Should Lead.

(Associated Press.)

Concerted world action, led by the United States, to break the stifling grip of depression was advocated yesterday before the Senate Finance Committee in its study of trade improvement methods.

Opening the third week of its hearings, through which Senate Democrats hope to obtain data for the incoming administration, with Alfred E. Smith to be heard today, committee members yesterday received suggestions from:

Smith and Fairchild, who appeared before the committee, called for war debt and tariff revision, in which they were joined by Butler in a letter explaining he was unable to be present because of the pressure of his duties at Columbia.

Noyes, who gave the committee a history of past depressions and laid the roots of current economic ills in overexpansion and waste as the result of the World War, said:

"If there ever was a need for a world economic conference with a purpose to find the way out by frank and honest exchange of views, it is now."

Tariff and debt concessions, he said, would help open up world trade channels. Butler and Smith also urged armament reduction. Smith asserted settlement of debts and tariff problems would go further to aid the domestic farmer than "half a dozen farm relief plans."

Virtually all called for a balanced budget as essential to the restoration of public confidence. Butler advocated giving the President broad powers to reorganize the Government and authority under a general statute to handle "petty legislative details" that now tie up Congress.

They also agreed in opposition to tampering with the currency and recommended reductions in Federal expenditures, Smith and Butler specifying cuts in expenditures for veterans.

Weir, chairman of the board of the National Steel Corporation, joined the others in favoring war debts revision and urging sound money, but opposed tariff revision. As a basic step toward recovery, he asked for governmental protection of the banking structure. This could be done through the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, he contended, by liberality in valuing securities offered for loans.

Senate Votes $50,000 For Colony Anniversary

(Associated Press.)

The Senate yesterday adopted and sent to the House a resolution authorizing $50,000 as expenses for the United States Roanoke Colony Commission in arranging for the 350th anniversary of the birth of English-speaking civilization in America.

The main celebration would be held July 4, 1934, on the site of Fort Raleigh, which marks the spot where the first colonists landed on Roanoke Island, N. C., July 4, 1584.

Caucus Announced By West Virginians

House Delegation Meets on Thursday Before Party Gathering.

(Associated Press.)

The West Virginia delegation in the next Congress, solidly Democratic, will hold its first caucus Thursday afternoon, in advance of the party caucus.

The meeting probably will be held in the office of Representative Smith, of Beckley, highest ranking member of the delegation in the point of service. Representative Horner, still confined to his home in Clarksburg by illness, is not expected to attend, but Representatives-elect Ramsey, Randolph, Johnson and Kee will be present.

Mr. Smith is hopeful that the delegation will take a united stand in the speakership contest. He has himself taken no stand on the matter yet.

Army Recruiting Stops In Third Corps Area

Due to the unprecedented reenlistment of discharged soldiers together with the rush of specially desirable applications for original enlistment, all Army recruiting in the Third Corps area, which includes Washington, has been temporarily suspended.

Only discharged soldiers whose reenlistment within three months is authorized by regulations are to be accepted until further notice, according to an announcement that has been sent to all officers on recruiting duty.

FARM LIEN HOLIDAY BILLS DIE IN SENATE

(Associated Press.)

Farm mortgage moratorium legislation was dead for the session last night, firmly killed by the Senate after solemn warnings from Borah, of Idaho, and Glass, of Virginia, that the Government's loan policies are carrying it into socialism.

So much opposition developed against the Hull-Walcott bill, authorizing $600,000,000 in Reconstruction Corporation credit to enable mortgage holders to pay their borrowers' delinquent taxes, interest and installments, that leaders gave up hope of enactment before March 4 and laid the measure aside.

After Senator King (Democrat), Utah, had denounced the bill as a makeshift and the possible prelude of a time when the Government will be both landlord and tenant of farms and small homes, Borah, veteran Republican independent, interrupted to say emphatically:

"We may not take over the farms right away. But we are undoubtedly in a position where we are going to have to take over the railroads if we continue our present course.

Insurance Firms as Well.

"And not only the railroads, but insurance companies as well. We'll make the Soviet government ashamed of itself."

Glass, Virginia Democrat, who turned down a post in the new Cabinet, assailed the measure as "privileged socialism."

He added it would be "impossible for a long period of time for anybody, no matter how worthy, to borrow money if Congress reserves the right to declare moratoriums."

"We are living under distressing conditions," replied Senator Fletcher, of Florida, a Democratic member of the Banking Committee. He argued the measure was essential if farm and home mortgage foreclosures are to be prevented.

Fletcher said the Federal Home Loan Banks set up by Congress last session hadn't saved a "single home."

"Perfect Soviet System."

"And never will," put in Borah.

Senator Long (Democrat), Louisiana, asserted "we're going to have a perfect Soviet system" unless the whole economic problem is attacked and conquered as a whole instead of piecemeal.

Unless wealth is redistributed and heavy inheritance taxes levied, he said, "we're going to have to take over the railroads, because they are going to default, the bankers and the farmers," he added:

"We've loaned the railroads money, and they can't pay it back. We've loaned industry money and it can't pay it back. We are rapidly reaching the vanishing point of our national integrity, at least financially speaking."

SENATE COMMITTEE RESTORES D. C. CUTS

playground between Ninth and Tenth streets, F and G streets northeast.

An increase of $2,000 over budget estimates for social hygiene work.

Reinsertion of $12,690 to continue operation of a testing laboratory in the highways department.

Elimination of the House ban on nonresident school children and continuation of the present law, admitting children of nonresident Government employes and Army and Navy officers with free tuition.

Restoration of total estimates for the Woodrow Wilson School in the Reno section to the $1,300,000 recommended by the Budget Bureau and an increase in the initial appropriation on the project from the $443,000 proposed by the House to $500,000.

Bridge Estimate Boosted.

Restoration of funds for the purchase of additional sites for the Phelps Vocational School and the Syphax School and of budget estimates for furnishing the Phelps School.

Restoration of total estimates for the Calvert street bridge to $1,250,000, in lieu of the $700,000 proposed by the House.

Reinsertion of budget figures for the offices of register of wills and recorder of deeds and the District water department.

The committee continued the $625,000 House appropriation for District unemployment relief in the last six months of 1933, but restored the budget language, limiting the amount used for personal services.

Taxi Meters Favored.

In lifting the restriction barring the Public Utilities Commission from enforcing its taxicab meter order, Senator Bingham said the committee felt the meter should be brought back, so long as it does not bring with it former high taxi rates.

Recommendation of a 25-cent charge for the first 2 miles conforms with the plan proposed by the Public Utilities Commission. Instead of the commission's recommendation of a 15-cent charge for every succeeding mile, the committee proposed 10 cents.

Senator Bingham said the committee thought the charge for the third mile should be cheaper than that made for the first.

Within four days the bill reported yesterday must be passed by the Senate, House and Senate differences ironed out in conference, and the conference report adopted by both houses. Lacking this, the measure must go over until the special session.

Women's Welfare Group To Meet in White House

Plans for the enlargement of the women's committee of the Washington division of the national citizens' committee for the mobilization of welfare and relief will be discussed at a meeting of 100 women at the White House at 11 a. m. today. Invitations to the meeting have been issued by Mrs. John Jay O'Connor, chairman of the women's committee, who will preside. Mrs. Hoover will welcome the guests.

In addition to the welcome by Mrs. Hoover and an outline of the plans for enlarging the local committee by Mrs. O'Connor, there will be a talk by Newbold Noyes, member of the national committee, of which Newton D. Baker is chairman, who will speak on the situation in Washington today.

Donovan and Wilson Plead Immediate Transmittal of $300,000 for Idle.

Estimates on two supplemental District items were discussed by municipal officials with the Budget Bureau yesterday, and indications were that the requests for additional appropriations will be forwarded at once to Congress.

Auditor Daniel J. Donovan and George S. Wilson, public welfare director, urged immediate transmittal of the $300,000 item for unemployment relief so that action may be obtained before the present Congress adjourns. Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, director of highways, appeared with Maj. Donovan in behalf of a $500,000 estimate for additional highway improvements.

The largest single item in the highway budget is $250,000 for construction of a new stone bridge over Rock Creek Park at P street, while the other items cover a variety of street improvement projects not included in the 1934 supply bill.

Originally, the District budget for 1934 carried $2,300,000 for highway improvements, but this figure was cut to $1,720,000 by the House. Senator Hiram Bingham, of Connecticut, and other members of the subcommittee on appropriations of the Senate District Committee indicated that restoration of construction projects would be preferable to building up a large surplus. Agreeing with this attitude, the District Commissioners decided to submit additional highway estimates.

The request for $300,000 additional for unemployment relief also was made upon the suggestion of the Senate subcommittee after Mr. Wilson had stated that the $625,000 appropriated this year would be insufficient. The relief item will go into a second deficiency bill for expenditure before July 1, while the highway appropriation will come under the 1934 budget.

Democratic Women Will Honor Leader

Miss Dewson to Be Guest at Luncheon to Be Held Thursday.

Women leaders of the Democratic groups who were active in the campaign last fall will be guests Thursday at a luncheon in honor of Miss Mary Dewson, chairman of the woman's division of the Democratic campaign committee.

The luncheon will be given by Lavinia Engle, director of the woman's speakers' bureau of the committee, and Emily Newell Blair, of Missouri, former vice chairman of the Democratic national committee.

Among the guests will be Frances Perkins, who will be Secretary of Labor; the former Governor of Wyoming, Nellie Taylor Ross, and Senator Hattie Caraway.

PARIS TO TRANSFER CLAUDEL FROM U. S.

Paris yesterday as he was leaving the Carlton Hotel after a conference with Senator Cordell Hull, Secretary of State-designate.

The new Secretary of State was considerably surprised when he heard the reports. He stated:

"From my personal experience with French Ambassador Claudel, I can say that I shall be very sorry to have him leave. No diplomat has earned a higher place in the esteem of the American public.

The ambassador-post surprised the crowd of correspondents who were waiting for him by readily explaining:

"Yes, that's probably quite true. That has been in the reports from Paris."

The newspapermen were a little taken aback and inquired incredulously:

"Don't you think that that is a canard like the other reports that have emanated from Paris recently?"

The ambassador replied briskly:

"No, I do not think that this is a canard."

The sudden decision of the French foreign office will bring the Turkish Ambassador position of dean of the Diplomatic Corps. Some time ago Ambassador Ahmet Muhtar moved from his former home to a very pretentious embassy near Sheridan Circle, where he is expected to give a series of brilliant fetes.

Ambassador Claudel has been in the midst of the delicate negotiations that are preliminary to the debt negotiations, and his retirement at this time is attended with considerable surprise. He has been at the embassy here since March 28, 1927, and became dean of the corps on the departure of Italian Ambassador de Martino last fall.

Before he became ambassador here, M. Claudel was French Ambassador to Tokyo. Since his arrival in the United States he has set himself to learn English, which he speaks now with creditable fluency. His sallies of wit in the Diplomatic Corps are celebrated and from his reserved and silent demeanor he has been often known to flash a brilliant bon mot that makes the round of the embassies and legations for weeks afterward.

POSTAL BILL ACCORD SOUGHT AGAIN TODAY

House and Senate Conferees Strive to Pass Measure This Session.

Another attempt to agree on far reaching controversial economy features of the Treasury-Postoffice appropriations bill will be made by House and Senate conferees at 10 a. m. today at a meeting in the Senate Navy Affairs Committee room.

Following refusal of the Senate Friday to adopt a partial conference report involving minor features on which conferees are in agreement, the bill came back to the House yesterday. Speaker Garner reappointed the same set of House conferees, headed by Appropriations Chairman Joseph W. Byrns.

In an effort to save for Franklin D. Roosevelt that broad grant of reorganization power contained in the economy rider to the bill, Democratic conferees will make an effort to speedily iron out the differences and get action by both houses, before the bill dies with the Seventy-second Congress.

Major items in disagreement include the Bratton amendment providing for 5 per cent cuts in departmental appropriations, the McKellar amendment, providing for Board of Tax Appeals review of all tax refunds in excess of $20,000 and the $19,000,000 air mail subsidy.

Swanson to Leave Senate Next Week

Will Remain Until Chamber Ends Its Brief Post-Inaugural Session.

(Associated Press.)

Formal announcement from Hyde Park that Senator Swanson would be the new Secretary of the Navy, brought from the Virginian yesterday the statement that he would not resign his Senate seat until next week.

He will submit his resignation to Gov. Pollard immediately after the Senate concludes its brief post-inaugural session, he said. That means he will not relinquish his present office until confirmed in his new one.

The Senate will meet after the inauguration to confirm the new President's major appointments. Swanson predicted it would adjourn Monday or Tuesday. He said he felt it his duty to remain until conclusion of the Senate session, because "there are several legislative matters pending in which Virginia is interested."

PROMOTER IN MOOSE CASE PLEADS GUILTY

Aid in Alleged Lottery With Senator Davis Is Given Year in Prison.

New York, Feb. 27 (A.P.).—Bernard C. McGuire, a promoter indicted with United States Senator James J. Davis and others in the alleged lottery of the Loyal Order of Moose, pleaded guilty to the charges today, while the trial of the Pennsylvania senator was again postponed until March 6.

McGuire's change of plea was conditional upon the United States Court of Appeals' action on a conviction of lottery charges in the Fraternal Order of Eagles case, which he managed.

Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe sentenced McGuire to a year and a day in the Atlanta prison, to run concurrent with the sentences in the Eagles case.

Prosecutor Louis Treadwell explained to the court, in consenting to the change of plea, that the Eagles and Moose cases involve the same question of law and that McGuire, while confessing the truth of the charges against him, contends these do not constitute a violation of the law.

The delay in the Davis trial was allowed to give Charles H. Tuttle, one of the defense counsel, time to complete another case. Others left to be tried with the senator, who is director general of the Moose Order, are Theodore G. Miller and Raymond Walsh.

Walsh, an employe of McGuire, was acquitted in the Eagles case. Miller, as head of the propagation department of the Moose Order, is accused with the others of sending and conspiring to send lottery tickets across State lines.

Miller, of '101 Ranch,' Gets Louisiana Divorce

New Orleans, Feb. 27 (A.P.).—Col. Zach T. Miller, of Ponca City, Okla., long associated with the 101 Ranch there and the traveling show of the same name, today was granted a final divorce decree and custody of his two children, Zach, jr., 11, and Tassie, 8, when the State Supreme Court affirmed a decision of the District Court of Catahoula Parish, La., where Miller maintains extensive farming properties.

Col. and Mrs. Miller charged infidelity in counterdivorce actions and when the decree was awarded to Miller, Mrs. Miller appealed to the Supreme Court on the allegation that her husband was not a legal resident of Louisiana.

Communist Candidate Held in Auction Disorder

Salt Lake City, Feb. 27 (A.P.).—M. P. Bales, Communist candidate for governor of Utah last November, and Orson Shelly were held in the county jail today on charges of inciting riot, bringing to 14 the number arrested in connection with an antiforeclosure sale demonstration at the City and County Building last Thursday.

Eleven men are held in jail in default of bonds of $1,000 each, and one woman has been released on her own recognizance. Bales arrested the crowd that stormed the County Building last week, forcing deputy sheriffs to abandon the sales after one of seven pieces of property had been sold.

BRITISH SPEED KING HONORED AT LUNCHEON

19 INDICTED BY U.S. IN INSULL DEBACLE

Halsey, Stuart Head Among Those Accused of Plan to Swindle Public.

Chicago, Feb. 27 (A.P.).—The $150,000,000 financial bubble that Corporation Securities Co. turned out to be was charged against Samuel Insull and eighteen associates today as a gigantic scheme to defraud an investing public.

Indictments entailing possible punishment by 125 years in Federal prison and $250,000 fine for each defendant were returned by the Federal grand jury.

The names of three Insulls led all the rest—Samuel, an exile in Greece; Martin, in a Canadian refuge, and Samuel, jr., still active in utility affairs here; but with them the jury named several of Chicago's leading capitalists: Stanley Field, chairman of the Continental-Illinois National Bank & Trust Co.; Edward J. Doyle, president of Commonwealth Edison Co., and Harold L. Stuart, head of Halsey, Stuart & Co.

The 25 counts allege, in substance, "a scheme and artifice to defraud and to obtain money from prospective investors by false pretenses, representations and promises in the sale of Corporation Securities Co. of Chicago common stock."

Other indictments are likely to be returned, for Government prosecutors have made manifest their determination to bring the senior Insull home from Athens, where thus far he has defeated the efforts of American justice to bring him to trial. State charges of larceny and embezzlement in the Insull financing failed to gain extradition. Similarly, the use of United States mails to defraud is not an extraditable offense, and attorneys regarded it improbable Insull could be removed from Greece should the rumored indictment for concealment of assets in Federal bankruptcy materialize.

12 of 28 Accused In Rum Case Free

Brewer, Dry Agent, Denies Convoy of Maryland Runners to Capital.

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Md., Feb. 27.—Charges were stricken today against twelve of the twenty-eight residents of Charles County who are on trial for conspiring to violate the liquor laws. Action was taken by the Government at the conclusion of testimony.

Judge W. Calvin Chestnut then delivered his charge to the jury trying the remaining defendants in United States District Court. Argument will begin tomorrow.

The twelve men against whom the charges were stricken are John Holmon, Mario di Guliano, Tommie Willett, Eugene C. Mariable, Archie Willett, Ernest Wedding, John Makle, Fulton Willett, Robert Lee Garner, Theodore Hawkins, Fred Hawkins and Dewey Burch.

Earlier in the day John Randolph Brewer, prohibition investigator, who was accused last week by a Government witness of having convoyed liquor alleged to have been owned by Paul C. Robinson, a defendant, took the stand as a defense witness. He denied that he had ever been connected with liquor running in any way.

Winship to Probe Liberian Situation

Army Officer Appointed by Hoover to Study Negro Republic's Finances.

(Associated Press.)

Maj. Gen. Blanton Winship was designated yesterday by President Hoover, after consultation with the incoming administration concerning the situation in Liberia, as special representative of the President to investigate conditions there.

Gen. Winship, now on duty here, will leave for that country at an early date accompanied by Ellis O. Briggs, American diplomatic officer, who has been making a special study of Liberia's troubles.

The State Department announced Winship is being sent to study means of safeguarding American rights and of making it possible to assist Liberia in reorganizing its government. Liberia recently violated its loan agreements with the Finance Corporation of America, a Firestone affiliate, under which $2,250,000 of a $5,000,000 loan has been advanced to the republic.

BOETTCHER EXPECTS WORD OF SON TODAY

Still Refuses to Share Notes From Kidnapers With Authorities.

Denver, Feb. 27 (A.P.).—Confident he would receive another communication from the kidnapers of his son within the next 20 hours, Claude K. Boettcher, multimillionaire father of Charles Boettcher 2d, refused today to divige to police contents of letters he received from the abductors containing instructions on how to pay $60,000 ransom.

His revived hopes for the safe return of the 31-year-old heir, who has been missing since February 12, was expressed to Police Chief A. T. Clark.

The chief asked Boettcher to give up the letters, believing detectives might find in them an overlooked clew to the solution of the kidnaping.

"I expect to have definite word from the captors of my son before tomorrow morning," Boettcher told Clark. "If I do not hear from them before then, I will confer with my advisors as to the best plan of procedure."

He refused to say why he thought he would hear from the abductors, but is was known the Rev. D. B. Dagwell, rector of exclusive St. John's Episcopal Church, visited Boettcher's great stone mansion twice during the morning. The Rev. Mr. Dagwell previously had delivered to Boettcher three communications which Boettcher admitted were from the kidnapers.

RAINEY AS SPEAKER NOW APPEARS SURE

nothing to indicate even a forlorn hope for the candidacy of Mr. Cullen.

Tammany is a conservative, play-with-the-rich, and climb-aboard-the-band-wagon crowd. They had been expected to go to Representative John McDuffie, of Alabama, under orders from John F. Curry, the suave and calculating boss of the organization.

Much was made of an effort by the supporters of Representative Joseph W. Byrns, of Tennessee, to get the Tammany support, and Mr. Byrns denied the report.

The announcement that Tammany would vote for Mr. Cullen on the first ballot in the party caucus to choose a Speaker was an open bid by the delegation to the prospective Speaker of the next House. Tammany wants what it can get in the way of position for one or more of its representatives in the House.

Representative Will Rogers, of Oklahoma, and Thomas O'Malley, of Wisconsin, have called a meeting of the new Democratic members of the next House to meet tomorrow night. The two fighting new members said they wanted to make certain that all of the new members of the House were made aware of the contending forces in national affairs and were apprised to vote for a liberal Speaker and a liberal party program.

All of the newly elected Democrats, numbering 127, are not, however, to be numbered as converts to the cause of liberalism. It is significant, so far as the Speakership fight is concerned, that one of the criticisms advanced against Representative Rainey is that he is a radical.

While the Democrats are literally fuming over their Speakership fight—the candidate named by the Democratic caucus virtually is assured of election—the Republicans are going about their job of naming their candidate for Speaker.

Representative Bertram H. Snell, of New York, present minority leader, undoubtedly will be named by the Republicans. He will be beaten, but he will continue in his role as minority leader.

CERMAK REPORTED SLIGHTLY IMPROVED

Another Glucose Injection Is Scheduled; Temperature Is 101.4 Degrees.

Miami, Fla., Feb. 27 (A.P.).—A slight change for the better was reported late today in the condition of Mayor Anton Cermak, who is suffering from a bullet wound, pneumonia and colitis.

A bulletin from the Chicago executive's bedside at 5:45 p. m., Eastern standard time, said he had made a "slight change for the better during the past six hours."

"He has rested well," the bulletin said. "Pulse 120, temperature 101.4, respiration 36."

Another glucose injection was to be made early tonight, Dr. Karl Meyer, one of the attending physicians, said.

"The mayor's color continues good," Dr. Meyer said, "and there appears no necessity for another blood transfusion. At least there positively will not be a transfusion tonight."

The cheerful news on the mayor's condition followed upon a day of pessimistic reports from his bedside.

The area of the mayor's lung affected by pneumonia has doubled in size since the disease developed yesterday.

Prior to the 5:45 bulletin, doctors in individual comment said their hopes for saving the patient had been lessened by the pneumonia.

However, a cheerful note was sounded by Dr. Meyer, who said, "If we sustain him for two or three days at the present rate he may be able to win over the lung infection."

Senator Thomas Walsh, of Montana, who was married Saturday in Havana, Cuba, called at the hospital to ask about the mayor's condition. He expressed sympathy for the Cermak family and said he hoped the mayor would survive the ordeal.

BOY KILLED, 6 HURT IN AMBULANCE CRASH

traveling at a terrific speed. The siren was open, they said, but Lentz apparently did not hear it. Edwards, who was in the Lentz car, told the following story:

"We were going to Alexandria, Va., to visit friends. We were traveling down E street toward Highway Bridge. I did not hear the ambulance and I am sure Mr. Lentz didn't. The first thing I knew we had been struck."

Answering False Alarm.

The noise of the crash could be heard for blocks. The Lentz car was completely wrecked and after coming to rest against the curb its occupants fell into the street. From the engine to the rear tire, the right side was torn away.

The shooting call proved to be wrong. A Chinese known as Charles Parks was alleged to have been beaten by a man who was later arrested by police of the First Precinct.

The man, who gave his name as Wilbur Wright, no address, walked into a restaurant at Third street and Pennsylvania avenue and announced he "had just killed a man."

He requested a taxi driver, Norman J. Huff, to help him "make a getaway."

Joseph Dileo, Washington attorney, who was in the restaurant, ran to the street and found the Chinese lying unconscious on the sidewalk. The ambulance was then summoned.

A revolver, said to have been used by Parks, was also confiscated by police. One shot had been fired.

Meanwhile, Parks was taken to the hospital by detectives. It was found he suffered severe bruises to his head. Wright was held for investigation.

3 Seriously Hurt as Auto And Tank Wagon Crash

Three persons, one a small child, were in a serious condition at Emergency Hospital last night suffering from injuries incurred yesterday afternoon when a light sedan in which they were riding collided with a large, fully loaded gasoline truck at the intersection of Sixth street and Maryland avenue southwest.

The injured, who were rushed to the hospital by No. 1 rescue squad, are Louise Pumphries, 4 years old, of 919 Sixth street southwest, suffering from a possible fractured skull and internal injuries; Rose Bennett, 46, of the same address, possible fractured skull and ribs, and Percy Vernon, 45, of 1253 Sixth street northeast, fractured right arm, possible fractured skull and ribs.

Mrs. Ethel L. Pumphries, 24 years old, mother of the injured child, was driving the car when the collision occurred. She escaped unhurt.

SUICIDE AND CAPTURE END JAIL-BREAK TRY

Two Felons With Home-Made Guns Foiled and One Ends Life.

Sacramento, Calif., Feb. 27 (A.P.).—Armed with two homemade pistols that worked, 15 rounds of handmade ammunition and a knife, Lloyd Sampsell and Martin Colson, long-term prisoners, subdued guards and staged a spectacular but futile attempt to force their way out of Folsom Prison today.

The attempted break terminated with Colson's suicide in Warden Court Smith's office and Sampsell's surrender in the prison yard. Both men had attempted to escape previously.

Warden Smith sought tonight to learn how the pistols and ammunition were made. The guns were cleverly designed with pieces of steel drills used in the prison quarry, springs, bolts and other bits of metal assembled to discharge handmade bullets corresponding to those of .45 caliber.

Guard Faces Pistol.

Piecing together the rapid succession of events, Warden Smith told of the attempted break as follows:

Sampsell and Colson went to the guard captain's office when other prisoners were released to go to work in the quarry.

They said Colson had to go to the hospital. They were admitted to the line of prisoners reporting to the hospital.

At a door of the cell block Sampsell covered Guard J. W. Drullinger with his pistol and forced him to admit them to the administration building.

Once in the administration building the prisoners and captive guard entered the prison telephone exchange, in charge of Sherman Powell.

Ordered to Kill Warden.

"Call the warden and tell him to come down to the office," Sampsell said.

Powell obeyed.

The warden checked back on the call and received, no reply from the telephone exchange. Sensing something awry, the warden ordered extra guards on duty.

Sampsell ordered Powell to return to his switchboard and call the warden again. Sampsell then talked to the warden on a telephone in the exchange.

About that time a muffled shot was heard in the building.

Sampsell told the warden he wanted to talk to him out in the yard. He said he believed Colson had killed himself and that he, Sampsell, would go out into the yard, strip, disarm himself under watch of the many guards assembled on the walls and surrender.

The warden agreed to this plan and Sampsell was taken in charge and rushed to solitary confinement.

Siam-Japan Arms Scheme Charged

Agreement for Reshipping of Supplies Alleged by Chinese.

Shanghai (Tuesday), Feb. 28 (A.P.).—Allegations by the national government of Nanking that Siam and Japan have concluded a secret agreement whereby Japan hopes to obtain arms and ammunitions from abroad despite a possible anti-Japan embargo appeared in the vernacular newspapers today.

The newspapers claimed that Siam had agreed to purchase foreign war supplies and reship them to Japan, thereby avoiding embargoes on arms by other world powers in the event of such restrictions.

This agreement, the newspapers alleged, explained why Siam abstained from voting when the League of Nations recently adopted the report of the committee of nineteen disapproving Japan's policy in Manchuria.

Paris, Feb. 27 (A.P.).—President Lebrun today conferred upon United States Ambassador Edge the Grand Cross of the Legion of Honor, of which there have been only 12 American holders in the history of the order.

REVOLT RUMBLINGS MOUNTING IN CUBA

Rebel Bands Abound Through Interior, Is Claim; Third Train Is Derailed.

Havana, Feb. 27 (A.P.).—Week-end violence throughout Cuba had served tonight to stir anew rumors to the effect that something approximating revolution exists in the interior.

While official sources continued to credit such extra-legal activities as were admitted to Communists and the unemployed, the capital had word through devious channels that bands of rebels abound in Oriente, Camaguey and Santa Clara provinces.

In the third attempt within four days against properties of the United Railways, unidentified persons last night removed spikes from rails between Santa Clara and Esperanza.

A fast freight headed for Havana plunged off the unsupported rail, killing Engineer Jose Oviel and Conductor Estanislos Rodriguez, and wrecking the engine and at least two cars. An express messenger was slightly hurt.

Derailing Held Intentional.

Newspaper correspondents in Santa Clara reported there had been an explosion of dynamite, but officers of the United Railways here did not confirm this.

John H. Stevenson, assistant traffic manager, said the derailment of the train "was evidently intentional." He said it was hoped to have the track clear again tonight.

Last Friday bombs destroyed two small bridges near Gaspar, in Camaguey Province, interrupting traffic, and early Saturday morning another freight train was derailed near Jovellanos, at the Santa Clara-Matanzas Line.

Incendiarism Rampant.

Executives of the United Railways were understood this evening to be preparing a protest to the government.

While bombs were exploding yesterday in Santa Clara and Camaguey cities, wounding two persons in the latter, cane fields continued to burn. Incendiaries have fired millions of arrobas (25 pounds) of cane since the grinding season started, and special agents of the judicial department, aided by soldiers, have had small success in coping with the authors.

Among unconfirmed reports received in the capital today was one that several soldiers had been killed or wounded when they came upon rebels near Colisco, in Matanzas Province.

Perkins Succeeds Mitchell in Bank

Elected by National City Directors to Become Head of Board.

New York, Feb. 27 (A.P.).—The National City Bank abruptly switched chiefs today in a 10-minute meeting of the board of directors called at 9 a. m.

James H. Perkins, who first entered the National City Bank as vice president in 1914, leaving to become American Red Cross commissioner in Europe, became chairman of the board of directors, succeeding Charles E. Mitchell.

Mitchell had announced his resignation last night, as a result of criticism growing out of testimony by himself and other officials of the bank before the Senate Finance Committee last week. Mitchell did not attend the board meeting today, having returned to Washington for continuation of the hearings, and his resignation was promply accepted.

Another Factory Blast Kills 17 at Shanghai

Shanghai, Feb. 27 (A.P.).—Seventeen persons, 15 of them girls, were killed and 30 were injured today in an explosion of boilers at the Yunghao Rubber Factory in the Chinese section of Shanghai.

Eighty-one persons were killed last Tuesday at Shanghai when two gasoline vulcanizers in a Chinese rubber factory exploded.

Bern Death Kept Mystery By Cake and Bathing Suit

Servant in Jean Harlow's Mansion Tells of Woman's Visit on Day of Shooting, Scream and Evidence of Pool Tete-a-Tete.

Los Angeles, Feb. 27 (A.P.).—A woman's wet, yellow bathing suit, a feminine scream, a mysterious tete-a-tete on the edge of a private swimming pool, and the disappearance of a piece of cake linked into a strange chain of circumstances that kept the question of who killed Paul Bern, film executive, a live issue today.

These unexplained events, all occurring within 24 hours of the pistol shot last September 5 that killed the bridegroom of Jean Harlow, platinum blonde screen player, were told today by one of the servants at the Bern residence.

The scene of all of them, said Mrs. Winifred Carmichael, was the Paul Bern honeymoon home in Beverly Hills, in Benedict Canyon.

W. W. Widenham, foreman of the county grand jury, kept the death story a live mystery when he refused today to join in a scheduled statement from District Attorney Buron Fitts that the second investigation into the case corroborated the coroner's jury verdict of suicide.

Last week, the district attorney announced that, as a result of the second inquiry, in which witnesses included the widowed bride, he would issue a formal statement today that it had been determined beyond question that Bern was a suicide.

Widenham, declining to join in the proposed announcement, induced the district attorney to accompany him with O. C. Lawton, chairman of the Criminal Complaints Committee, for another examination of the premises of the residence.

Bern's body had been found September 5, with a bullet hole in the head, a pistol in one hand, and a mystic note in a small book, slumped in his dressing room.

Mrs. Carmichael, servant in the house, said today she had not been asked about these strange incidents at the time of the coroner's inquest, and therefore did not tell of them.

She said a strange woman visited Bern about sundown on the day which proved to be his last. This woman avoided the servants, she said. A mysterious woman's scream sounded in the house that night, she said. She discovered a wet bathing suit, yellow, and belonging to some strange woman, near the pool of the residence, and also two glasses indicating a tete-a-tete at the edge of the pool.

The cake mystery involved a piece of devil's food cake she had prepared and left in Jean Harlow's dressing room. Although Miss Harlow had not returned that night, the cake was missing in the morning, and Bern, she said, never ate cake.

In the luxurious home, which Bern had given Miss Harlow as a wedding gift, the suicide version of the tragedy today was enacted by Steven Nowakowski, investigator of the district attorney's office. The audience included the district attorney, the two grand jurymen and Chief Deputy District Attorney Robert F. Stewart.

The study was to ascertain how a bullet hole could be in the wall of the dressing closet if Bern had fired the fatal shot.

Nowakowski, about the same height as the late film executive, stood up in the dressing closet, and raised a pistol to his head at the angle which would have inflicted the wound.

Measuring the path the bullet would take from such a position the investigator found that it could have made the mark in the wall after passing through the head.

Foreman Widenham declined to comment on that matter.

RARE RULE INVOKED IN JUDGE OUSTING

(Associated Press.)

A rarely used formality last night was the last step remaining in taking before the Senate the House impeachment of Federal Judge Harold Louderback, of California.

The House named its managers yesterday and directed that the Senate, which must try the jurist for "misdemeanors in office," be notified formally of its action.

Some time today the five House managers will be received by the Senate. There they will folow the instructions given them yesterday by the House.

"Said managers are hereby instructed to appear before the Senate of the United States and at the bar thereof in the name of the House of Representatives and of all the people of the United States to impeach the said Harold Louderback of misdemeanors in office and to exhibit to the Senate of the United States the articles of impeachment against said judge which have been agreed upon by the House; and that the said managers do demand that the Senate take order for the appearance of said Harold Louderback to answer said impeachment, and demand his impeachment, conviction and removal from office."

The managers, named in the same House resolution, are Chairman Sumners, of the Judiciary Committee; Representative Browning, of Tennessee, and Tarver, of Georgia, Democrats, and La Guardia, of New York, and Sparks, of Kansas, Republicans. All voted for impeachment.

The managers were named when the House adopted resolutions presented by Sumners after the Judiciary Committee had approved them earlier in the day.

Sumners told the House the resolutions "followed the precedents." He said managers again would have to be named in the next House to prosecute the case when the Senate resolves itself into an impeachment court.

Military Engineers Are Host to Hurley

Secretary Pays Tribute to Quality of American Service Personnel.

The Washington post of the Society of American Military Engineers had as its guest of honor and speaker at the monthly luncheon in the Army and Navy Club yesterday the Secretary of War, Patrick J. Hurley.

In his talk Mr. Hurley stated that the United States is fortunate in having in its Army and Navy and Marine Corps such a high grade of personnel, and that he had considered it a "valuable and pleasant experience to have served with such a splendid group of men."

CIVIL SERVICE ROLL QUIZ ASKED IN HOUSE

Romjue Would Oust All Who Won Federal Jobs by Political Shifts.

Dismissal of all Government employes who for political reasons have been taken into the civil service from noncivil service status since November 8 was asked yesterday in a resolution introduced by Representative Milton A. Romjue (Democrat), Missouri.

The Romjue resolution asked appointment by the Speaker of a committee of five members of the House, who would "inquire into and ascertain all the facts pertaining to the matter," and report to the House.

The resolution provided "that all such transferees that have been so transferred for political reasons, be removed immediately from their positions."

"Such a practice and policy is not only a fraud on the Civil Service Department, but a subversion of the real purpose of the civil service laws," the resolution read.

He declared that the real purpose was to keep as many Republicans in office as possible, in order that their positions may not be filled by Democrats. He said the practice is "injurious to the public welfare and public service."

SIMON PUTS PARTIAL EMBARGO ON ARMS

navy easily would be able to seize shipments of arms to China and that if sometime that shipment happened to be in a British bottom it would be very difficult to escape involvement.

Opinion was divided among members of Parliament as to which country will be more affected by the government's decision. The Chinese ministry protested it was unfair, asserting that since Japan now is accepted as the aggressor, China should be permitted means of defense. The Japanese Embassy declined to discuss the matter.

It is believed that both countries are about equal in war orders already placed, but Japan is thought to be well stocked with finished material and well provided with means to finish materials. Her chief need is raw material.

This latter is not necessarily affected by the Simon policy. The arms order of 1931, upon which that policy is based, specifies only what may be termed fighting material, such as arms, munitions, airplanes, &c.

Orders Recently Placed.

An idea of orders for arms placed recently in Great Britain by the two belligerents was made available tonight. On December 6 there was an order for one million 7.9 millimeter cartridges; on December 14 there was another order for the same amount; on December 21 there was an order for twenty million cartridges, and on January 10 for fifteen million. It was understood that the orders were placed with Vickers, Ltd., and with the imperial chemical industries.

It is known that the British government hopes other nations will follow its embargo policy, and if an international agreement is not possible, it is thought almost certain that the British position will be reviewed, but it is recognized that any kind of embargo by a single nation probably would be impossible over a long period.

Geneva, Feb. 27 (A.P.).—The principle of the arms embargo as a weapon for the League of Nations to enforce peace was advanced today with the announcement that the governments of Great Britain and France are ready to cut off shipments of war materials to Paraguay and Bolivia.

Gran Chaco Dispute.

Capt. Anthony Eden, acting for both London and Paris, informed the league also that both countries are ready to consult the United States and other nonmembers of the league, "whose cooperation is essential" in this matter.

While talk of an embargo was directed explicitly at the countries in dispute over the Gran Chaco, it was evident that the league authorities considered that such a plan has significant bearing upon the trouble in Manchuria.

The Gran Chaco, they believe, may be a useful proving ground for experimenting with the embargo, with a possibility of its employment later in the Far East.

BORAH STRONG FOE OF ARMS EMBARGO

ments of arms and munitions to countries in conflict.

Speaker Garner, who is to be Vice President, said it would not be proper to enact the legislation this late in the session and let President Hoover issue embargo orders that might not be in accord with the President-elect's views.

The Idahoan made his position known in commenting on an announcement by Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, that his country would not authorize the issuance of licenses for shipments of arms or munitions to China or Japan pending an international solution of the Far East embargo question.

France also was understood to be ready to participate in any arms embargo proposed by the League of Nations for the Far East, provided the United States and Great Britain also participate.

"I'm not in favor of following suit," Borah asserted.

What position this country would take toward such a proposal was not made known. Interest was displayed at the State Department in the developments, but there was no comment.

Speaker Garner said he would not permit the embargo proposal to be brought up under a suspension of rules after the rules committee had declined previously to open hearings on a request by Chairman McReynolds of the Foreign Affairs Committee for legislative right of way for the resolution.

Previously action had been blocked on the proposal in the Senate by Bingham (Republican), Connecticut. Secretary Stimson then urged the House Foreign Affairs Committee behind closed doors to expedite it because of the conflicts in South America and in the Orient.

Before approving the proposal, the House Committee adopted an amendment by Representative Fish (Republican), New York, limiting the embargo power to countries in the Western Hemisphere. Originally it would have applied to the entire world.

The Federal Diary

By GEORGE D. RILEY

OF course you have your tickets, or will get them during the course of the day, so you can attend the first annual Federal Diary Spelling Bee this evening at 8 o'clock in the National Press Club auditorium. They can be had for the asking at The Washington Post want ad counter and each ticket is good for two admissions.

In case you can not attend but still want to hear the finals, just tune your radio dial to C. B. S. Station WJSV at 10:30 p. m. The preliminaries will not be broadcast.

Dr. P. J. Lennox, head of the English department, Catholic University, will pronounce for the finals. Miss Mary E. Bontz, English department, Strayer Business College, will conduct the preliminaries. Miss Mary E. Leeper, assistant to the secretary general, executive secretary, Association for Childhood Education, and Miss Theodora George, assistant to the secretary general, World Federation of Education, will be judges. George I. Kelley, general chairman, announced last night. Names of contestants were published yesterday.

Fifty-one years is a long time to work for Uncle Sam, but that is the record of Carleton C. Hungerford, who today retires from his position as chief clerk district six, third division, Railway Mail Service, in Washington, under the voluntary clause of the retirement act. He entered Postoffice Department service as a clerk in the Waterloo, Iowa, postoffice in 1882, and the Railway Mail Service as a railway postal clerk in 1885 and was transferred to division headquarters, Chicago, in 1887. In 1912 he was transferred to the bureau of the Second Assistant Postmaster General as supervisor of mail weighing, which office he held until the World War, when he resigned and was commissioned captain in the Signal Corps, from which corps he received honorable discharge in 1920. Capt. Hungerford then returned to the Railway Mail Service, Washington, where he has remained until his retirement today.

THEY say if you would know a man better, learn his hobby. The hobby of Henry A. Wallace, Agriculture's incoming big gun, is figures and charts. He's perfectly at home with both and with figures he's conceded to be a wizard.

You can put Henry Wallace down as a "dirt farmer." No dirt farmer knows the dirt farmer's problems any better than Henry Wallace. Read his own textbook, "Corn and Corn Growing," and be convinced, or Paul de Kruif's "Hunger Fighters," either one.

In his 44 years, Henry Wallace has crowded a lot of energy into a busy life. Yet, with all his activity close to the soil, we can speak of and to Mr. Wallace as a fellow Fourth Estater, because of his editorship on Wallace's Farmer and Iowa Homestead.

His father's service and achievements as Apriculture's Secretary will form a beacon, challenging the best efforts of the son.

A WINTER GARDEN.

Diary Prize Winner

Mrs. Floy Boyer.

Mrs. Boyer has been in Federal Service nearly four years. She is a former teacher from Harrisburg, Pa. The winter garden she wrote about is composed of plants from the woodlands of her father's farm, near Harrisburg. The plants were assembled by her sister-in-law, Mrs. Guy A. Dimm.

Each week the Federal Diary offers $5 in merchandise for the most readable contributions to this column. Have you tried your hand yet? It's easy. See if it isn't.

We finally found a government employee yesterday who hasn't been reading the Federal Diary. He is A. P. Chew, Agriculture. It may be we can get the back copies for him, so he will not have missed so much.

And right here we'd quote a verse on modesty but we don't know any.

Incinerators' Closing Is Opposed by Citizens

Opposing vigorously the bill to close the two new incinerators, built a few years ago at a cost of approximately $100,000, the Georgetown Citizens Association last night asked Senator Capper, chairman of the Senate District Committee, to block the bill which has already passed the House.

A protest also was made by the association against the unsanitary conditions said to exist at the Jackson School. It was declared that the sanitary conveniences at the school were old, inadequate, and in disrepair.

JAPANESE, BALKED, SHIFT DRIVE POINT

Warring Nations Join To Get Arms Price Cut

London, Feb. 27 (A.P.).—There is an amusing side even to the buying of bullets for the war in the Far East.

Purchasing agents for China and Japan met the other day in the reception room of one of the big munitions firms. They fell to talking as friends, and finally compared the prices they were paying. The result was that they went in to see the munitions maker together, put up a united front and went away with a 40 per cent cut in prices.

Peiping, Feb. 27 (A.P.).—Checkmated at the Pass of Paishihtsumen, the Japanese suddenly changed their line of attack tonight from Leipiao and Chaoyang toward Tamiao with the object of seizing Chienping, about halfway between Chaoyang and Chihfeng.

This was revealed tonight in dispatches reaching here from the Chaoyang sector, where the invaders a few days ago pointed one of four spear heads toward the interior of the Chinese province of Jehol.

The new Japanese thrust, if successful, would bring the attackers within striking distance either of Lingyuan, about 75 miles southwest of Chaoyang, or Chihfeng, another strategic point more than 100 miles northwest of Chaoyang.

Nineteenth Army Appears.

Meanwhile, Marshal Chang Hsiao-Liang's Nineteenth Route Army, which jumped into action for the first time since Japan began efforts to subdue Jehol with the aim of adding it to the Manchukuo government in Manchuria, fought tenaciously to block the advance of the Japanese brigade of infantry at Shamoshan Pass, a few miles north of the Great Wall and west of the Manchurian frontier.

Severe fighting continued tonight among the hills near Tamiao, but the Chinese communique claimed that the defence line remained intact after several hours of bitter conflict.

All attempts to turn the Chinese right flank ended in failure, the dispatches said.

Shorten Defense Line.

Meanwhile, Chinese volunteers who evacuated Kailu, in northeastern Jehol, before the onslaught of Gen. Mogi's cavalry detachment, had fallen back still farther tonight in order to shorten their line of defense. They were making a stubborn stand against the invaders.

Hsiawa, a small Mongolian village at the edge of Gobi Desert between Kailu and Chihfeng, was the point at which the Chinese volunteers were rallying for the second time, after battles on Sunday.

Military observers in Peiping believe that the Chinese main line of defense, extending roughly from a point north of Chihfeng southward almost to the Great Wall remained virtually untouched tonight and that the Japanese will not be able to reach Chihfeng except with great cost.

Red Cross Speeds Work.

With the arrival here of the first wounded soldiers from Jehol, Red Cross activities were being speeded.

On other fronts also the Japanese were not advancing with the ease that marked the first few days of the invasion.

In central Jehol, at the triangle formed by Lingyuan, Chihfeng and Jehol City, the Chinese were in possession of mountain passes difficult to storm. The Japanese threw artillery shells into the Pass of Paishihtsumen, but the Chinese were holding on.

Casualty lists are not dependable, but Chinese reports place the Japanese losses in the Chaoyang sector at upward of 1,000. Six hundred were said to have been killed in a single battle near Lingyuan.

Vast Stores Captured.

The American consulate at Mukden reported to the legation here today that the Japanese military were freely predicting they would "clear up the difficulties in Jehol with Chinese irregulars in a week."

The Chinese meanwhile reported that guerilla bands, becoming active again in Manchuria proper, since the Japanese are engaged in Jehol, had reoccupied six villages temporarily. A force totaling 60,000 men was said to have been operating over the border, occupying Mishan, Muling, Hulin, Lishuchen, Ningan, Paoching and other villages in their march.

Their report claimed the capture of 282 Japanese men and officers with 14 field guns, 16 mountain guns, 13 machine guns, 1,200 rifles and 600,000 rounds of ammunition.

These unverified dispatches said twenty Japanese were executed on the spot.

Mayor Will Seek Power Rate Cut

Directed to Ask Company for Hearing on Scale in Kensington.

Mayor Alfred Geiger of Kensington, Md., at a meeting of the town council last night, was empowered to seek a hearing from the Potomac Electric Power Co. at which to ask reduction of the town electric light rate to a closer approximation of the District rate, which is one-fifth of the Kensington rate. It was pointed out that the present rate has been paid by the town since 1926 with no reduction.

Members of the council also pointed out that the town pays $5 a month for each of its 70 electric light poles which will net the company about $100 profit on each pole, and that the town pays for replacement of four lamps on each pole while the average replacement actually is two lamps.

The council also voted to have the books of the town audited from July 31 to March 15.

New White House Daughter Is Shown as Making History

Anna Roosevelt Dall Held to Measure Up to High Progressive Standards of Her Predecessors; Who They Were, What They Did Told.

By VYLLA POE WILSON.

Among the cards that fate will deal to the American people after March 4 will be one on which is depicted the new daughter of the White House, the latest of a long line of gracious young women who have made the history of the mellow colonial mansion fraught with romance and joy. When Anna Roosevelt Dall (Mrs. Curtis Dall) takes her place as the first young lady of the Nation, Saturday, it will be the first time in a dozen years that this important factor in White House life has been represented at the Executive Mansion. The last President and First Lady to have had daughters were President and the first Mrs. Woodrow Wilson.

The part that tall, willowy Anna Dall is destined to play in the history of the National Capital for the next four years recalls to mind the brilliant chapters other daughters of the White House have added to Washington social history.

Just as Anna Dall is representative of the school of progressive young women of this age, so were the company of her fair predecessors—gentle Maria Monroe, the first President's daughter to be married in the White House; dreamy Nellie Grant; the magnetic Alice Roosevelt of the Roosevelt administration; the gayly active Wilson girls, two of whom made White House wedding history.

The invitations that are going out to the new President's daughter from Washington young people to dance, dine, speak and work and to take part in their sports are not "duty" invitations at all. Young Washington approves of her. They like her typical American girl good looks and the way she dresses and her frank, cordial manners.

Daughters of Wilson.

As Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, widow of Speaker Longworth, the White House "Princess Alice" maintains her Washington home on Massachusetts avenue, where she lives the greater part of the year with her small daughter, Paulina. There she is sometimes visited by her sister, Mrs. Richard Derby, of New York, who was Miss Ethel Roosevelt, the White House debutante of the last year of the Theodore Roosevelt administration.

Some of the contemporaries of the President's daughters of the Wilson administration will gather together to "welcome home" Mrs. William Gibbs McAdoo, who was Miss Eleanor Wilson, when she comes to Washington with her husband at the new session of Congress. There will be no formal entertaining on account of the recent death of the thirteenth White House bride, Mrs. Frances Bowes Sayre, who was Miss Jessie Wilson. Miss Margaret Wilson will come also to Washington and spend much of her time here when the McAdoos arrive, it is learned. The daughters of President Wilson were in many ways in advance of the era in which they reigned in the White House—prewomen suffrage days.

Miss Helen Taft.

Miss Helen Taft, now Mrs. Frederick Manning, was a school girl when her father was inaugurated. While Mrs. William Howard Taft adhered to the principle that the White House should be the social as well as the official center of the nation, Miss Taft wanted to complete her studies. But her duties as a daughter came first, and when her mother needed her she left Bryn Mawr College after the first year to take her place at her mother's side as a real coadjutor First Lady, although she was only about 18 years of age. Miss Taft was a debutante that year, and she had a good time, too, in spite of her studious disposition. When her father left the White House she returned to Bryn Mawr.

To Abigail Adams Smith, wife of Col. William S. Smith, daughter of the second President of the United States and Mrs. John Adams, belongs the honor of being the first daughter of the White House and also the first in the long line of Presidents' daughters.

The very first White House daughters really to put their imprint on the social history of the White House were those charming young matrons of the era of Jeffersonian simplicity, daughters of Thomas Jefferson, third President of the United States, and of his wife, who died nineteen years before he came to the Presidency. The eldest of these sisters, Martha Jefferson Randolph (Mrs. Thomas Macon Randolph, jr.), is better known to history than her younger sister, Maria Jefferson Eppes (Mrs. John Eppes), for Mrs. Eppes died during the first administration of Jefferson.

Social life in the White House in the Monroe administration was enhanced by the presence there of Eliza Monroe Hay (Mrs. George Hay, of Richmond, Va.), eldest daughter of President and Mrs. Monroe, who had been educated at Mme. Campan's celebrated school in Paris. Mrs. Hay, who was a very beautiful woman, acted as hostess for Mrs. Monroe many times and caused quite a tempest in the early social history teapot over the question of the ladies of the White House paying calls. The other daughter of the Monroe household, dainty, petite Maria Hester Monroe, became the bride of her cousin, Samuel L. Gouverneur, of New York.

The devotion of Letitia Tyler Semple, daughter of President John Tyler and the first Mrs. Tyler, made a very fair leaf in the history of the White House.

Another devoted daughter of the first Mrs. Tyler who spent much time at the White House was the eldest daughter, Mary, who married Mr. Henry Lightfoot Jones, of Charles City County, Va., at an early age. She died soon after Mrs. Tyler. Another daughter, Alice, also formed the little company who looked after the critically ill Mrs. Tyler. Alice Tyler married years after her mother's death the Rev. Henry M. Denison, of Wyoming, Pa. Mrs. Denison died of yellow fever and left a tiny daughter, who was reared and educated by her aunt, Mrs. Letitia Tyler Semple.

Was Bride at 22.

"Miss Betty," Elizabeth Taylor Bliss, the real First Lady of the Land of the Zachary Taylor administration, was a bride of only 22 when she took her place at the head of the inaugural festivities with her father, because of the absence of her mother, who found traveling too hard at that time of year to leave Baton Rouge for Washington.

Mary Abigail Fillmore, the only daughter of President and Mrs. Fillmore, took her place as First Lady of the Land after the death of her mother. She was an accomplished linquist and musician. But at the age of 22, within a year of her mother's death, she died from an attack of cholera.

"We are plain people from the mountains. I hope too much will not be expected of us," said Martha Johnson Patterson, daughter of President Andrew Johnson and his invalid wife, when they arrived at the White House. Mrs. Patterson, wife of the senator from Tennessee, and her sister, Mary Johnson Stover, a widow, faced the task before them in the manner American women have been used to facing tasks, social and domestic and official, from the beginning of our history. Mrs. Patterson was not unfamiliar with the White House, for as a student at Georgetown Convent she had spent her holidays there as the guest of President and Mrs. Polk. After the clouds which followed the Civil War lifted somewhat the White House resumed something of its old-time social brilliancy.

Nellie Grant Popular.

No young lady of the White House ever had a better time than did Miss Nellie Grant, the daughter of President and Mrs. U. S. Grant, who became the seventh White House bride May 21, 1874, at the age of 19, when she became the bride of Algernon Sartoris, aged 23, an Englishman.

Little Fanny Hayes was, of course, too young to take her place socially as the daughter of the White House, but her father, President Hayes, often went in search of his little daughter to bring her in to see the pretty dresses of the ladies.

At the inauguration of Garfield Fanny Hayes and Mollie Garfield, the new President's daughter, stood together. Mollie Garfield walked to school every morning. In spite of her youth Mollie Garfield was a devoted daughter, and was a comfort to her mother when the assassin's bullet fatally wounded her father.

Nellie Arthur was a school girl, too, when her father became President. But she delighted in the entertainments and often appeared with her aunt, Mrs. McElroy, who acted as her father's hostess for the teas and parties in the White House.

Ruth Cleveland, the first child born to President and Mrs. Grover Cleveland, was something of a queen in her own right as the baby daughter of the White House. The other baby daughters of President and Mrs. Cleveland were Esther and Marion.

The part that Mary Harrison McKee, daughter of President and Mrs. Harrison, played in making things run smoothly at the White House is well within the memory of many in Washington who were on the White House lists in that administration.

MELLON IS NAMED IN $220,000,000 SUIT

Charles A. Russell, former solicitor for the Federal Power Commission, and Joseph Stein, alleged that the Federal authorities wrongfully permitted the foreign companies to make amended tax returns based on the revenue act of 1921 instead of the acts of 1916, 1917 and 1918. It was contended that companies had refused to make tax payments on the latter three years.

The suit claims that Mellon conferred with steamship officials during March, 1927, "for the purpose of assisting said companies in attempts to defeat the claim of the United States."

The suit, while filed in Olson's name, is in behalf of the people of the United States, so that any damages awarded would revert to the Treasury Department.

When questioned concerning the suit, Attorney Russell said the plaintiff resigned his position with the Senate committee about two weeks ago. Russell also declared he was doing some work for President-elect Roosevelt, but refused to divulge its nature.

The suit itself, it was learned, is an outgrowth of the failure to obtain congressional action last summer on information which had been placed before the House and is said to have the support of several members of Congress. It is instituted under a statute of 1863 which prohibits the defrauding of the Government through trickery.

BANKRUPTCY RELIEF PASSED BY SENATE

(Associated Press.)

A sweeping bankruptcy relief measure providing machinery for individual and farm debtors to obtain extensions or cash settlements and for railroads to readjust downward their capital structures to avoid receiverships was passed by the Senate last night by a vote of 44 to 8.

Approval of the measure followed eight and one-half hours of debate that carried the weary legislators into a night session. It paved the way for consideration today of urgent appropriation bills and conference reports.

The bankruptcy bill, sponsored by Senator Hastings (Republican), Delaware, now goes to the House, which has passed a bill on the same subject, but radically different. The two proposals will be sent to conference for composition of differences, but whether an agreement can be reached before March 4 is uncertain.

Opponents of Bill.

Opposition to the bill in the Senate centered principally on the railroad feature. This was approved, 42 to 15, splitting parties and factions wide apart.

The opponents claimed this section, offered by Hastings as an amendment to the bill reported by the Judiciary Committee, had not received committee consideration and the subject was of such wide importance that hasty action was unwise.

Proponents, including Democratic Leader Robinson and Senator Couzens (Republican), Michigan, argued the roads were badly in need of the legislation if wholesale receiverships were to be avoided.

Twenty-one Republicans and a similar number of Democrats voted for the railroad amendment. Nine Democrats and six Republicans opposed it.

The eight who opposed the bill on final passage were Bratton, Bulow, Dill, George, Neely, Russell and Trammell, Democrats, and Brookhart, Republican.

May Petition Courts.

Hastings withdrew, at the request of Robinson, another important amendment which would have brought corporations other than railroads within the scope of the legislation.

Under the first section of the measure, an individual debtor who can obtain the consent of a majority of his secured and unsecured creditors to an extension or cash settlement of his obligations may petition the Federal courts for approval of such settlement.

The farm debtor could either proceed under that section for relief or band together with 14 other farmers in his county to obtain similar relief through the appointment by the courts of a conciliation commissioner.

Under the railroad clause, carriers desiring to avoid receivership could petition the courts and the Interstate Commerce Commission for permission to reorganize their financial set-ups, providing they could obtain an agreement with a certain percentage of their creditors.

GERMANY'S CAPITOL SWEPT BY FLAMES

perhaps been placed in the burning heaps. Authorities suspected a Communist plot.

Van Der Luebbe, whose passport indicated he lived in Amsterdam, was discovered running from the hall by a squad of police who were searching the building. He admitted having used his shirt to start one fire.

From the knowledge he displayed of the arrangement of the ground floor, police deduced he must have had several accomplices, but they said he refused to disclose their names. He said he had set fire to the former kaiser's palace Saturday night.

Police were informed that some Communist members of the Reichstag were seen hurriedly leaving the building shortly before the fire started.

Damaged in September.

The interior of the plenary hall including wooden seats, the presidential tribune, and the public galleries were completely burned out and otherwise damaged by falling iron supports and water which was ankle deep in the corridors.

Early estimates of the damage ranged up to several million marks. (The current value of the mark is 24 cents.) Nobody was injured except one fireman, who was overcome for a short time by smoke. All the house officials had gone home and only the watchmen and a number of legislators who were working in their offices were in the building. All escaped.

The last previous attempt to damage the building was in September, 1929, when a bomb exploded in the cellar, with only slight damage.

A thrill of horror and apprehension ran through Berlin and the country when the news spread that the costly Reichstag Building on the banks of the Spree was ablaze. Many were incredulous until a glow in the western sky and great showers of sparks verified the reports.

Populace Apprehensive.

Coming shortly after an incendiary fire on Saturday night in the historic palace of the Hohenzollerns on the Lustgarten, the Reichstag blaze led horrified citizens to ask what destruction was threatened next.

Thousands of persons gathered in the Tiergarten, adjacent to the structure, to view the blazing parliament house, on the front portal of which is carved in stone "Dem Deutschen Volke"—to the German people.

In less than a week the Reichstag election will be held, and the question was raised as to where the newly elected body will be able to meet. It will be months before the damaged sections can be restored.

The conflagration was started in 14 different places throughout the building by means of oil-soaked heaps of coal waste and shavings.

In political circles it was believed that a widespread ban on the Communist party was imminent.

The building, which measures 420 by 300 feet, was built at a cost of more than $6,000,000. The front of it faces the Place of the Republic, and is accessible by way of a ramp and a wide staircase. In the front part is the large Reichstag Hall, used for plenary meetings.

The fire started after 8 o'clock last night. Chancellor Hitler and Vice Chancellor Franz von Papen were notified shortly after the close of a cabinet session. They went to one of the lower rooms which was not threatened, and received a report of the situation.

Rum and Two Men Are Taken in Hotel

U. S. Agents Start Drive on Violators Coming for Inaugural.

Several cases of alleged "choice" liquor were seized and two men arrested yesterday by Federal agents in the first of a series of drives on prohibition violators supposed to be converging on Washington for the inauguration. The arrest and seizure were made in a downtown hotel.

The prohibition agents and two Washington policemen secreted themselves in a room in the hotel to await the "delivery" of an order telephoned to an establishment reputed to handle one of the best assortments of illicit beverages in the city.

When the transaction had been completed the officers placed the men under arrest. A large sum of money, marked bills said to have been used in the transaction, was taken as evidence. At the Third Precinct Station the men gave their names as Arthur Bliss, of 1723 G street northwest, and Harold Robinson, of Baltimore, Md. They were released under $1,500 bonds.

Y. W. C. A. Aids Search For Inaugural Rooms

Miss Mary Temple Hill, in charge of the rooms registry service at the Y. W. C. A., is conducting a one-woman Inaugural Housing Committee of her own every day at "Y" headquarters, Seventeenth and K streets northwest. With every hotel room in Washington reserved for the big event, people are turning to the Y. W. C. A. for rooms in large numbers daily.

The rooms registry service is keeping open every night until 10 o'clock or later in order to accommodate visitors.

Feiker Talks Tonight At Telephone Session

Frederick M. Feiker, director of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, Department of Commerce, will deliver an address tonight before employes of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. and friends in the auditorium of McKinley High School, Second and T streets northeast.

The event is in the nature of a "get-together" of all telephone employes in Washington. Other features of the program will be a band concert by the Tall Cedars Military Band, a song recital by the Telephone Company's Glee Club, and the showing of sound motion pictures about the telephone industry.

fully protected President in peacetime history.

Maj. Gen. B. D. Foulois, chief of Army Air Corps, yesterday issued orders for the airplane portion of the parade. More than 100 planes from Quantico and Langley Field will arrive over Alexandria in time to streak over the White House at 3 p. m. Saturday.

Akron to Come Here.

The planes will fly from the Capitol to the White House over the parade route. With them will be the Navy airship Akron and the Army dirigible TC 71.

Work of installing amplifiers in the stands so that all seat holders will be able to hear the new President take the oath of office and deliver his inaugural address began yesterday.

The inaugural ball committee, of which Admiral H. V. Butler is chairman, yesterday began the decoration of the Auditorium with flags and bunting for the great dance which begins at 10 p. m. Saturday.

Chaffee Camp Veterans Will March Saturday

Among the groups which will march in the parade Saturday will be Gen. Adna R. Chaffee Camp and District of Columbia Camp of the National Indian War Veterans. Phineas Town is commander of Chaffee Camp.

The veterans who will march in this group served under such distinguished commanders as Generals Custer, Crook, Miles and Terry in famous campaigns against Geronimo, Chief Joseph, Sitting Bull, Crazy Horse and Roman Nose during the Nation's period of Western expansion.

Schedule of Inaugural Events Next Saturday

The scheduled time for the various events of the inauguration Saturday were announced yesterday by the Inaugural Committee. They are as follows:

1:12—1:25 p. m.—Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt leave for White House.

2—4:30 p. m.—Inaugural parade.

10 p. m.—Inaugural ball.

TRAFFIC OFFICIALS ADDRESS CITIZENS

Conditions Are Pointed Out; Mid-City Group Raps Appropriations Cut.

A comprehensive summary of Washington's transportation problems was given by officials of the Public Utilities Commission and Washington transportation companies last night at a meeting of the Midcity Citizens Association.

William A. Roberts, assistant corporation counsel for the commission, described present traffic conditions in the District and urged a study of proposals contained in the merger bill, permitting the contemplated merger of District transportation companies.

Other talks on transportation were given by E. D. Merril, president of the Washington Rapid Transit Co.; C. Melvin Sharpe, assistant to the president, Washington Railway & Electric Co., and Robert E. Dalgleish, chief engineer of the Capital Traction Co.

Earlier in the meeting the association adopted a resolution urging reduction in the width of the sidewalk around Logan Circle from 15 to 5 feet to increase the width of the street from 36 to 46 feet, and widening Thirteenth street from Massachusetts avenue to Logan Circle from 32 feet to 70 feet with 40 per cent of the cost to be carried by adjacent property owners.

Another resolution opposes the $6,500,000 cut in the District appropriation bill, and approves action taken yesterday by the subcommittee reinserting in the District appropriation bill $9,500,000 as the Federal Government's part in defraying District expenses.

Historic Family Dutch Bible Chosen for Oath

Hyde Park, N. Y., Feb. 27 (A.P.).—President-elect Roosevelt today selected a familiar chapter from Paul's First Epistle to the Corinthians as the place in the old family Dutch Bible where he will place his hand when he takes the oath of Presidency next Saturday.

He named chapter 13 as he packed up, in heavy writing paper, the historic Bible for personal transportation to Washington. The book in Dutch carries on its fly leaf the record of births and marriages in the Roosevelt family from 1670 to 1840 and came down to Mr. Roosevelt from his father.

SPEEDY ACTION SEEN IN ROOSEVELT PLANS

H. Dern, of Utah, Secretary of War; Henry A. Wallace, of Iowa, Secretary of Agriculture; Miss Perkins and Mr. Ickes.

Keenly alive to the pressing economic situation, there is every sign that Mr. Roosevelt is preparing for prompt action. However, he is covering it all up with light-hearted joviality in the presence of callers as he goes about final preparations for the Presidency.

He is in frequent communication with party leaders in Washington. He has been consulting over the week-end with Prof. Raymond Moley, economic adviser. Mr. Woodin, about whom much of the domestic economic situation will focus in the next few months, went to Washington last night direct from the Roosevelt conference room. He will return for further consultation with the next President immediately.

Whatever he has in mind, and his friends believe it is plenty, Mr. Roosevelt is guardedly holding his fire until after he takes the oath on the front steps of the Capitol next Saturday noon.

In naming the veteran Senator Swanson as Secretary of the Navy to newspapermen today, Roosevelt referred to him as "my old colleague."

Swanson is ranking member of the Senate Naval Committee, as well as the powerful Foreign Relations Committee. He is regarded by Roosevelt as exceptionally well qualified for his task.

The President-elect emphasized to newspapermen that party affiliation of Ickes had no part in his selection or in the choice of others known to be of Republican hue—William H. Woodin and Henry A. Wallace. The latter two were loyal supporters of Roosevelt in the campaign, as well as of Alfred E. Smith in 1928.

BANKS IN 2 STATES CURB WITHDRAWALS

Some Ohio and Indiana Institutions Act as Ford Tries to Help Michigan.

(Associated Press.)

Banks in two States clamped restrictions on withdrawals yesterday, as in a third, Michigan, one of the Nation's wealthiest men threw the weight of his millions into the situation.

The Michigan financier was Henry Ford, and his action formed the nucleus of two new banks in Detroit. Ford and his son, Edsel, announced they would provide capital of $8,250,000 to open the banks tomorrow.

The banks will be constructed on the assets of the First National Bank and the Guardian National Bank, with depositors given the right to withdraw immediately up to 30 per cent of their deposits in addition to 5 per cent previously authorized. Officials of the banks have obtained a $78,000,000 loan from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to be used in forming the new institutions.

The Fords reserved the right to name the official personnel of the new banks, and said they would be "the type of financial structure that will merit public faith and enable the city of industrial Detroit to rehabilitate itself."

Regarding the 30 per cent withdrawal privileges, President John C. Hicks, of the Michigan State Bankers Association, said Michigan banks outside of Detroit would continue efforts to obtain release of 100 per cent of the reserves they have on deposit in Detroit banks.

A State-wide banking holiday was declared in Michigan two weeks ago, and financial leaders expressed hope that the new Detroit banks would help to ease the entire situation.

Twenty Ohio banks—eighteen of them in Cleveland, Akron, Dayton and Youngstown—placed restrictions at their opening yesterday on withdrawals of deposits in a night session, the Legislature hurriedly passed two emergency bills requested by the governor, who immediately signed the measures. The number of banks taking such action increased during the day. They limited withdrawals to from 1 to 5 per cent.

National and State banks in some Indiana cities also imposed 5 per cent restrictions on withdrawals. Indianapolis banks announced such action.

Knoxville, Iowa, Feb. 27 (A.P.).—Jack McCoy, of Saginaw, Mich., indicted for the alleged assault and kidnaping of Will Way, Bussy banker and farmer, today was sentenced to five years' imprisonment in Fort Madison Penitentiary when he pleaded guilty to a charge of kidnaping.

Hero's Job

Veteran of Generals' Staffs Is Mailing Clerk, at $99.75, and Glad.

Hero of two wars and member of the staffs of five British generals, including Gen. Allenby, leader of the campaign on the Holy Land during the World War, Capt. James D'Orsay Murray now serves as a mail clerk at $99.75 a month at the District Building and is glad to have the job.

Capt. Murray holds prized medals of valor from the United States, Great Britain, France and Italy and is a cavalier of the Order of the Crown of Italy.

Despite the turn in his fortunes, however, the captain is not defeated and looks forward to better times.

"I hope there will be better things in sight," he said, "but right now a man can only be thankful for any sort of work. Life must have its low places as well as its heights, and we can only do the best we can wherever we find ourselves and be content with what we have."

FERRUCCIO VITALE, ARCHITECT, IS DEAD

Former Military Attache of Italy Was Member of Fine Arts Board.

Ferruccio Vitale, a former member of the Fine Arts Commission, who as a landscape architect aided in the designing of Meridian Hill Park, died Sunday at New York of pneumonia. He was 58 years old and was a member of the Architectural Commission of the Century of Progress Exposition in Chicago.

Mr. Vitale served here as Italian military attache in 1898-99. He became a naturalized citizen in 1921. President Coolidge appointed him to the Fine Arts Commission in September, 1927. He served on that body until last April.

While a member of the commission he was concerned with such projects at the Mount Vernon Memorial boulevard, the Arlington Memorial Bridge, the Triangle development and the Union Station plaza.

He is survived by his widow and two children.

WITHDRAWAL LIMIT PLANNED FOR BANKS

Maryland's Proposed New Law Would Give State Right to Fix Curb.

(By Staff Correspondent.)

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 27.—Maryland's proposed new bank law is tentatively drafted to provide that the banking commissioner shall fix the percentage each depositor will be allowed to withdraw from State banks when the banking holiday ends, it was learned tonight.

National banks will not be affected unless they ask the comptroller of the currency to fix a limit to withdrawals, but the law will apply to all State banks. The law will also provide that the commissioner may take over any bank and operate it, fixing the salary of officials.

The usual limit of withdrawals is expected to be set at 5 per cent of the customers' balance. This limit will apply for one month, after which it may be raised or lowered. The board of directors of the bank will act in conjunction with State officials in setting the withdrawal limit.

The limit will apply to both savings and checking accounts. Banks keeping their reserves in other institutions will also be bound by the limit of the bank of deposit, it was learned. It is expected that the limit of withdrawals, while flexible throughout the state, will be the same for all banks in any one community.

The limit on withdrawals will not apply to deposits made after the banks reopen. The full amount of deposits made after the end of the banking holiday may be taken out at any time. This will require banks to keep separate accounts for each depositor, one of his balance before the closure and one for the later deposits and withdrawals.

The new banking measure was not offered to the Legislature tonight as changes in the tentative draft are still being made. It may be presented tomorrow, however, when a committee of citizens will consider it. Extension of the bank holiday beyond the original limit of Wednesday was believed to be a possibility here tonight.

Milk Truck Driver Dies In Crash With Trolley

Richmond, Va., Feb. 27 (A.P.).—J. B. Ford, 30, was almost instantly killed and Joseph Charles Driscoll, 25, seriously injured today in a collision between a milk truck driven by Ford and a Richmond-Petersburg trolley car.

The southbound car hit the truck when it attempted to cross the tracks at Stop 8½, demolishing the motor vehicle and doing considerable damage to the electric car. Passengers on the car were shaken up.

EMERGENCY BANKING ACTION.

Two more States are involved in banking difficulties. A number of institutions in both Ohio and Indiana have found it necessary to limit withdrawals temporarily until legislation can be enacted for the protection of depositors. In Maryland Gov. Ritchie is hastening the enactment of protective legislation before the bank holiday comes to an end on Wednesday. The situation in Michigan has been substantially improved with the aid of Henry Ford, who is advancing $8,250,000 in new capital to the two large banks which are undergoing reorganization.

In each case constructive measures have been taken to avoid losses. Withdrawals were halted before the assets of the banks could be depleted by timorous depositors. Any other course would have meant disaster. Under the restrictions being worked out depositors in honestly managed banks may expect to obtain their funds.

Banking difficulties in one State lead to difficulties in other States. Alarm has appeared in some sections of the country in spite of the impregnable strength of American banks as a whole. Depositors fail to realize that they accentuate the difficulties and make banking holidays more certain by suddenly demanding their money.

Congress might have prevented this situation by the enactment of constructive legislation a year or two years ago. But Congress has refused to face realities. Even now the House of Representatives refuses to pass the Glass banking bill. The House deliberately allowed a banking crisis to develop without doing anything to stop it. Banks with extensive resources were willing to go to the aid of smaller institutions that were in difficulties. But Congress refused to permit branch banking or to ameliorate the situation in any other way. Now emergency action must be taken.

VETO THE VETERANS' DOLE.

President Hoover is urged by the National Economy League to veto the appropriation bill carrying nearly $1,000,000,000 for "relief" of veterans. It is very unusual for the President to return an appropriation bill to Congress, yet President Hoover did not hesitate to do so when that body wrote an unconstitutional provision into the first deficiency bill. So far as the national welfare is concerned, there is much greater justification for a veto of this measure, which is loaded with unwarranted gratuities to veterans who are not suffering from war disability.

If this bill is allowed to stand as written by Congress it will absorb nearly one-half of the expected revenue for 1934. It will put an intolerable burden upon the Government at a time when Federal credit is strained, when taxpayers are in distress, and when the need for relief of actual suffering is greatly augmented. President Hoover's recommendations for economy in the Veterans' Administration were ignored. The demand of the public for abolition of veterans' doles was unheeded. Congress stands in contempt of public opinion for its surrender to the veterans' lobby. Under the circumstances Mr. Hoover would be fully justified in using his veto power.

Such a course would throw the whole issue into the new Congress, which must struggle with the problem of raising money to meet these unwarranted expenditures. The new Congress will have the advice of a joint congressional committee which has studied the entire problem of veterans' benefits and is about ready to make its report. Let the new Congress and President-elect Roosevelt decide whether they can permit the continuance of doles to veterans who were not injured in the war. If President Hoover would make an issue of this lavish extravagance, his stand would drive timorous politicians into more careful consideration of the public welfare.

THE DISTRICT BILL.

The Senate committee on appropriations, in approving the District appropriation bill, has raised the Federal contribution from $6,500,000, as fixed by the House, to $9,500,000. This action gives solid assurance that the attempt of the House to discriminate against District taxpayers will be frustrated, by allotting to the Federal Government a fair share of the burden of maintaining the local government. The honest and fair division of the burden is upon a 50-50 basis, and ever since Congress departed from that rule there has been an effort to saddle upon local taxpayers a portion of the burden that should be carried by all citizens of the United States in maintaining the national seat of government.

The Senate is compelled to make a fight every year to prevent this injustice. If it will hold fast this year it can compel the House to come to better terms.

In dealing with the question of meters for taxicabs the Senate committee struck out the House prohibition against meters, but provided that if meters should be ordered installed the rates shall not exceed 25 cents for the first two miles or more than 10 cents a mile for longer distances.

Several urgent District items eliminated by the House are restored by the Senate committee. The total proposed appropriation for the next fiscal year as approved by the Senate committee is well within reason if the contribution of the Federal Government is made $9,500,000. Within that total it is possible to keep pace with District growth and necessities without doing injustice to taxpayers.

SENATORS IN THE CABINET.

President-elect Roosevelt has announced that Claude A. Swanson will be Secretary of the Navy and Harold Ickes Secretary of the Interior. The choice of Cordell Hull as Secretary of State, William H. Woodin as Secretary of the Treasury, George H. Dern as Secretary of War, James A. Farley as Postmaster General, and Henry A. Wallace as Secretary of Agriculture has already been announced. It is expected that the Cabinet will be completed by the appointment of Thomas J. Walsh as Attorney General, Daniel C. Roper as Secretary of Commerce, and Miss Frances Perkins as Secretary of Labor.

The Cabinet as thus far officially announced is favorably regarded as a whole, and the prospective members are looked upon as good selections. The President-elect is exercising the right and duty of selecting advisors who are personally and politically his reliable friends, known to be in sympathy with his aims. It is well that his selections meet with public favor, but even if some of them were not so favorably regarded the public would gladly yield its opinion to that of the President, and would give the administration as a whole its sturdy support. The times are such that no impediments should be thrown in the way of the new President, by criticism of his Cabinet appointments or otherwise.

The three senators who are to sit at the Cabinet table will be powerful aids in maintaining harmonious relations with Congress, in which work the new Budget Director, Representative Douglas, will also be most valuable. Senator Swanson, as head of the Navy Department, is admirably placed. No one in Congress is better informed concerning the Navy, and no one is more stalwart in standing for a Navy adequate to the interests of the United States. Senator Walsh, as Attorney General, may be expected to maintain the great traditions of the Department of Justice as the bulwark of the people's liberties. The public has already recognized the special fitness of Senator Hull as Secretary of State.

QUEEN OF THE FARM.

For the first time in history the cow steps into first place as the greatest producer of farm wealth. Notwithstanding a decline of nearly 50 per cent in the value of dairy products marketed last year, the Bureau of Agricultural Economics reports that the total from this source, $1,180,000,000, led all other divisions of farm production. Live stock, a classification which includes cattle, hogs and sheep, long at the top, drops to second money with a total for the year of $1,122,000,000. In 1929 the income from this source was $2,807,000,000, showing that live stock has suffered the heaviest decline of all divisions of farm income.

The cotton marketed last year brought only $397,000,000, a loss of more than 70 per cent from four years ago, when the cotton income reached $1,289,000,000. The farmer's income from grain also shows a 70 per cent decline. The crop in 1929 was worth $1,285,000,000 and last year it brought only $391,000,000.

These figures make it plain why the farmer is having such a hard time to meet his fixed charges and why he isn't buying new machinery and automobiles as he did a few years ago. The output of industry in many lines has been equally hard hit, largely because of the reduced buying power of the agricultural population. Depression works its woes in an endless circle that affects all classes. Since the lowly cow has now come into her own as the chief producer of wealth, so far as official statistics are available, it would also be interesting to know what position the even more humble but omnipresent hen occupies in the farm budget.

OUSTING THE INSURGENTS.

Senator Reed's move to expel from the Republican party the insurgents who bolted in 1932 to campaign for Franklin D. Roosevelt is not undertaken in the heat of partisanship. The Pennsylvania leader was careful to let the acute partisanship of the campaign subside before announcing his intention. His proposal to oust turncoat Republicans from the party organization in the Senate is a move to reorganize the Republican party. It must reorganize or die.

The schism between the insurgents and the regular Republicans in the Senate goes much deeper than the recent campaign. For the last four years the insurgents have persistently sabotaged their party's legislative program. In coalition with the Democrats they have wielded control over the Senate, losing no occasion to embarrass President Hoover and the Republican party. The differences between the orthodox Republicans and the insurgents are fundamental. It is not merely a question of a few members of the party being at odds with a Republican President. The insurgents have departed from most of the basic principles of their party. They call themselves Republican in order to be elected to office.

Democrats who turned traitor to their party in 1928 suffered the consequences of disloyalty in 1930. In spite of their overwhelming defeat in 1928, the Democrats did not hesitate to read disloyal senators out of the party organization. The effect of this courageous action was to strengthen that party for the contest in 1932 and to weed out some elements that might have been a liability to the incoming administration. President-elect Roosevelt can count upon party caucuses to stand by him. The Democratic party won because it enforced discipline.

Several senators who fought the Republican party in the last election, and who have fought Republican principles for at least four years, are representing that party on Senate committees. It is an anomalous situation that can not be justified on any ground of reason. No individual should be allowed to betray a party for his own political advantage. If these senators can stand on their own convictions and be re-elected, no one will complain. But if the Republican party allows them to masquerade before the public as its representatives, that party connives at its own destruction.

The outcome of the fight which Senator Reed has launched will have a vital bearing on the future of the Republican party. So long as the saboteers are allowed to run their course undisciplined the name Republican will apply to an aggregation of factions rather than to a party. It must purge its ranks of enemies or be destroyed by treason.

SENATORIAL ECONOMY.

The penchant of the Senate for slashing expenditures was not evident Thursday when that august body considered its own budget. Instead of trimming its expenses, as it has done for most other agencies of the Government, the Senate added about $8,000 to the outlay for its own maintenance. Government clerks may feel the sting of Federal economy, but why should the wings of the mighty Senate be clipped?

It is true that the Senate cut off a number of messengers, clerks and the assistant to the secretary of the Senate to save $33,000. But that saving was more than wiped out by a vote to appropriate nearly $42,000 for law books, legislative reference work and repairs to the roof of the Senate Office Building. Economy simply will not work when applied to the Senate itself.

Most of the other appropriation bills have been slashed in the Senate. In addition to these cuts, the Senate voted to require all heads of departments and independent establishments to save 5 per cent of the funds allotted to them. Why didn't the Senate apply the same economy standard to its own funds? Savings effected in the legislative bill amounted to only about 1 per cent, exclusive of the new items, which actually increased the expenditures proposed by the House.

A 5 per cent saving in the Senate's expenditures would undoubtedly be a hardship on that body. Senators would have to pay for their haircuts. That would be a very minor expense for most senators, judging from the number of absentee thatches apparent from the galleries, but the maintenance of a free barber shop for them costs taxpayers $8,000 per year. A 5 per cent cut might also deprive senators of mineral water, costing $9,000 per year, of mouth washes, dentifrices, chamois skins, headache remedies and a long list of other essentials to senatorial comfort. It must be obvious to any taxpayer that the Senate couldn't abide by the rule it prescribed for other governmental agencies without grave impairment of the public welfare.

Who can calculate the national dangers that are averted by appeasing a senator's indigestion with mineral water or by soothing the spirits of fastidious solons with tonsorial niceties? It is an ignorant and unappreciative public that does not understand this higher law of economy, which regards any expense as a saving if it promotes the sardanapalism of the Senate.

UNEMPLOYMENT CAMPS.

Proponents of the appropriation carried in the Army bill to provide for opening training camps for a year to accommodate a large number of the unemployed youth of the country can find support for their project in the successful experience of a Florida camp for men that has been in operation for several months. This camp was established near Jacksonville and now has about 500 occupants working for their board and lodging and 5 cents a day.

The site of this enterprise is at Camp Foster, where 40,000 men were trained during the world war. It is a tract of 1,000 acres and provides varied employment for the men temporarily there. Those who are taking advantage of this relief range all the way from college professors to day laborers, but suitable tasks are found for all. Electricians among the group are rewiring the grounds, an entomologist has been ridding the shrubbery of insect pests, and others are practicing tree surgery on some of the great oaks on the banks of the St. Johns River.

This camp, financed with funds the State secured from the R. F. C., is in command of a former Army officer who was wounded in France. He has an old cavalry sergeant as chief aide, so that order and discipline are assured. About 20 per cent of the men in camp are former veterans. No tramps, panhandlers or radicals are allowed in the camp. Many of them are transients remaining but a short time, as is shown by the fact that more than 700 have passed through the camp.

The relief provided in many organized agencies is limited to assistance for families. Single men out of work often are excluded from benefits when they may be equally deserving. The camp movement seems a most practical way of caring for needy single men. It is planned to care for upwards of 100,000 of them under the system pending in Congress, and it is to be hoped that this fund will soon be available.

HIGH HEEL FATALITIES.

The Federal Woman's Bureau speaks of the shockingly high rate of accidents to woman workers who wear high-heeled shoes. But we don't see that anything can be done about it, says the Boston Transcript. We have conversed with men who fought in the War of 1812, all of whom assured us that in their youth girls were determined to wear high heels and were regularly reproved for it by their elders. So, seeing innumerable girls and women about us all calmly marching to their fate in high heels, we begin to suspect that the statistics of mortality ascribed to them are greatly exaggerated.

BIG BELLS PASSING.

Huge bells, bell towers, massive clock movements, according to Nation's Business, are no longer needed to toll the passing hours. Loudspeakers and other equipment have now been devised to amplify sound impulses from tiny bells or chime tubes, imitating perfectly the sound of heavy bells.

CONCERNING COUNSEL.

I'd ask no man in his despair
The reason for his weight of care
But, if he hunger, if he thirst
I'd give him food and water first.

No drowning man shall hear me say
His folly I'll not talk about
Until I've safely helped him out.

I'll take as swiftly as I can
To hospital an injured man,
And be assured he's going to live
Before to him advice I give.

When men are stranded in the mire
'Tis not good counsel they require.
Their own mistakes they understand,
Their need is for a helping hand.

Treason Is an Act in Time of War, But It Is First a State of Mind.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

SUGGESTED pledge for the American who wishes to be an asset instead of a liability:

Being obligated by tacit consent to accept the rule of the majority, I will obey the laws of my country—meanwhile reserving the right to campaign for the repeal of any law that to me seems foolish or evil.

I will not make heroes of criminals, nor sympathize with them while forgetting their victims.

I will do my best to help honest business and hinder dishonest business. I will not patronize the advertiser who lies about his product. I will not bribe a buyer nor accept a bribe from a seller.

I will testify against criminals who injure me, regardless of harmful publicity.

I will do my utmost to prevent the expenditure of public money for any purpose not vital to the welfare of my community or the Nation.

I will not demand or take public money to which I have no moral right.

I will oppose and hinder the alien who injures America or arrogantly abuses the liberty America has given him, but I will respect the foreign-born American who is a good citizen and honor him above the native American who becomes rich and thereafter feels ashamed of America and licks the shoes of Europeans.

I will not be tricked by the propaganda that denounces "nationalism," for it is a subtle attack on my country and means: "Quit being a selfish American and become a plain sap for the benefit of selfish Englishmen, Frenchmen, Germans, and others who have axes to grind."

I will buy such foreign goods as I need and desire, if similar goods are not produced in my own country; but I will not buy any foreign article if a like article is produced here, for that would deprive some American of his job and give the job to some workman in a foreign land.

I will not travel or ship goods on a foreign ship, for American saps who support the merchant marine of other lands are contributing money to build auxiliary war vessels that may be used against their own land.

As I support my own family instead of a neighbor, my own town instead of another town, my own State in preference to another State, so I will in all ways support my own country.

In short, I shall remember that America is my country and to the best of my ability I shall defend and support it as though I owned it in fee simple.

POLITICAL COMMENT

Sharpening Their Knives.
New York Times.

There is no nonsense about Senator Norris and his fellow Progressives at Washington. They do not propose to delude themselves. All this talk of their losing their identity and merging themselves in a great and happy Democratic family under Roosevelt does not appeal to them at all. They have no idea of letting their lamb lie down with the lion—or the tiger. They are going to organize a separate party throughout the country for action in Congress—not only the Seventy-third, but, as they say ominously, "succeeding Congresses." Their great work is to be to fight off the reactionaries seeking to control the Republican and Democratic parties."

This is a sufficiently plain threat to Mr. Roosevelt. If he does not accept their whole program they will be against him as bitterly and continuously as they have been against President Hoover.

Here's How!
Chicago News.

Early Birds.
Indianapolis Star.

Somebody can get a little early publicity by announcing his candidacy for the repeal convention.

Yes, Say Two Years.
Boston Transcript.

So far as anything can be "speedy" nowadays, let's have that kind of ratification.

Won't Know Real Booze.
New York Sun.

After thirteen years of intemperance it is going to be hard to get America to realize what it means to drink moderately.

What Will Legislatures Do?
Kansas City Times.

The repeal resolution now submitted by Congress calls for ratification by State conventions rather than Legislatures. It was desired to get away from the Legislatures, not so much for the condition mentioned as for the reason that the conventions would be more representative of the popular will. But it is a fact of particular significance that the Legislatures still must be counted in the picture. They must provide in considerable part, if not altogether, for the State conventions. Will three-fourths, or 36, of them so act? Or will one house or both houses in 13 or more of them delay or fail permanently to authorize the conventions?

Three Good Men.
Minneapolis Journal.

Folk who were perturbed by Franklin D. Roosevelt's seemingly leftward leaning in his preconvention campaign last year will hail with satisfaction the selection of Senator Cordell Hull to be Secretary of State, William H. Woodin to be Secretary of the Treasury, and Claude A. Swanson to be Secretary of the Navy.

These are high-class men, competent, level headed and well above the Cabinet average of the last three or four decades. Like Cleveland, the President-elect evidently refuses to be bound by purely political considerations in the choice of some of his more important advisers and assistants. When men of the caliber of Hull, Woodin and Swanson are selected for Cabinet posts they manifestly are picked because of their qualifications, rather than because of any political obligations imposed upon Mr. Roosevelt by the exigencies of his 1932 campaign.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Ratification of Repeal Resolution May Be Blocked as Result of Using Convention Method.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have finally come to the conclusion that The Post is about right with the guess that some of the doubtful States may never pass judgment on repeal of the eighteenth amendment because in the Legislature of a doubtful State the drys can "put up an effective fight against the calling of a convention."

That would be good bushwhacker politics, and as bushwhackers the days have before now proved themselves as good as any. And of course they will be perfectly satisfied if "by hook or by crook" they can keep the eighteenth amendment in the Constitution.

At first sight you would think that to avoid the danger of delay the ratification of an amendment by Legislatures would be chosen rather than the more complicated method by conventions. If the wets have blundered here it simply shows again that it is not always safe to neglect and reject the judgments of the past. Because the statesmen of yesterday never dreamed of such a thing as technocracy is not safe ground for the idea that they did not now and then carefully and efficiently weigh all the details of what they had to do.

In the making of laws it is not unreasonable to expect that lawmakers will be very careful when it comes to a question of doing "something different." Certainly when you reflect that heretofore without exception the Congress has directed that amendments be ratified by Legislatures, it does look as if it might have been better had the eighteenth amendment repealer been subjected to a more untrammeled and cool-headed consideration than it got.

In my opinion the sooner the eighteenth amendment is cut loose from the rigging and cast overboard the sooner the Ship of State will float on an even keel. If, therefore, as a result of dry filibustering, gerrymandering and bushwhackery, the wet politicians' experiment in legislative procedure should fail, my disappointment will be almost as great as that of the more devoted wets.

My disappointment, however, will be somewhat mitigated by the thought that the failure may do some good as a lesson that precedents set by the lawmakers of the past may at times be profitably studied by solons of the twentieth century. It must be admitted that in avoiding the unhandy ratification of constitutional amendments by State conventions the old-timers did demonstrate that they knew a thing or two in reference to the operative details of the machinary and the popular reactions of representative government in the United States. FEDERALIST.

Wishes Popular Election of Senators Could Be Repealed, Too, and Gives Hot Reasons.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: While Congress was at the task of repealing the prohibition amendment, I wish it had been possible for a resolution providing for repeal of direct election of United States senators to have been adopted. Should Congress and the States follow the above suggestion, it would result in a better type of men being elected to the Senate than under the present system. The way it is now, any man of fourth-rate intelligence can sneak into the Senate by deluding the people with visionary promises, and no sooner does he take his seat than he invariably becomes afflicted with egomania, causing him to act as if he was elected to run the whole United States Government accordding to his own ideas, no matter how stupid they may be. Unless the present electoral system for the senators and the wasteful primary system of choosing party candidates are changed, we need not be surprised to see the beginning of the end of our republican form of government in the near future.

The wets and drys will continue their fight to control Congress and the State Legislatures. So, if the people expect to see better times in the future they had better watch and see that neither side fills the State and National Legislatures with demagogues, as they have been doing during the last twelve years.

EDWARD D. LYLE.

Arlington, Va.

Suggests Transfer of Federal Trade Commission Work to Department of Justice.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: If a dictator were invested with authority to consolidate agencies of Government and do things to shape a compact economical national administration, freed from political considerations, he might:

1. Transfer the work of the Federal Trade Commission to the Department of Justice, which is now charged with politically the same thing. It could be placed under an Assistant Attorney General, saving the salaries of five $10,000 per year commissioners, with three-quarters of a million yearly total saving. With the abolition of federal alcoholic police work, the United States judges who were appointed to care for the glut of those cases will have ample time to consider these trade cases and their orders would be efficacious. With Senator Thomas J. Walsh as Attorney General, there should be no opposition to the Department of Justice handling the work.

2. Leave to State officers the enforcement of their laws, if any, prohibiting the shipment into States of intoxicating liquors.

3. Abolition of the Civil Service Commission, as every department and bureau has a personnel section.

4. For the District, I recommend a return to the six-for-a-quarter strip of street car tickets. ECONOMIST.

MOTORCADE IS GOING TO ANNAPOLIS TODAY

Montgomery Citizens Ready for Protest Meeting on Bond Issue.

Montgomery County Bureau of The Post, 9103 Conn. Ave., North Chevy Chase, Md. Telephone Wisconsin 4208.

Despite the fact that Montgomery County officials have announced abandonment of the plan to issue bonds to complete the road and school programs for the county, the road and school bonds will be one of the principal items to be discussed at a meeting today in the House chamber at Annapolis under the auspices of the Nonpartisan Taxpayers League, of Montgomery County.

Edward Peter, league counsel, announced yesterday that members of the league felt they had no assurance that the program had been abandoned and that they will continue the protest plans as part of the agenda for the meeting. He said that approximately 600 persons are expected to join the motorcade which is scheduled to leave the courthouse at Rockville at 11 a. m. for Annapolis.

The motorcade will proceed under escort of State police via Bethesda, Silver Spring, Takoma Park and Hyattsville to the Defense highway, with additional groups joining at each of these points.

The meeting is planned to discuss a program of stringent retrenchment for the county budget, which has been indorsed by the league, and to protest against any county bond issues.

Allan Farquhar, of Sandy Spring, will preside, with former State's Attorney Bowie F. Waters, of Rockville; Albert James, of Chevy Chase, and F. Barnard Welsh, of Rockville, as principal speakers.

Among the measures to be advocated by the league are: Repeal of the reassessment laws, abolition of a number of county offices, reduction in the pay of school teachers and school board employes, reduction in salaries of county officials and employes, abolition of the county disbursements committee.

Members of the General Assembly have been invited to attend. Use of the chamber was obtained by Delegate Walter Dawson, Republican member of the county delegation.

Attendance by Democratic members of the delegation is problematical since they have announced that they intend to hold their public hearings in Montgomery County in order to save the expense of a trip to Annapolis for interested residents.

Modification of Montgomery County blue laws to permit moving pictures and ball games on Sunday will be fought by pastors of some Protestant churches of the county.

A meeting of eight pastors was held Sunday at which plans were made for the fight against liberalization of the laws and for a mass meeting to be held at the courthouse in Rockville soon. No Catholic or Episcopalian clergy were present.

Petitions opposing liberalization will be circulated through the county and will be forwarded, together with resolutions of protest which are expected to be adopted at the mass meeting, to the members of the General Assembly.

The Rev. E. S. Sheepe, jr., pastor of the Rockville Methodist Church, presided at the meeting and was named chairman of a committee to arrange for the mass meeting, the date of which was set tentatively for Sunday afternoon, March 12.

Other ministers present were the Rev. Henry K. Pasma, Rockville Presbyterian Church; the Rev. J. Lloyd Black, Rockville Christian Church; the Rev. J. W. Lowden, Darnestown Presbyterian Church; the Rev. A. B. Sapp, Colesville Methodist Church; the Rev. Frank A. Tyler, Gaithersburg Grace Methodist Church; the Rev. J. H. Davidson, Potomac Methodist Church, and the Rev. Melvin E. Lederer, Liberty Grove Methodist Church of Burtonsville.

Niels Hansen, of Chevy Chase, Md., who has done much experimenting with roses, will talk on spraying and pruning of roses at a meeting of the Montgomery Suburban Garden Club Thursday night at the Somerset School, Howard R. Watkins, president of the club, announced. Plans for the annual flower show will be discussed.

Abandonment of the issuance of bonds to complete the county road and school program will permit a further 2-cent tax rate cut in Montgomery County, county officials said yesterday. This would be in addition to the 32 2-10 cents cut now planned, according to Lacy Shaw, president of the board of county commissioners.

Boys Club Wins Citizens' Support

Trinidad Association Hears Dr. Earl Parsons in Address.

"The Problem of the Boy" was the subject of an address by Dr. Earl Parsons, rector of the Church of the Ascension, at a meeting of the Trinidad Citizens Association last night at Wheatley School. Dr. Parsons stressed the value of boys' clubs in solving this problem.

The association voted the Northeast Boys Club its support. A motion indorsing boxing in public schools was voted down.

Clearing of the traffic hazard at the intersection of Florida avenue, Maryland avenue, Fifteenth street, H street and Bladensburg road northeast, was recommended by the association. A letter to the director of traffic will ask that a safety island be installed.

Flier Indicted as Slayer In Girl's Death Plunge

Houston, Tex., Feb. 27 (A.P.).—H. M. Edwards, who said he was a former Reno (Nev.) aviator, was indicted today on a murder charge in connection with the death plunge of Miss Ivy Young, former stage dancer, from Edwards' seventh-floor hotel room, February 19.

Miss Young was registered at the hotel as Mrs. Edwards. Her body was sent to Gloucester, N. J., at the request of a sister, Mrs. A. B. White, of Freeport, Long Island.

Hurley's Farewell to Officers.

The Secretary of War, Patrick J. Hurley, will receive all officers on duty in the War Department here in his office at 11 a. m. Thursday. The reception will be in the nature of a formal farewell by Mr. Hurley to the men with whom he has worked during the last several years.

9 Aviation Officers Arrive at Chanute

Will Study Suggestions of Changes in Courses at That Field.

Champaign, Ill., Feb. 27 (A.P.).—Nine U. S. Army Air Corps officers, representatives of various air fields and the air corps headquarters at Washington, arrived by airplane at Chanute Field, Rantoul, Ill., today to begin deliberations regarding possible changes of courses at the Illinois field.

The officers said their deliberations would have nothing to do with any proposals regarding removal of the Air Corps Technical School at Chanute Field. They will be in session three or four days and will make recommendations regarding course changes to Washington headquarters.

Rain Snags Mardi Gras Opening in New Orleans

New Orleans, Feb. 27 (A.P.).—Steady showers tonight threw a damper about the intended glittering torchlight parade of Proteus, Lord of the Sea, and the opening Mardi Gras parade was canceled.

This gap left tonight open to gaiety under shelter from the weather with the magnificent ball of Proteus featuring the evening. It was held in the Municipal Auditorium.

ALEXANDRIA MONEY SYSTEM CRITICIZED

Audit Given Council Tonight Says Accounting Has Been Inadequate.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

The long-expected audit of the fiscal affairs of the City of Alexandria, and of school expenditures, made by the firm of Ernst & Ernst, will be formally presented to the city council tonight, and contains an arraignment of the accounting methods followed under review. It appears that no audit of all departments has been undertaken since August 31, 1932. The audit made at that time was one of the first steps ordered by the city council which assumed office September 1, 1932, under the city manager form of government which now obtains.

"At September 1, 1932," the report states, "what appears to have been a complete double-entry accounting system was instituted, which would have made it possible to secure, at any time, complete financial statements, segregated by funds. For some reason, not at present determinable, this system was apparently never operated properly and the double-entry feature as well as the segregation on the various funds, was gradually abandoned."

The report charges that practically none of the safeguards or methods of control in common use were provided to insure the proper handling of the city's funds, and that unquestionably the opportunity has existed during the entire period for unscrupulous officials and employes to engage in irregular practices with very slight possibilities of such irregularities ever being detected, except by accident. By the same reasoning according to the report, conscientious persons, in the employ of the city, innocent of any intention of wrongdoing have been placed in a hazardous position because no one could say exactly what the extent of their accountability was.

Probably the most severe criticism of the old system is contained in the statement that: "It may be stated, without exaggeration, that in some particulars, knowingly or not, actual temptations have been placed before certain persons charged with handling the city's funds. It is plain that such conditions, existing over so long a period of time, were extremely dangerous and were unfair to the persons in the service of the city, as they were to the taxpayers."

Under the heading of school fund, the report states that the city treasurer is the only person handling school funds who is bonded. It is further stated that the following persons handling funds are not bonded: Assistant to the city collector, assistant to city manager, secretary to city manager, health officer swimming pool attendant, police court bailiff, police captain, clerk of the court, desk officer of the police department, collector of the scavenger department, and collector of armory rentals. The report recommends that consideration should be given to the adequacy of the bonds at present in force, and to the necessity of placing under bond those employes and officials not at present covered.

The auditors state that they are unable to find any record whatever of the notes which were sold or handled prior to January 1, 1927, but lists giving the details of all notes sold to the bank subsequent to that date were available for their examination, and the system has since been changed.

Representative Arthur M. Free, of California, will be the speaker of the weekly luncheon meeting of the Alexandria Rotary Club at 12:30 o'clock today at the George Mason Hotel. President Francis H. Fannon, of the local club, will preside, and the program is arranged by Col. Clarence M. Deems.

Robert H. Bogle has been appointed chairman of the "On-to-Boston" committee of the Alexandria Rotary, preparatory to the international convention to be held in that city June 26-30. Plans are also being made for the intercity meeting in Alexandria on April 18, when the Alexandria club will entertain the clubs of Warrenton, Leesburg, Fairfax and Arlington County.

Bogus Saving Held Menace to Schools

Glenn Frank Tells Educators of Peril in Budget-Making Mistakes.

Minneapolis, Feb. 27 (A.P.).—A new frontier with smokeless factory chimneys rising behind it menaces the Nation's school systems, educators were told today.

Retrenchments brought on by unfavorable economic conditions not only threaten their advancement, but hold a serious danger of retrogression, speakers told the department of superintendence, National Education Association.

"The issue is real economy versus bogus economy," said President Glenn Frank, of the University of Wisconsin, who assailed "irrational budget making" as education's gravest peril.

President Receives Minister of Siam In Farewell.

THE PRESIDENT RECEIVED the Minister of Siam, Phya Subarn Sompati, yesterday at 12:30 o'clock at the White House, when the latter called to pay his respects previous to his departure next month for Siam. The Minister and Mme. Subarn Sompati will call on Mrs. Hoover this afternoon at 3:45 o'clock to bid her farewell.

The President and Mrs. Hoover entertained at a breakfast party yesterday morning when the guests included the members of the "medicine ball Cabinet" and their wives.

When the President and his "cabinet" were going through customary early rounds of exercise yesterday they were surprised by the appearance of their wives, headed by Mrs. Hoover, who cheered and applauded the game, and finally produced a basket ball and started a game of their own, which finally broke up the men's game. Mrs. Hoover joined in the throwing of the ball, but the star of the ladies' game was Mrs. Roy D. Chapin, wife of the Secretary of Commerce, who was a basket ball star in her Smith College days.

Following the game, the entire group proceeded to the basement oval room of the White House, where they were served a breakfast of waffles and sausages.

Besides the President and Mrs. Hoover, those present were Mr. Justice Harlan Fiske Stone and Mrs. Stone, the Secretary of War and Mrs. Patrick J. Hurley, the Secretary of the Interior and Mrs. Ray Lyman Wilbur, the Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Roy D. Chapin, the Undersecretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Arthur A. Ballantine, the Assistant Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Ernest Lee Jahncke, the Solicitor General and Mrs. William D. Thacher, the Secretary to the President and Mrs. Walter H. Newton, Capt. and Mrs. Joel T. Boone, Mr. and Mrs. Mark Sullivan, Mr. Lawrence Richey, another of the President's secretaries; the Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. Ferry K. Among those present last night were Col. Campbell Hodges, U. S. A., aid to the President; Capt. Frank Goettge, U. S. M. C., White House aid; Mr. Herluf Provensen, Miss Phoebe Gale, Mr. Jack Parker, Mr. Harris Hull, Mr. Max Fassett, and Miss Margaret Willis, and Mr. Fred Shawn.

Miss Gwynne to Have Part In Actor Fund Play.

Miss Louise Harrison Gwynne, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. William C. Gwynne, will take part in the play to be given Sunday evening at the Belasco Theater for the benefit of the Actors' Fund under the auspices of Daniel Frohman. The play, "The Lovers," written by Walter Damrosch and Mr. Frohman will be played by a group of amateur actors including Mr. Thomas Mell Sweeney, jr., Mr. Isham Keith and Mr. George Calvert.

Many prominent actors and actresses will come from New York for the benefit.

Miss Vera Bloom, daughter of Representative and Mrs. Sol Bloom, is chairman of the program committee which includes Miss Elizabeth Roberts, Miss Helen Coolidge, Miss Susan Rogers, Miss Florence Harris, Miss Mary Louise Johnson, Miss Beatrice Patton, Miss Ruth Tuckerman, Miss Laura Tuckerman and Miss Helen Walker.

Mrs. Russell William Magna, president general of the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution, who was entertained as an honor guest by the National Women's Press Club, shortly after her election, was hostess Saturday night to that organization at a buffet supper, in the Palm Room, at the Willard Hotel.

The guests included Miss Martha Strayer, president, and Mrs. Katherine Lewis and Mrs. Elizabeth Mae Craig, vice presidents; Miss Mary Hornaday, recording secretary; Miss Virginia W. Price, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Elna Harwood Wharton, treasurer, and members of the club which included women representing not only local papers but all the large news bureaus and news organizations having headquarters in Washington.

Representative McCormack Addresses Democratic Club.

Mr. John W. McCormack, representative from Massachusetts, was the guest speaker yesterday at the Monday forum luncheon of the Women's National Democratic Club, 1526 New Hampshire avenue. His subject was "The Next Session of Congress." Miss Eleanor Connolly introduced the speaker.

Others at the speaker's table were Mrs. John W. McCormack, Mrs. Charles S. Hamlin, Mrs. W. G. Brantley, Mrs. J. Harry Covington, Mrs. Robert Lansing, Mrs. J. C. Shepherd, Mrs. George M. Eckels, Mrs. Edward P. Costigan, Mrs. Charles Warren, and Mrs. Edward Keating.

Among the other guests at the luncheon were Miss Ethel Ketcham, Mrs. John B. Gordon, Mrs. Garland S. Ferguson, jr., Mrs. Edwin Davis, Mrs. Peter John McGovern, Mrs. Samuel Herrick and guests, Mrs. Augustus P. Kempton, Mrs. Page Irving, Mrs. Kate Trenholm Abrams, Mrs. William C. Harllee and guests, Miss F. Eleanor Smith, Mrs. Eugene Barrett, Miss Grace Rohleder, Mrs. Van Ness Philip and guests, Mrs. Mary H. Tighe, Mrs. Arthur D. Wright, Mrs. Charles Fisher Taylor, Mrs. Arthur Werun, Mrs. Frank Hiram Snell and guests, Mrs. H. E. C. Bryant, Mrs. A. S. Maddox and guests, Mrs. Frank Morrison, Mrs. James Patton, Mrs. T. H. Seay, Mrs. Walter Stilson Hutchins, Mrs. Ogilvie Shumate, Mrs. Thomas W. Page, Mrs. James T. Newton, Mrs. Clarence I. Hendrickson, Mrs. Bolick Hurd, Miss Lidamae Hurd, Mrs. Grace J. Leimbach, Mrs. Claude B. Porter, Miss Emily Storer, Mrs. C. E. Riggs, Mrs. Franklin H. Kenworthy, Mrs. George Rothwell Brown, Mrs. Frederick D. Richardson, Mrs. Marcus Coolidge, Mrs. Louis Ludlow, Mrs. Frederick Van Nuys, Mrs. Edwards Shouse, Mrs. Stanley Christopher and Mrs. Frank Simpson, of Kansas City, Mo.; Mrs. Frank Burnett, Miss N. M. McCracken, Mrs. Robert Kirkpatrick Noble, and Mrs. N. R. Melhuish.

The Smith College Club will give a benefit bridge this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Kennedy-Warren for the benefit of the Smith College Scholarship Fund. Among those who have taken tickets are Mrs. Roy D. Chapin, wife of the Secretary of Commerce; Mrs. W. Chapin Huntington, Mrs. C. L. Mitchell, Mrs. Clayton Hashell, Mrs. Estelle Douglas, Miss Helen Atwater, Mrs. J. P. Lealer, Mrs. Myron Avery, Miss Betty Marshall, Mrs. Moulton, Mrs. Hal H. Smith, Mrs. Francis Martin Savage, Miss Heloise Brainerd, Mrs. Frank J. Hogan, Mrs. G. P. McKinney, Mrs. Nelson T. Hartson, Mrs. Emory S. Laird, Mrs. S. W. Stinemetz, Mrs. Louis Caldwell, Miss Virginia Benjamin, Mrs. Alexander Wotherspoon, Mrs. Harold Fay, Mrs. John W. Guider and Mrs. W. L. Corbin, who is president of the Washington Smith Club. At Mrs. Corbin's table will be Mrs. George B. Woods, Mrs. Delos Kinsman and Mrs. William Kittle. At service will be Mrs. Charles Daly, jr., Mrs. George W. Romney and Mrs. Nelson T. Hartson.

J. Noble Simpson Weds In Pennsylvania.

Mr. J. Noble Simpson, of Washington, and Mrs. Marie Reiser Gildes, of Hollidaysburg, Blair County, Pa., were united in marriage at 12 o'clock noon yesterday at the rectory of the Catholic Church of St. Mary, Hollidaysburg, the ceremony being performed by the Rev. Father Michael V. Munley, rector of the church. The bridegroom was attended by James M. Reiser, brother of the bride, and Dr. J. French Simpson, of Washington, and other members of the immediate families were present when the ceremony was performed.

Following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Simpson left for a short trip through the East, intending to make short visits in New York, Philadelphia and Atlantic City, returning to Washington in time to witness the inaugural ceremonies at the National Capitol on Saturday. After March 10, they will be at home to their friends at 707 Clark street, Hollidaysburg.

Mr. Simpson is a graduate of George Washington University in the class of 1920, and is a member of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon Fraternity and is a member of the B. B. French lodge of the Free and Accepted Masons, of the Oriental commandery Knights Templar and of the Eureka chapter as well as a member of social and service clubs.

Mrs. Simpson is a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Reiser, of Hollidaysburg.

The committee on arrangements for the inaugural reception and dance of the New York State Society will meet at the apartment of Mrs. Thompson Wailes at the Mayflower Hotel tomorrow afternoon at 5 o'clock, to discuss plans for the reception and dance to be held on the evening of March 4 at the Mayflower Hotel, at which the Gov. of New York and Finds Patriotic Jig-Saw Puzzles — Smart Cocktail Trays From New York—Wine Bottles at 50 Cents—Sale of Teapots for English Tea.

The jig-saw epidemic has extended into patriotic realms. And a timely week is this for the spread into patriotic subjects. At least two department stores are showing jig-sawed pictures of Franklin D. Roosevelt, the Capitol Building, Mount Vernon and the Washington Monument—even the cherry blossoms, also are jig-sawed.

For the convivial gathering this week the smart new liquor-proof trays with a handle for serving cocktails, trays such as have sold rapidly on Fifth avenue in New York, but which are just introduced in Washington, may be just what the genial host would like. The hostess, genial, too, of course, is bound to like these trays, for their surface is decorated to resemble fringed napkins, so that no linen is necessary on the tray. The recipe tray is to be recommended, also. Methods of mixing a dozen or more cheering drinks are printed on the tray's damage-proof surface.

Wine jugs of the raffia-covered type sell for as little as 50 cents in a big department store on F street. A small-size jug of this sort, intended for serving cordials, sells with six tiny glasses for $1.25.

A recipe book for hors d'oeuvres, containing more than 100 methods of preparing appetizers, sells for 50 cents in the same department store where I found the wine jugs.

Hearth bread, sometimes called cottage bread, in large crusty loaves in pound size, is being featured for 4 cents a loaf in two popular bake shops across from two of our principal department stores. This bread will sell later for 7 cents, but to acquaint Washingtonians with its excellence it will sell for an indefinite period for 4 cents. This bread is baked without pans in order to obtain the crusty exterior.

Teapots in most alluring array, more than 100 in all, in special display in a china shop within a big department store, are particularly interesting to Meanderings readers, now that tea making has been under detailed discussion. Many of these teapots are approved by the Englishman who offered his English tea-making method in recipe form in this column last week. Brown crockery teapots, others in festive Dresden effects or in the beloved blue and white chinas, and in many other styles are in the display. No two of the teapots are alike, so the shopper is sure of the individuality of her purchase. Their cost is seldom over $1. The Meanderer found one for her own cupboard, in appealing blue and white colonial design, for just 85 cents. Some cost only 50 cents. The teapot collector must see this array, for surely there is a pot the like of which he has never seen—such as the spoutless pot in square design.

Telephone questions on The Meanderer's column to The Washington Post, National 4205, Extension 19; or address The Meanderer, The Washington Post, inclosing self-addressed, stamped envelope for reply.

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE

Truly Parisian and luxurious is this elaborate afternoon ensemble of black mat crepe, with a three-quarter coat of silver and white brocade stunningly trimmed in silver fox. Reveres, gloves and buttons of velvet. (A Dah-ray design.)

ONE has to look black and white in the face these days—especially white. Because for all its freshness and charm, its youthful flattery and its purity, its chic and popularity, white isn't always the best thing to wear near the face.

Patou thought he had hit upon the universal solution once when he collared and vested all his frocks in a flesh-pink, but Miladi thought otherwise. It wasn't every woman whose complexion was flattered by this touch, either!

When you look the white question in the face you have to consider primarily your complexion, and secondly, your coloring, that is, of hair and eyes. If these last-mentioned be rather neutral, you are lost—for the flashing white touch next your face. And if your complexion is either florid, or sallow, or too unhealthily white—white next to it will only call attention to and emphasize its undesirable coloring. Whilst a color won't. Sometimes this needs be only beige or grege, or any offish sort of flesh color—sometimes it has to be a bright color giving color, such as tangerine or purple-blue. It's up to you—and oh, how necessary it is for you to find out once and for all, whether white—that lovely and fresh looking touch so much in the mode, is really the best thing for you next to your face.

The white feather toques so smart right now in Paris for afternoon and informal evening wear is another evidence of this too, too tempting white near the face. These feathered hats are more like a wreath, you know—having for their crown only a tulle that matches your hair. But alas and boo-hoo—only the very dark, or very blonde, or very auburn, or very platinum hair can be their best in the vicinity of these lovely white and flat feathers.

* * * *

And did you send for the pyjama leaflet last week, and will you send for this one? Because all the pyjamas that we managed to make from remnants took more than one leaflet to tell you about, and when said leaflet finally got finished, we found that we told you exactly how to make: One house pyjama, of two remnants totaling less than three yards.

One day time pyjama of two remnants needing just three yards.

One tea pyjama of three remnants, needing two one-yard remnants, and one two-yard one.

And one beach pyjama needing—seven bandana handkerchiefs.

Yes, all carefully mapped out, and easily followed. Address your letter to Dare, The Washington Post, and do get the two leaflets, because then you will have one pyjama design for every single pyjama need you would ever have.

An revoir.

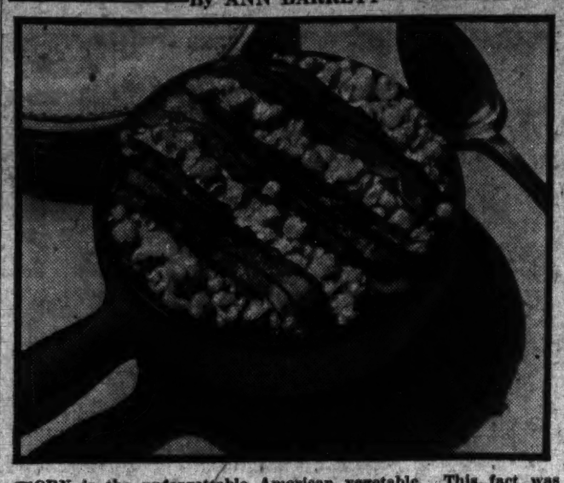
WHAT'S GOOD TO EAT

CORN IS AMERICAN STANDBY FOR MAKING TASTY DISHES

By ANN BARRETT



CORN is the unforgettable American vegetable. This fact was brought home to me the other day in a letter from Authoress Anne Green. Miss Green now lives in Paris, surrounded by chances to eat famous French dishes. But she still hankers after deep, golden corn puddings topped with bacon. And corn pancakes—baked puffy and brown, and served with maple syrup.

Proof of this popularity for corn is the variety of ways you can buy it. Also its fine quality—if you choose a brand that's dependable. And the great variety of dishes folks make with it—from creamy soups to piquant salads.

As you likely know, you may have white or yellow canned corn. You may also buy it canned the good old-fashioned way—scraped from the cob, so that you get both kernel and creamy juice. (Best for soups and certain puddings like corn souffle.) Or the newer way—cut from the cob so that you get just the whole, plump kernel. (Best for serving as a plain buttered vegetable, for scrambling with eggs, for salads and so on.)

Corn and Mushroom Pudding.

For example, here is a corn pudding (glorified with mushrooms) that tastes best, I think, made of cream-style corn (either white or yellow).

First melt 2 tablespoons butter in fry pan, and gently cook in it: ½ cup minced mushrooms, 1 teaspoon minced onion, 2 tablespoons minced green pepper and 1 tablespoon minced pimento. Next add 2 eggs (slightly beaten) to 2 cups corn and 2 cups scalded milk. Stir in the vegetables, add 1 teaspoon salt and ⅛ teaspoon pepper. Then turn into a buttered baking dish, set this in a pan containing about 1 inch of hot water, and bake in a moderate oven (about 350) for 30 minutes, or until firm.

This will make particularly good eating with chicken, ham or bacon—cooked any way you like.

Corn Packages.

For these delicious all-American concoctions, use either cream-style or whole kernel corn. Drain the juice from 1 cup of it. Then add to this corn 2 tablespoons melted butter and 2 egg yolks beaten thick and lemon-colored. Next sift together ¾ cup flour, ¾ teaspoon baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper. Add this to first mixture. Then fold in stiffly-beaten egg whites. Bake these as you would ordinary pancakes. Serve with broiled ham, bacon or sausage and plenty of maple syrup. Slick!

Corn and Tomato Scallop.

For mating up corn with tomatoes in this excellent dish, I use cream-style corn. Here's how on further details: First put ¾ cup canned tomatoes into bottom of greased baking dish. Then ¾ cup corn. Then ¾ cup soft, fine bread crumbs. Then 1 tablespoon minced onion mixed with 2 tablespoons minced green pepper. And last, a good sprinkling of salt and peppef. Repeat, and top the dish with ½ cup cracker crumbs mixed with 4 tablespoons melted butter. Bake in a moderate oven (350) for about 30 minutes.

Send for Fish Recipes.

Fish is another food that's going over American tables bigger and better every day. Because you can now get it in so many forms—fresh, frozen, salted, dried, smoked, canned. For a new recipe bulletin telling the best fish dishes to be had for the least money, just send 3-cent stamped, addressed envelope with coupon below.

What Today Means

"PISCES."

IF February 28 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8:45 a. m. to 9:45 a. m., from 11 a. m. to 12 noon and from 5 p. m. to 6:15 p. m. The danger periods are from 2 p. m. to 3 p. m. and from 7 p. m. to 8 p. m.

Astrological influences are of a nature that may cause you to feel despondent and depressed. You will feel quite dissatisfied with the course your life is taking; family problems will seem to trouble you most. A contemplated business trip begun on this date would probably bring good results.

The child born on this February 28 will in all probability have an uphill pull all through life. Luck will play no part in his life, either for or against him. He will fight hard for all that he gets and his material reward will not be great. The child will not be of a happy nature.

If February 28 is the date of your birth, you would seem to be a rather singular sort of person. You apparently are a person capable of a great deal of good, yet at the same time, there is more than a little of the sinister in your make-up. You are possessed of a strong desire to lead a righteous life and you strive steadily to advance yourself spiritually.

Successful people born on February 28:

Mary Lyon, educator.
Augustus A. Hayes, chemist.
Quincy Adams Gilmore, soldier.
Jacob S. Solis-Cohen, physician.
William S. Barnard, naturalist.
Geraldine Farrar, prima donna.

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

DORIS D. writes: "I read your recent article on brow grooming with much interest and must say that now I feel that I can keep my eyebrows in trim myself—easily. Thanks for the good advice. Now will you also tell us how to keep the brows silky between pluckings? And another thing: In my mind I can not divorce brows from lashes and long, silky, abundant lashes seem to be one of the secret wishes of womankind (and often it's not so secret, judging by the too-long-to-be-true type one sees nowadays). Which prompts me to put another question to you: How do you feel about artificial lashes, anyway—are they in to stay, so far as fashion is concerned, or just a fad, or what?"

* * * *

A great many women are asking "or what" with reference to the artificial lashes. Long and sweeping they are, luxurious, intriguing. One sees them here and there and feels that the fad has taken hold more than beauty authorities predicted. For evening wear, particularly when you wish to look fascinating, even at the risk of appearing frankly artificial, the adjustable lashes may be used. For ordinary wear, however, there's more romance and peace of mind in one's own.

SO THIS IS RENO

Letters of a Capital Society Divorcee to Her Mother

Dearest Mother: By now I have met several people who have cars and they ask me driving every afternoon, which I really enjoy more than the cocktail parties, as the country is lovely around here. The mountains and sage are very different color in the sunlight and shadow. Today we went to see the hot springs. There is one whole hill that looks like a battlefield with all the steam. One geyser shoots up quite high every hour. Tomorrow I am going on an all-day motor trip to a ranch for luncheon with Mrs. Kaye and her mother. They are just the type you would never expect to meet in Reno. The old lady struggles between shock and curiosity at the Reno "girls." There are all kinds here, as every place else. In fact I would say the proportion of desirables is higher than in hotels elsewhere.

I met a pale, anaemic woman of about 45 last night and thought, "Oh, now, she just couldn't be out here for divorce," and today learn that she spent six months here before the six-weeks law went into effect to divorce her husband and marry another man. Now she is here to divorce him and her first husband is staying at the Golden Hotel, waiting for her time to be up, when she is going to marry him again. In the meantime they take all their meals together at the Riverside. I have learned some kind of choice story about every one in the dining room. I haven't heard a word about the "princess!" They haven't left their apartment once since arriving. It has never occurred to any one that they may be a properly married husband and wife. If such a thing ever happened in this hotel that a husband and wife arrived together, they would be regarded as curiosities: Daisy says she can't remember a single case since she has worked here. It is funny, too, how quickly one gets accustomed to such an atmosphere.

The weather is heavenly and warm and sunny. That is something!

Much love for you all, devotedly, ELIZABETH.

Culbertson on Bridge

By ELY CULBERTSON

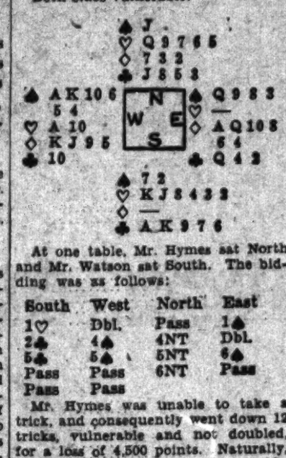
604

"FROM THE SUBLIME TO ——"

THAT the mind can frequently become a total blank, even during a Bridge game, has been proved many times in competition. The players find themselves doing the most extraordinary things, which can only be explained by the manner in which their minds were constructed. These aberrations are not so frequent but that they furnish considerable amusement to those who encounter them as mere spectators.

In a Howell game not long ago, Mr. Oswald Jacoby was paired with Mr. Samuel Fry, jr., and Mr. Edward Hymes, jr., was paired with Mr. Louis Watson. These two pairs were supposedly Class A in the field, and yet on one beard alone, which they played in opposite directions, they succeeded in going down 2700 and 4500 points, respectively. Had they been playing as a team-of-four, this board alone would have caused the loss of four or five matches. In Howell, of course, it was not so important.

South, Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.



At one table, Mr. Hymes sat North and Mr. Watson sat South. The bidding was as follows:

South	West	North	East
1♡	Dbl.	Pass	1♠
2♣	4♠	4NT	Dbl.
5♣	5♠	5NT	6♠
Pass	Pass	6NT	Pass
Pass	Pass

Mr. Hymes was unable to take a trick, and consequently went down 12 tricks, vulnerable and not doubled, for a loss of 4,500 points. Naturally, the whole fault of the hand was Mr. Watson's, and he afterwards could not understand why he failed to take the bid out into seven clubs or seven hearts, as Mr. Hymes was obviously asking him for a choice of the two. Clearly, the only explanation is that Mr. Watson had a sudden brain storm. Although this is a plausible excuse, I doubt if he considers it sufficient. At that, why didn't Mr. Hymes bid seven hearts?

At the time the hand was played, Mr. Jacoby and Mr. Fry had not yet run into this particular board, and when they were told that a 4,500 set had been taken, they were unable to believe it. Naturally, they did not know the hand when they found themselves playing it in the East-West positions. Mr. Fry was West and Mr. Jacoby East. Their bidding was as follows:

South	West	North	East
1♡	Dbl.	2♡	3♡
4♡	4♠	Pass	5♡
Pass	Pass	Pass

Mr. Jacoby, playing the hand at his void suit, managed to take a few tricks and so was down only 2700. This, of course, was another instance of complete mental lapse, this time by Mr. Fry, who afterwards claimed that his only excuse was that he had never heard anyone but Mr. Hymes give three cue-bids in the opponents' suit on the same hand.

On close analysis I believe that Mr. Fry had more excuse for his pass than Mr. Watson. In both cases, however, I do not see why it was necessary for Mr. Jacoby and Mr. Hymes to unnecessarily complicate the bidding.

TOMORROW'S HAND

The bidding and play of the hand printed below will be discussed tomorrow:

South, Dealer.
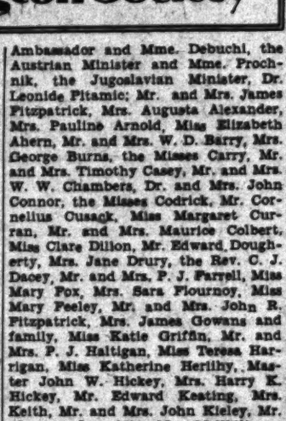
Part-score: North-South 60.



Study the hand, decide how you would bid and play it, and then compare the results you obtain with those shown in tomorrow's article.

In Washington Society

Mrs. Herbert H. Lehman will be the honor guests of the society.

The governor will be accompanied by his military and naval aids, the adjutant general of New York, Maj. Gen. Franklin W. Ward; Col. Charles Walsh and Maj. Ogden Ross. Col. Hiram W. Taylor, of the Militia of the War Department, has been detailed as aid to Gov. Lehman while he is in Washington and will have charge of the governor's party. The governor will also be accompanied by a secretary.

Invitations have been extended to the new Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. William H. Woodin and to the next Secretary of Labor, Miss Frances Perkins, and it is hoped that they will be present. The newly appointed Postmaster General and Mrs. James A. Farley have promised to attend, so that there will probably be three members of the new Cabinet present, of which the New Yorkers are very proud.

Col. J. Miller Kenyon will have charge of the military aids at the reception, and general arrangements in regard to the reception will be under the supervision of Mr. James E. Black. Mrs. Thompson Wailes is chairman of the ladies' committee, assisted by Mrs. Henry Alvah Strong, Mrs. Howard S. LeRoy, Mrs. W. A. Carr, Mrs. C. F. Hammerly, Miss Margaret Harrison and Miss Louise Evanson. The reception will start at 7 o'clock and the dinner will be served at 7:45.

St. Paul's Catholic Church Concert Tonight.

The annual concert for the benefit of St. Paul's Catholic Church will be given on Shrove Tuesday at 8:15 p. m. at the Auditorium, 1421 V street northwest. The Georgetown University Glee Club and St. Paul's choir will sing. This concert, which is under the auspices of the Sodality of the Blessed Virgin Mary, will be directed by Dr. Edward Donovan, choirmaster at St. Paul's and director of music at Georgetown.

The patrons and patronesses will be as follows: The French Ambassador and Mme. Claudel, the Japanese Ambassador and Mme. Debuchi, the Austrian Minister and Mme. Prochnik, the Jugoslavian Minister, Dr. Leonide Pitamic; Mr. and Mrs. James Fitzpatrick, Mrs. Augusta Alexander, Mrs. Pauline Arnold, Miss Elizabeth Ahern, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Barry, Mrs. George Burns, the Misses Carry, Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Casey, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Chambers, Dr. and Mrs. John Connor, the Misses Codrick, Mr. Cornelius Cusack, Miss Margaret Curran, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Colbert, Miss Clare Dillon, Mr. Edward Dougherty, Mrs. Jane Drury, the Rev. C. J. Dacey, Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Farrell, Miss Mary Fox, Mrs. Sara Flournoy, Miss Mary Feeley, Mr. and Mrs. John R. Fitzpatrick, Mrs. James Gowans and family, Miss Katie Griffin, Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Haltigan, Miss Teresa Harrigan, Miss Katherine Herlihy, Master John W. Hickey, Mrs. Harry K. Hickey, Mr. Edward Keating, Mrs. Keith, Mr. and Mrs. John Kieley, Mr. Clarence Lee, Miss Mae McWilliams, Miss Mary O'Beirne, Mr. and Mrs. John O'Donoghue, Mr. and Mrs. Carl J. Quentell, Mr. J. W. Reynolds, Mrs. Schaller, Miss Mattie St. Clair, Mr. W. W. Spalding and Miss Florence Stewart.

The mark of Inauguration Week already is to be found in all gatherings. The audience tonight at the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra concert at Constitution Hall at 8:45 o'clock will reflect this with many of the most distinguished of the visitors both in boxes and in orchestra seats. Mrs. Adolph Kaspar Miller, who is always to be seen at these concerts, has turned her box over for this program tonight to friends from out of town, some of them coming from as far as California.

Among those who are known to be entertaining their own parties tonight are Mrs. Edwin B. Parker, Mrs. Frederic A. Delano and Mrs. Ralph Worthington.

Others with boxes for the concert are Countess Szechenyi, Miss Mabel T. Boardman, Miss Alice Clapp, Mrs. William Crozier, Mr. William Phelps Eno, Mrs. Sarah Stokes Halkett, Mrs. Frederick C. Hicks, Mrs. Oscar Garecki, Mrs. F. A. Keep, Mrs. Robert Lansing, Mrs. Russell Magna and Mrs. Howard Sutherland.

Fifth Avenue Fashions

JACKET suits lead the daytime mode for spring.

This example is charming in crinkly crepe silk print in navy and white and, incidentally, navy and white is a favorite.

The boxlike jacket is particularly youthful. The skirt of the dress with bias seaming gives a flat area over the hips. Inverted plaits give a graceful width to the hem without detracting from its slim line.

Angora weave woolens in pastel shades, woolly type cottons, linen and tub silks in white or pastel will make up smartly for cruise wear.

Style No. 2666 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20 years, 36, 38 and 40 inches bust.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

WHERE COLDS HIDE.

NO one escapes an occasional attack of acute nose cold accompanied by aching and some fever. Some are fortunate enough to escape with one or two a year. They are said to be satisfactorily near-immune. Others have five or more yearly. They are said to be very susceptible. In classifying people we say that those who have three or fewer colds a year belong to the fairly cold-free group. Those who have five or more are classed as the unfortunate susceptibles.

There is no satisfactory answer to the question of why a man belongs in one group rather than the other. One theory that has been offered is that men carry the microbes of their infection somewhere around the upper breathing apparatus and that, periodically, it gets through the lining mucous membrane and into the blood stream, setting up an acute attack. Some of those who hold to this view think the hiding out place of the cold microbes is in the sinuses. Some have suggested that we can pick out the susceptibles by the size and shape of the sinuses. Two of these are in view so far as the overlying contours are concerned.

A man with a very prominent supercrbital ridge has a large sinus over the eyes. The man with beetling brows has a face of this type, though the term beetling suggests heavy eyebrows as well as prominence in the over-the-eyes region. One sinus opening out from the nose extends into this region and determines the shape of this part of the face.

The person with high cheek bones is apt to have large maxillary sinuses. This sinus opening out of the side of the nose occupies space in the cheek bone region. If it is large it determines the shape of that part of the face.

The other nasal sinuses are deeper in and quite out of view and of no consequence in determining the shape or size of the face, or even of the head.

If the supposition were true that the tendency to frequent colds was due to shape or size of the sinuses we might be able to classify men by looking at them. To say: This man has high cheek bones or heavy supraorbital ridges; therefore he has five or more colds a year.

Dr. C. E. Palmer has found that there is no relation between the number of colds a man has yearly and the size or shape of his sinuses. We must search elsewhere to learn why some are so subject to colds. We do know that some men are prone to have sore throat because of their tonsils. We know that others are free from sore throat because the bacteria in their tonsils protect them. The men of this second group are quite apt to have sore throat after removal of their tonsils. But while this is a partial explanation of susceptibility to sore throat in some, it is not in others. In fact, it far from covers the question of immunity and susceptibility to sore throat.

We have even less to go by in trying to decide why some people are susceptible to nose colds. We know that they are and that's about all we do know.

KLEENEX Soft, absorbent —now costs but 25c

This discomfort is avoided when you use Kleenex—a soft, cloth-like tissue, many times more absorbent than cotton or linen.

Since the cost is very low, a tissue need be used but once. Thus, you have a clean tissue every time—soft, soothing and dry.

Much more healthful

Kleenex is not only more comfortable, it is infinitely more sanitary. A cold-filled handkerchief re-infects the user, spreads infection to others. Kleenex fibers are so powerfully absorbent that they hold germs securely, harmless, until the Kleenex can be destroyed.

No disagreeable laundering

AS ADVERTISED IN TODAY'S WASHINGTON POST WANT ADS

In Washington today there are Cadillacs for sale as used cars at amazingly low prices. A used car of this type is practically as good as a new one. The last five thousand miles are covered just as smoothly as the first thousand, and when you stop to consider the cost of any new car, you will realize that the first thousand miles is much more expensive.

STOCKS LOSE FIGHT TO MAINTAIN RISES

Final Result Is Half-Point Drop; Trading Totals, 1,258,159 Shares.

New York, Feb. 27 (A.P.).—Stocks zigzagged today in contrast to last Saturday's abrupt break. At times the market seemed to have tapped a fresh reservoir of courage, for numerous leaders ran up from fractions to a couple of points as selling pressure lightened, but there was a general sag in the last hour, and the average net change was a fractional loss.

Wall street was naturally preoccupied with banking affairs and the measures being taken to reestablish confidence or readjust certain situations.

Stocks, generally speaking, spent more time in higher than in lower ground. Initial offerings were quickly taken up by covering shorts or other buyers and when special support appeared for the rails many pivotal issues in other groups took heart. The rise was leisurely, however, and subject to recurrent setbacks; the market closed on one of these sags. Trading was fairly active, volume reaching 1,258,159 shares.

Most of the issues that had extreme advances of 2 points or so either reduced their gains or showed moderate net declines. This group included American Telephone, Air Reduction, Louisville & Nashville, Santa Fe, Delaware & Hudson, American Tobacco "B," Liggett & Myers "B." An assortment of rails closed higher and advances, largely fractional, were also to be found among industrials. More susceptible to selling were Allied Chemical, Case, Consolidated Gas, U. S. Steel common, Loew's, Johns-Manville and Hershey, which dipped 1 to 2 points.

What the Stock Market Did

	Mon.	Sat.
Advances	113	50
Declines	365	401
Unchanged	171	114
Total issues	649	565

Stocks.

The market zigzagged and battled unsuccessfully to maintain rallies. Final results recorded an average loss of five-tenths of a point. Sales totaled 1,258,159 shares.

Bonds.

A decided advance in Federal issues failed to prevent a loss at the close. The decline was four-tenths of a point. Sales dropped to $12,204,000.

Curb.

Gains finally yielded to small losses. Support for leaders trimmed declines. Sales reached 160,000 shares.

Wheat.

Stop-loss selling in corn forced wheat and other grains to lower levels. May wheat sold at 46½@48½c.

Cotton.

After holding steady and advancing, reactions set in, and the rise was trimmed to 1 to 6 points up. May sold at 5.98. Liverpool reported quiet trading with liquidations absorbed by selling.

CORN DRAGS WHEAT TO BOTTOM LEVELS

Stop-Loss Selling Forces Declines; Other Grains Join Slump.

Chicago, Feb. 27 (A.P.).—Overwhelmed by a rush of selling to stop losses, quotations on all future deliveries of corn pitched headlong downward just before the market closed today.

Wheat and other grains quickly joined in the tumble started by corn. Every low-price reached heretofore this season was broken in the corn market, which showed a maximum fall of 1¼ cents a bushel today. May corn contracts dropped to 23½ cents, the bottommost point since 1897.

The selling stampede was started by a commission house with many rural clients. Offerings from this source were generally interpreted by traders as an effort to liquidate holdings, and the market was caught bare of supporting orders.

At the last, however, some of the larger professional traders became active buyers, and corn rallied a little, with closing prices unsettled, ½ to ⅞ under Saturday's finish; wheat, ⅝ to ⅞ down, oats, ½ to ⅝ off, and provisions unchanged to a decline of 2 cents.

Provisions reflected steadiness of hog values.

GROUP WILL PLEAD FOR LIBRARY FUNDS

Arlington Committee Will Ask Continuance of Rent Amount.

ARLINGTON COUNTY
BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Faced with the possibility of being forced to close the Arlington District Public Library at Clarendon, a committee headed by Mrs. Mary E. Lockwood will appear before the county board today and ask that the library rent appropriation be continued.

According to Mrs. Lockwood, the library was opened more than eight years ago through the efforts of a group of women in the Clarendon section with less than 200 volumes and now has more than 4,000 volumes.

About two years ago the former board of supervisors voted a rent appropriation, but the new county board which took office last January, dropped the fund.

Without the financial assistance of the community, it will be necessary to close the library, Mrs. Lockwood said.

The actual cost of manufacture of gas sold wholesale to the Rosslyn Gas Co. by the Washington Gas Light Co. will be one of the principal questions decided by the State Corporation Commission at Richmond when the fight for reduction in rates in Arlington County comes before that body Friday. The Public Utilities Commission of the county expects to show that there is a wide difference between this and the wholesale rate charged to the Virginia subsidiary.

The commission contemplates showing that the wholesale rate should be sufficiently lowered to permit a substantial reduction in the domestic rate.

The State Corporation Commission has granted a charter to the Washington-Virginia Realty Corporation with its principal offices in the offices of the law firm of Ball & McCarthy, opposite Arlington County Courthouse.

Officers of the corporation are: Rose H. Synder, president; DeWitt C. Schieck, vice president, and Oliver M. Fitzgeral, secretary-treasurer.

Funeral services for Alonzo T. King, 80, who died suddenly at his home, 100 Ballston avenue, Ballston, yesterday morning, will be conducted from the funeral chapel of C. J. Ives, Clarendon, Thursday afternoon by the Rev. Ferry L. Mitchell, pastor of Clarendon Baptist Church. Columbia Lodge, No. 285, A. F. and A. M., of which Mr. King was a member, will attend and conduct services at the grave. Interment will be in Oakwood Cemetery, Falls Church.

A comprehensive study of the tentative budget by County Manager Roy S. Braden will feature a meeting of the board of directors of the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce tonight. The meeting will be held at Clarendon at 8 o'clock.

A special committee appointed at the last meeting to make a study of the by-laws will report.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

By NELSON B. BELL

IN contradistinction, but not necessarily contrast, to the list of the "ten best" films recently selected by the motion picture critics of the country, the Motion Picture Herald, in its issue of February 25, catalogues the "Box Office Champions of 1932," representing that estimable trade journal's annual selection, determined by the reports of the Nation's key city theaters as to which pictures during the year attracted the most profitable patronage.

George Arliss.

Going a step beyond the usual estimate of how many "best pictures" there may be in a given year, the Herald lists 15 instead of 10. The tabulation includes in the order named, these more or less notable works:

1. GRAND HOTEL, M-G-M's inevitable winner on any man's list.

2. EMMA, M-G-M vehicle for Marie Dressler.

3. DR. JECKYLL AND MR. HYDE, Paramount's winner for Fredric March.

4. MATA HARI, M-G-M production with Greta Garbo.

5. DELICIOUS, Fox conveyance for Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell.

6. THE MAN WHO PLAYED GOD, one of George Arliss' better pictures for the Warner Brothers.

7. HELL DIVERS, M-G-M thriller, with Wallace Beery and Clark Gable.

8. ONE HOUR WITH YOU, Paramount vehicle for Maurice Chevalier and Jeanette MacDonald.

9. SHANGHAI EXPRESS, Paramount production with Marlene Dietrich.

10. ARROWSMITH, United Artists picturization of Sinclair Lewis' novel, with Ronald Colman and Helen Hayes, pr vice versa.

11. SHOPWORN, Columbia production with Barbara Stanwyck.

12. BUSINESS AND PLEASURE, Fox picture starring Will Rogers.

13. TARZAN, THE APE MAN, M-G-M picturization of an Edgar Rice Burroughs story, starring Johnny Weissmuller, maker of uncanny noises.

14. BRING 'EM BACK ALIVE, Frank Buck's classic of wild beasts impounded in a game preserve.

Unless your memory is more photographic than this typewriter's, it will no doubt suggest itself to you, too, that there is a wide discrepancy between the list of the critics' choices and the above. Only a meager 40 per cent of the reviewer's selections seem to have found their way onto the more opulent of the box-office statements.

Well, that's the way life is. "Art for art's sake" and art for the sake of money in the bank are two different things altogether.

There was "The White Zombie," for instance.

And then who should walk into the shimmering spotlessness of these sumptuously renovized slave quarters but old Bert Perkins, de luxe exploiteer, formerly an accomplice in some of the more nefarious of our adventures in a former incarnation, when press agentry burgeoned large as a reason for our three a day and place to sleep.

Bert, a few pounds heavier, although his present assignment is running him figuratively ragged—the guy was all dressed up, he was—is trying to keep one leap ahead of the Warner Brothers' "Forty-Second Street Special," more or less rapidly bearing down on the Capital from the general direction of Pittsburgh, a smoky town up Pennsylvania way. This gold-leaf-and-spangles special is due in the Capital at 10 o'clock Saturday morning, just in time to man one of the most elaborate floats in the Inaugural Parade.

In the meantime, Master Perkins has practically nothing to do but light out for Baltimore at 8 this morning, dash to Philadelphia tonight, fly to Boston next day and get back here in time to usher the ladies and gentlemen (sic) of the dramatic desks aboard the gayest train that ever whisked by a whistle stop or winked at a semaphore, Saturday.

More about this gaudy business later.

There are other cargoes of distinguished players en route to Washington, too. Word from Daniel Frohman apprises the boys and girls of the Fourth Estate that the Actors' Fund Inaugural Benefit, to be given in the Belasco Theater next Sunday night, will be participated in by an expansive roster of the theater's great, among them William Faversham, who has trod the same boards many times before; Montagu Love, well known on both stage and screen; Robert Emmett Keane, not so great in pictures as his vaudeville fame would seem to warrant; Cecelia Loftus, here last season in "The Devil Passes;" Fannie Ward, the "perpetual flapper," whose last local appearance, it seems to me, was on the stage at the Columbia in "A Fool and a Girl," a short-lived venture, out of his field, by David Wark Griffith, back in the days before "The Birth of a Nation" had made "D. W." the movie's head man; Beatrice Lillie, Noel Coward, Fanny Hurst, Vaughn De Leath, who will be chanting her merry roundelays at the Earle next week; Bill Robinson, ace hoofer; Peter Higgins, Amos 'n' Andy, from the Fox stage bill; Jack McLallan and "Sarah," Bob White, Stuart & Lash, Chaney & Fox, stars of "Forty-second Street," a Meyer Davis Orchestra, led by Dave McWilliams, and——

Well, that's enough to give you a rough idea.

Just to make life more complicated for a guy who hasn't thoroughly waked up yet, Rodney Collier, managing director of the Rialto, pops his head in the door to say that this afternoon at 1 o'clock, he is privately—in a manner of speaking—screening "Rome Express" in the projection room of the Fox Film Exchange, which is by way of being about half a block this side of Marlboro.

The out-of-town brethren are raving about this one. It better be good, getting us up in the middle of the night like that, and everything.

Issay Dobrowen, the brilliant Russian conductor who leads the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra in its closing concert of the current season in Constitution Hall tonight at 8:45 o'clock, celebrated his thirty-ninth birthday anniversary yesterday.

Dobrowen, it seems, was born in Nizji-Novgorod, Russia, February 27, 1894. He was only 16 when he was graduated from the Conservatory in Moscow and given the gold medal for both composition and piano.

It's just as well he won it when he did, because under the Soviet these medals are now made of leather.

A considerable change in program is announced for tonight's concert, the three selections to be played being Corelli's "Suite for Strings, opus 5;" Lisdow's "Le Lac Enchante" and "Kikimora;" Richard Strauss' tone poem, "Don Juan," and Tschaikowski's "Fourth Symphony in F minor."

Reverting momentarily to the Rialto, Mr. Collier is pluming himself a bit on presenting the first talking pictures ever taken of Pope Pius. The occasion is a radio dedication—also being celebrated on the screen at the Earle, of course, where the Universal News, with Graham McNamee's running comment—although it sometimes slows down to a walk—likewise is presented as a regular program feature.

And going back to that "Rome Express" for a moment, it will open its run at the Rialto with a special midnight performance, beginning at 11:30 o'clock Friday night, Esther Ralston and Conrad Veidt being the pictured stars.

Probably because aware of our interest in the Baltimore premiere, and that we chattered volubly about it for days afterward, Ray Henderson, Miss Katharine Cornell's admirable stentor, unwinds himself of word to the effect that "The unparalleled Miss Cornell," as Percy Hammond of the New York Herald Tribune calls her, will be acting Sidney Howard's "Alien Corn" in New York as long as she wants to do so, according to John Anderson of the Journal, and Wilella Waldorf of the Post. Brooks Atkinson of the Times finds her playing with that "incandescence only she can summon," the hallmark of "great acting." Burns Mantle of the News hails her as "Queen Katharine," and Richard Lockridge of the Sun discovers her giving "one of the finest and most moving scenes I have ever seen in a theater." Robert Garland of the World Telegram declares she is "as always superb," and Arthur Pollock of the Brooklyn Eagle insists that "she has done nothing better."

Some of this seems to us to be laying it on a bit thick, but so far as it pertains to Miss Cornell herself, and not her vehicle, which Sidney Howard has fashioned with some laboriousness, no one but could go along with it handsomely, holding the torch high.

And as I remember it, this should end just about here.

By NELSON B. BELL.

In the comprehensive mirroring of whole cross-sections of our contemporary society and the deft manipulation of both incident and scene, there is probably no living American playwright more skillful than Elmer Rice.

From the days of his "On Trial," which unfolds its drama backward, after the manner of a moving picture flashback, through "Street Scene" to "We, the People," the latest of his works to be accorded a Broadway showing, his dramas have reflected both a highly perfected technical proficiency and keen insight into character and the impulses that actuate the common run of average, everyday men and women.

"Counsellor-at-Law," the first Washington performance of which, last night, was in the nature of a testimonial to a familiar figure in the Capital's theatrical life over an unbroken period of 28 years, further fortifies Mr. Rice in his more or less solitary eminence as the lone writer of plays who uncovers his drama by plumbing the emotions and tickling the risibilities of large groups of persons, all of whom he parades through rapidly shifting scenes of diverting action.

In this instance we are concerned with the steadily flowing stream of midtown New Yorkers that filters constantly through the law offices of Simon & Tedesco, two East Side boys who have scrambled from the gutters of Second avenue to the dizzy heights of the law and its rich material rewards.

Their office force is prolific in petty jealousies, small antagonisms and impressive loyalties; their clients range from the Communistic youths spouting soap-box radicalism along Manhattan curbstones to first-page personalities, whose retainers represent small fortunes. From this heterogeneous and widely scattered segment of metropolitan life, Mr. Rice has drawn the events that finally narrow down to the personal crisis in the life of George Simon and throw into bold and arresting relief the character of a man whose one master is the law and whose breath of life is work, work and more work.

Illumined though it is by highlights of comedy, tinged now and again by the most unbrushing injections of sheer and blatant hokum and embellished by minor tragedies that are somehow made to seem intensely amusing, "Counselor-at-Law" in the end resolves itself into the simple terms of a character study, in turn sympathetically, humorously and explosively played by Paul Muni in the role of Simon.

There is no trace of "Scarface" in Mr. Muni's "Counsellor-at-Law," nor yet of any one who might be a fugitive from a chain-gang. His George Simon is a well-groomed, poised and literate gentleman of the bar, with the blood of fighters in his veins and something of the struggle up from the pavements sticking in his memory. He is savior of the rich—when they care to pay for it—guide, philosopher and friend to the downtrodden and the needy; an intelligent, believable, rounded character, humanized by an actor with a tremendous ability to get beneath the surface of the hard-bitten men of the world he is called upon to portray.

Several members of the supporting cast last evening were accorded the tribute of spontaneous applause following their "big scenes." These were Dorothy Day, who contributes an extremely able piece of sustained comedy as the switchboard operator with a peculiarly ominous form of "indigestion;" Angela Jacobs, a prim clerical robot; J. Hammond Dailey, the reformed burglar, who never lost the cracksman's knack; T. H. Manning, as the wily politician; Martin Wolfson, as the battered young Communist, proud of his scars of rebellion, and that veteran and incomparable character actress, Jennie Moscowitz.

Doris Underwood, Anne Teeman, especially effective, despite a momentary feeling for lines, as the faithful secretary in love with her boss; Sue Moore, Harry Mervis, Jack Lealle and Regina Wallace, as Cora Simon, the counsellor's wife, are others whose efforts lend one of the season's most engaging comedies much of its fine effect.

The large and representative audience that turned out to do honor to L. Stoddard Taylor, as well as Mr. Muni and his associates, accorded the players five curtain calls at the end of the last act as their earnest of a delightful evening.

GAYETY

"INAUGURAL GIRLS." Empire burlesque with Joe Yule, "Bimbo" Davis, Minor Reed, Roberts Sisters, Bee Keller, Joy St. Clair and others. Conchita and Lola Bertram, guest stars. Reviewed Monday night by William L. Wright.

A lot of credit is due Jimmie Lake, manager of the Gayety Theater, for "The Inaugural Girls," his presentation for this all-important week.

This show has everything, and when the word gets around the S. R. O. sign will be needed at every performance.

With that well-known and equally well-liked Bimbo Davis and Joe Yule dispensing laughter and merriment all over the place, and with Sid Gold and Sammy Clark feeding the lines, the dull moments are simply nonexistent.

Led by beautiful Lola Bartram and charming Conchita, the feminine contingent leaves little to be desired. They sing and dance in gorgeous costumes—if they can be called costumes when they finish. Old favorites, Joy St. Clair and Bee Keller, Kay Cassidy and the Roberts Sisters, work hard to please. How well they succeed is manifested by the continuous demand for more and more.

This review would not be complete without mentioning the unusual effects created for the "War" and "Bowery" scenes.

NEW CINEMA OFFERINGS

COLUMBIA

"HANDLE WITH CARE." Fox picturization of a story by David Butler, adapted to the screen by Frank Craven and Sam Mintz, featuring James Dunn, Patricia "Boots" Mallory, El Brendel and Buster Phelps. Directed by the author. Reviewed Monday evening by W. A. Whitney.

Here is one of those charming little bits of delectable nothing that from time to time embellish the screen to furnish a highly entertaining two hours which have no purpose but to present a homely tale simply and ingenuously.

That is "Handle With Care." And that it is so distinctively charming, wholesome and real is due largely to the hand of the master of this kind of drama, Frank Craven.

It happens that Helen Barlow is the guardian of Tommy and Charlie Evans, a couple of real he-boys. Tommy is caught stealing milk for his family of cats and is haled before a police court from which he is saved by the intervention of the assistant district attorney. Through this, Bill Gordon meets up with Helen, an old schoolmate, and their romance resumes where it left off. As prosecutor, Bill becomes involved with the underworld and is saved from assassination by the quick thinking of Charlie. Through this act the disrupted romance rolls merrily on to its logical conclusion.

Quite so, that's the stuff of which Mr. Craven fabricates his best work: a simple tale of ordinary folk. And as assuredly as the story is real and ingenuous, so is the work of the principals, led by James Dunn, as the prosecutor, and Patricia "Boots" Mallory as the charming and motherly Helen. El Brendel, as the music-teaching neighbor, and co-looker-after of the boys, furnishes the major comedy in the typical Brendel manner. George Ernest, as the older of the boys, Charlie, is fine. The would-be assassins as played by Victory Jory and Arthur Vinton, are believable.

But head and shoulders above the others is wee Buster Phelps as Tommy. Though shy in years and lacking in physical stature, his delineation of the younger brother is superb. A swell lad, and here's hoping we see more of him!

Very appropriate at this time is a Johnnie Walker Novelty, "Do You Remember?" featuring the late President William McKinley delivering the speech following which he was mortally wounded. Other interesting shots include Marie Dressler in an old release, the late President Theodore Roosevelt and the San Francisco fire.

Moran and Mack are seen in an aviation comedy that falls somewhat short of meeting their standards and the Paramount News rounds out the bill.

RKO-KEITH'S

"NO OTHER WOMAN." RKO-Radio's picturization of the play, "Just a Woman," by Eugene Walter, featuring Irene Dunne and Charles Bickford, with Gwili Andre, Eric Linden, Leila Bennett, Christine Rub and Theodore von Eltz. Directed by J. Walter Ruben. Reviewed Monday afternoon by Isabel Harraman.

Admirers of the slim and exquisite Miss Irene Dunne will hail "No Other Woman" with enthusiasm, and it will be no disloyalty to Miss Dunne if they find themselves wishing that, just as an innovation, she would double up her lovely fist and place a good right to Mr. Bickford's phlegmatic and prognathous jaw.

Anne, ably portrayed by Miss Dunne, is ambitious for her steel-worker husband, Jim. Despite his protests, she persists in conducting a boarding house and, as Jim disgustedly terms it, "pinching pennies."

These pennies eventually finance an invention which places them in the millionaire class. They have the child which Jim has always longed for, but which Anne would not bear him in the squalor and poverty of their former environment. In fact, they have everything. Jim, however, subject to all the inconsequences of human desire, ambition, cruelty, weakness and sublimity, falls into a feminine snare so hopelessly that he wishes to divorce Anne and marry the newcomer. Anne fights a seemingly losing battle for her happiness, but in the end proves triumphantly that Jim's love for her is the ruling power in his life.

Charles Bickford, erstwhile "bad boy" of Hollywood, fits the role of Jim to perfection: Eric Linden, as the young inventor, makes the most of a very small part. Gwili Andre, the "other woman," is not especially convincing. We can only think that Jim's taste was a holdover from his steel-making days when he had a tendency to search for female "drinking companions." Leila Bennett and Christine Rub are also in the cast, to its advantage.

There is a courtroom scene, as those who remember the Walter play will recall, which proves convincingly that Justice is not alone blind, but deaf and dumb as well, which is scarcely news to most of us.

The remainder of the bill is well-balanced and interesting. "Screen Snapshots," made in conjunction with "Screen Book Magazine," brings to the attention a group of screen comedians, some old, some new. There is a Pathe News, a bright item in which gives you a general idea of how fruit will sound when touched by a new contrivance and magnified by a loud-speaker. The banana is a bit basso; the orange almost a contralto, and the lemon, decidedly soprano. They also sounded out a cheese and we must say that its voice could be termed nothing more nor less than a sneer!

A screamingly amusing Edgar Kennedy comedy, "Fish Feathers;" a John Hix "Strange as It Seems" film of The Post feature, and an Aesop Fable complete the bill.

BILL WOULD REDUCE SUM FOR JAIL FOOD

Other Proposals Introduced Affecting Prince Georges and Montgomery.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 27.—Several minor bills affecting Prince Georges and Montgomery counties were introduced in the General Assembly tonight as the Legislature assembled under the eyes of the largest crowds of the season.

The Prince Georges bills would reduce the amount allowed for feeding prisoners in the county jail and divert two special funds to the general county treasury. The cost of feeding prisoners would be lowered from the present 50 cents per day to 40 cents. Another bill is designed to divert dog-tag fees from the special dog fund to the general fund. Formerly these tag fees were used to pay for poultry and animals killed by dogs. Now these bills would be paid from the county fund, and any surplus may be used for county purposes.

The third Prince Georges bill provides that fees for restaurant and hotel licenses go to the county fund. Formerly this fee of $100 was turned over to the road committee to be spent in the district where it was collected.

A bill putting a part of the present Seventh district of Montgomery County into the Fourth district was introduced in the Senate by Senator Robert G. Hilton (Democrat), Montgomery. It would transfer that territory lying between Rock Creek and the Georgetown road, north of the line of Grosvenor Lane extended, into the Rockville district, and allow a voting precinct to be established at Garret Park.

Other bills introduced call for removal of the present ban on suing the State roads commission for injury or damage caused by its trucks or equipment and would allow the county commissioners to fix the salary of the supervisor of assessments on a sliding scale.

An antilynching bill modeled after the Dyer Bill also was offered in the House. It provides that where any person is taken from officers by a mob, he or his estate may recover damages from the county in which he was taken.

Logan-Thomas Circle Meeting.

The Logan-Thomas Circle Citizens Association will meet tonight in the Telephone Building, at 725 Thirteenth street northwest. The association will be the guest of John A. Remon, general manager of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. After a business period, a tour of the building is planned.

SUGAR—Raw, unchanged early today and with buyers and sellers apart no sales were reported. Refiners seemed unwilling to pay above 2.80 for sugars in March position, but these were generally held at 2.85. It was revealed that late on Saturday a local refiner bought 9,000 bags of Philippines due the end of next month at 2.82.

After opening unchanged to 1 point lower, futures firmed on increased covering and continued buying by Cuban interests. May contracts sold up from .95 to .98 and December from .95 to .97. The market at midday was around these levels and a point net higher on most positions. Volume was small but offerings were comparatively light and prices responded to small buying orders.

Refined was unchanged locally at 3.90 for fine granulated with demand fair but still confined to nearby requirements. American Sugar Refining Co. announced that it would sell in Southern territory pearl white Cuban granulated at 10 points under its own brand, but that orders would be limited to one-third of the total order for fine granulated.

COFFEE—Spot, quiet; Rio No. 7, 8; Santos No. 4, 8¾@9. Rio futures closed irregular; sales, 2,000 bags. *March, 5.43; *May, 5.43; *July, 5.19; *September, 5.11; *December, 5.03. Santos futures, steady; sales, 3,000 bags. *March, 8.15; May, 7.90; July, 7.58; *September, 7.32; *December, 7.19. *Nominal.

EGGS—Close, receipts, 6,873 cases; advices from outside markets of increases resulted in dealers holding stock closer, and prices advanced about one-half cent, all grades. Best buyers generally were reluctant to follow advances. Specials, packs, nearby white henneys, 17½@18; white extras, 18@17; brown extras, 16@17. Nearby mixed colors, average extras, 15½; graded firsts, 14½@15; current receipts, 14@14½. Midwest, mixed colors, average extras, 15½; graded firsts, 14½@15; current receipts, 14@14½.

SALARY PLAN JOKER STIRS HEATED ROW

Takoma Park Amendment Is Made to Include Vote and Then Adopted.

Following discovery that a proposed amendment to the town charter contained a joker, a public hearing last night on the proposed charter amendments for Takoma Park, Md., developed a heated debate.

The old charter had provided that a salary of $1,200 a year for the mayor and $300 a year for members of the council should become operative when approved by a referendum of citizens. The referendum held recently voted down the proposal.

The amendment provided that the mayor should receive $600 a year and the council members $300, but failed to provide that a referendum should be held. The salaries would have become operative as soon as passed by the Legislature. The joker was pointed out by John Coffman. The amendment was amended to provide for a referendum and then approved.

The meeting approved a proposal that a fourth justice of the peace should be appointed for the Thirteenth Election District stipulating that he should reside in Takoma Park. It also provided that in addition to the usual fees he should receive a salary not to exceed $100 a month for trying town cases. Bonding of the town treasurer for not less than 40 per cent of expected annual receipts also was approved.

Also approved were payment of taxes in two instalments instead of one as at present; provision for purchase of delinquent property by the town; raising the maximum fine for violation of town ordinances from $50 to $100; reduction of interest on property sold at taxes from 15 to 10 per cent and extension of the time between the town caucus and election from one to two weeks.

Butcher Hurt by Iron Hook.

Struck by an iron hook swinging free after 200 pounds of beef had been removed, Fred Eggers, 44, of Arlington, Va., a butcher employed at the Auth Provision Co., 623 D street southwest, yesterday afternoon suffered a possible fracture of the skull and other injuries. He was treated at Providence Hospital.

AL THOMAS' PITCHING ARM SOUND, TEST REVEALS

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

BREATHLESS BENNY LADIS, the Washington mouthpiece for the New York management o Reds Barry, the local boy who didn't make good at Portner's Arena, reappeared among the scenery of this department last night and told all.

Breathless Benny, socalled because he is never out of breath in telling how and why Reds Barry is destined to be the champeen heavyweight of the world in 1934, went into seclusion immediately after Les Kennedy pinned Barry's ears a week ago and it was feared that Benny had strangled himself on a two-syllable adjective, but the breathless one bounced back on the scene last evening quite his usual self.

Amid a rattling of the outer doors and inner windows caused by the draft of his entrance, Breathless Benny rushed in to give us the lowdown on the Barry who lost to Kennedy. Not Reds Barry, the New York sensation, mind you, but the Barry who didn't win a round against Kennedy at Portner's Arena last Monday night.

Lame Back Beat Barry, Benny Tells Us.

You see, it was this way—at least Breathless Benny says it was this way: Barry was in fine shape the afternoon of the fight when he went to his home in Southeast to bid his mother farewell for the evening. And what should happen but Barry slips in getting out of his car, takes a header in the mud of the unimproved street, and comes up with a lame back.

Yeah, it was a lame back that beat Barry last Tuesday night, Benny tells us. Mushky Jackson, his trainer, begged him to call off the fight, Benny tells us. But Barry wouldn't disappoint his Washington public, Benny tells us, and insisted on carrying his lame back into the ring, Benny tells us.

And what happened? Benny tells us that it pained Barry every time he threw a punch. His lame back slowed Barry to a walk, Benny tells us, and it was a cripple who was in there trying to make a fight out of it, Benny tells us, confidentially. As a matter of fact, Barry told Kennedy in the fifth round that he was hurt and in fairness to the public Kennedy should come to him if they wanted to make a real fight out of it. Or so Benny tells us.

Lame Back Don't Prevent Closing of Fists.

Benny tried to tell us a lot more, but unfortunately for Benny, this department also saw the fight. I never knew before that a lame back didn't permit a fighter to close his fist while punching. Barry was slapping Kennedy all evening with his open hand with no effect whatsoever, but now I understand why. He had a lame back with sympathetic pains in his finger tips, you see.

I wondered, too, how come Barry forgot to duck, like other good fighters would have ducked those long, right crosses that Kennedy telegraphed by night letter. It's

Red Sox Sale Stirs Ruth Rumors

By JACK CUDDY.

NEW YORK, Feb. 27 (U.P.).—Thomas Yawkey's purchase of the Boston Red Sox is interpreted by close followers of baseball as paving the way for Babe Ruth to become player-manager of the faltering Fenway Fusileers in 1934.

Ruth, baseball's master showman, has long been regarded as the one man who could do much to boost the Red Sox out of their perennial doldrums. Accordingly, he had several opportunities to shift to Boston in recent years.

But the astute Babe did not share the general belief that he was a miracle man capable of transforming a squad of diamond cast-offs into a first division team. He had no desire to enter the depressing Fenway picture.

Money Available to Rebuild Red Sox.

However, next year the Boston picture will be different. Yawkey's millions will provide at least $250,000 to be spent immediately to purchase first-class players, and Yawkey has Eddie Collins, formerly Connie Mack's right-hand man, to select these players.

Last season, Ruth admitted frankly he was considering closing his career with the Yanks at the end of the 1933 campaign, permitting him at the age of 40 in 1934 to become player-manager of some other big league team. He said then he was not considering Boston seriously. But the baseball fraternity believes now the Bambino is giving more thought to Red Sox possibilities next year than to the $25,000 salary cut offered by the Yanks.

When Bob Quinn and his associates transferred the Boston Club to Yawkey and Collins last Saturday for something like $1,000,000, with Collins named vice president, there was considerable surprise that Marty McManus remained as manager. However, this is regarded by observers as the tip-off that Ruth is virtually certain to step in next year.

It is believed that the acquisition of Pitcher George Earnshaw from the Athletics will be the first step toward building up the club which hasn't won a pennant since Ed Barrow, present business manager of the New York Yankees, piloted it to the world championship in 1918.

Other big-time players will be acquired, because Yawkey and Collins know it was lack of first-class players that kept the Sox down at the bottom. Quinn had no luck in getting young chaps, who could develop later. The best he could do was to make modest deals for cast-offs from other clubs.

Harridge Sees Boston Back on Baseball Map

Chicago, Feb. 27 (U.P.).—William Harridge, president of the American League, today predicted that Boston would soon be back on the baseball map, since the sale of the Red Sox to Eddie Collins and Thomas A. Yawkey.

"We are thoroughly delighted about the transaction," said Harridge, "and the American League is fortunate to have two men like Collins and Yawkey among its magnates. They have their pep, ambition, and, what is more important, the finances to carry on and bring Boston back to its former high place in baseball."

Harridge expressed regret that Bob Quinn and his associates felt that they could no longer carry on at Boston, and laid their troubles to "nine straight years of hard luck, without a good break at any time.

"Collins and Yawkey wanted Quinn to retain an interest in the Red Sox," Harridge continued, "but he thought for the good of baseball and the club that he should step out and let the new owners go along by themselves."

Sou. Carolina Five Wins Dixie's Crown

Auditorium, Raleigh, N. C., Feb. 27 (A.P.).—South Carolina's high power Gamecocks whipped Duke 33-21 here tonight to win the Southern Conference basket ball championship.

The Blue Devils, who were making their third appearance in the finals of the annual basket ball tournament, outscored the Gamecocks, 18-13, in the first half, but couldn't keep up the pace after the intermission, and South Carolina soon pulled away to a safe lead.

Farley to Resign Today From N. Y. Commission

New York, Feb. 27 (U.P.).—James A. Farley, chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission, will resign his post at tomorrow's meeting of the commission, it was learned authoritatively today.

Farley, chairman of the Democratic national committee and campaign manager for President-elect Roosevelt, will resign to become Postmaster General. Brig. Gen. John J. Phelan a member of the commission, is expected to be made chairman.

The vacancy on the commission left by Farley's resignation, will be filled by appointment, probably tomorrow, of D. Walker Wear, wealthy Binghamton ironmaster.

New Faces Looming Large in Nats' Battery Department

Heavyweights Battle in Portner Feature; Compton Fights.

BOB TOW returns to the ring tonight after a four month's absence, most of which was spent in a Clarendon garage tinkering with recalcitrant motors, meeting Ed Prante, giant Philadelphian, in the feature eight-round bout at Portner's Arena. It will be Prante's first appearance before a local audience.

Tow polished off a month of brisk training yesterday afternoon with just enough exercise to keep his muscles limber, and appears to be in the best of condition. He will have to be if he expects to stop Prante, who is well qualified for the proposed dreadnaught class with his 6 foot 5 inch frame and 220 pounds of beef.

The former Marine brings with him a record of 30 victories in 31 bouts, of which 25 were won via the K. O. route. Charley Retzlaff is the only ringman to win from him, and he scored a knockout after Prante had piled up a slight lead in the earlier rounds of their scrap.

Gallagher or Kennedy For Winner.

A bout with either Marty Gallagher or Les Kennedy awaits the winner. Gallagher was scheduled to battle Tow earlier in the month, but the engagement was postponed. It was scheduled again, but the hefty Irishman suffered an eye injury while training and the match was canceled.

Tow is particularly anxious to meet Gallagher, whom he defeated by a wide margin at Twin City last summer. Twice he had Marty on the floor, for a count of nine, and the big boy was constantly in trouble. But there is Prante barring the way to the bout the Alexandrian desires above all others.

A bout that should rival the feature attraction in leather pushing is Eddie Compton's tussle with Pete Powell, which goes on next to last. Compton ordered trouble when he agreed to the bout with the clever Norfolk bantam, and Petey is prepared to serve a double portion of it. Both are willing mixers and pack damaging wallops.

Strickler Meets Broussard.

Billy Strickler, the old war horse who can take it and give it in some measure, tackles Lou Broussard, fast Newport News light-heavy, in one of the six-round preliminaries.

The other six-rounder pits Red Journee, a stranger to these parts against Lloyd Phelps, the Cowboy's brother. Phelps battled "Popeye" Irving to a draw recently. Journee is a veteran and well liked by Newport News fans, from whence he hails.

Soldier O'Donnell, of Camp Meade, and Jack Lamar will open the card with a four-round argument.

Contest Facts In Brief

Clark Griffith, president of the Washington Baseball Club, will select in The Washington Post of March 19 his all-time, all-star team from among the clubs that represented Washington during the years from 1912 to 1932 inclusive.

The fan who submits the selection that matches or most nearly matches Griffith's selection will be adjudged the winner of the contest.

One man is to be selected for each of the infield and outfield positions with four pitchers and two catchers.

To the winner The Washington Post will award eight box seats to the 1933 opening game between Washington and Philadelphia.

Second place will net four box seats, with third place earning two box seats.

Entrants may use the accompanying coupon for their selections, although the use of the coupon is not necessary for entrance in the contest.

The contest will close March 15.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

PITCHING records and batting and fielding averages of Walter Johnson, Bob Groom, Carl Cashion, Tom Hughes, Harry Harper, "Doc" Ayers, Jim Shaw, Tom Zachary and George Mogridge were printed yesterday in The Post for consideration in its unique baseball contest and the dope on eleven more Nat pitchers is handed out this morning. All the fans are asked to do is to pick the 4 from this group of 21 which President Clark Griffith will name on his team of outstanding players who have performed here since he first came to the Capital City as manager back in 1912.

And maybe a flock of headaches will not result before the entrants get through studying this dope and then trying to match Griffith's selections. As already has been stated, it is not just a question of averages which will figure in the selection of this "All-Griffith" team, for the present head of the Nats in naming his choices is likely to consider many other angles, possibly even letting sentiment sway him one way or another where certain players are rated close together in the averages.

Marberry Among Group.

Today's figure sermon has to do with the flingers who joined the Nats from and including the 1923 season and, judging from the players named on many of the answers already received, several promising candidates are contained in the list, which includes Fred Marberry, Allan Russell, Curley Ogden, Alex Ferguson, Stanley Coveleskie, Dutch Reuther, Garland Braxton, Lloyd Brown, "Sad Sam" Jones, "General" Al Crowder and Monte Weaver.

On dope, the work of Marberry, Russell and Braxton was not outstanding as a whole, but their brilliant relief work stamps all three as just about as good as they come in this difficult role. In 1924, the first pennant year, which netted the Nats their first world's title as well as their initial flag, Russell was almost as effective as was Marberry in saving faltering mates, while Marberry's efforts the next year, 1925, were largely responsible for the Washington victory. And Fred's world series performances should not be forgotten, either.

Ogden, Reuther, Coveleskie and Ferguson served here only short terms, but they also did enough to make them stand out in the fans' memories. Ogden and Ferguson stepped in and filled the breach in 1924 and 1925, respectively, on occasions when the regulars were "all in" and really needed help, with Ferguson winning one of the games from the Pirates in the 1925 title series.

Veterans Made Good With Nats.

What Coveleskie and Reuther did, especially the first named, hardly needs repetition here. Both came here in 1925, after all other teams had waived on them and considered them through. Coveleskie won 20 games and lost 5 and held foes to an average of 2.84 earned runs per game, leading the league both in winning percentages and effectiveness. Reuther stepped in with an 18 and 7 record.

Crowder first came here in 1926, but did not star locally until brought back in 1930. He undoubtedly is one of the best flingers in the league now, winning the most games credited to any American League pitcher last season, 26.

The other two named, Brown and Weaver, seem to have a following, too, although the southpaw was more or less of the work-horse type, while Weaver has been here but one full season. But the latter surely started off with a rush, winning 22 games last season to give him a record for a first-year pitcher in the junior circuit. Until his 1932 showing, Wes Farrell and Vernon Gomes had held the "first-year" mark, each with 21 triumphs.

Londos' Gem-Studded Belt Sought by Stecher

Chicago, Feb. 27 (U.P.).—Joe Stecher, Nebraska giant and former heavyweight champion wrestler, is after the diamond-studded belt owned by Jim Londos, claimant of the world's mat title.

The Londos-Stetcher match at the Chicago Stadium Friday night has received the official O. K. of the National Wrestling Association, but Stecher insisted that the gleaming belt be at stake, in addition to the title.

The belt was removed from the vaults and placed on exhibition in a downtown store window. Doc Krone, promoter, had it insured against theft and hired a stalwart guard to stand watch. The belt was presented to Londos early in 1931 by the Millionaires Club of Madison Square Garden and the New York Athletic Commission.

DUTRA BOWS TO SARAZEN BY 11 UP

3 Rounds Under Par Win Unofficial World Title.

MIAMI, FLA., Feb. 27 (A.P.).—Three consecutive rounds of below-par golf gave Gene Sarazen the "unofficial world's championship" today, as he smothered Olin Dutra, 11 up and 10 holes to play in their 72-hole match.

Tying the Miami Biltmore course competitive record in the morning with 31-36—67, and doing the first nine holes of the afternoon in 34, Sarazen ended the match by halving the sixty-second hole in three.

Sarazen, British and American Open champion, was seven up on Dutra, Metropolitan and P. G. A. champion, as today's second 36-hole play started, having registered 67-68—135 yesterday, against Dutra's 72-73—145.

Going out this morning in 31 strokes, Sarazen moved his lead to 10 up and held it there at the fifty-fourth hole.

He increased it to 11 by winning the fifty-fifth and made it 12 by taking the fifty-ninth, only to have Dutra win the sixtieth.

Sarazen Wins First Leg On New Doherty Trophy

Miami, Fla., Feb. 27 (A.P.).—Henry L. Doherty, Kansas City utilities magnate, announced here today he would offer annually, beginning this year, a world's championship golf trophy to be competed for by winners of the American and British open championships.

This year's trophy will be awarded to Gene Sarazen, holder of both titles, who today defeated Olin Dutra, metropolitan and P. G. A. champion, 11 and 10 in a special 72-hole match.

The Doherty trophy competition will be held here each winter. In the event the American and British opens are won by the same player, the championship contest will be played against the winner of the P. G. A. title.

Fighter, Floored 3 Times, Stops Foe

Straight Right to Chin Ends Mueller When Levine Gets Mad.

Newark, N. J., Feb. 27 (U.P.).—Benny Levine, rugged Newark middleweight, rose from the canvas tonight after three knockdowns and knocked out Hans Mueller, of Germany, in the third round of their scheduled 10-round bout at Laurel Garden.

The hard-hitting German floored Levine once in the second and twice in the third round with hard right jolts to the jaw. This bouncing about angered Levine. He jumped to his feet after the third trip, rushed Mueller and floored him for the full count with a long, straight right to the chin.

BILOXI BUNTS

Special to The Washington Post.

BILOXI, Miss., Feb. 27.—Nick Altrock was in a reminiscent sort of mood tonight, harkening aback to the days of his pitching when the ball teams distrusted each other so much that visiting clubs always designated a couple of their spare players, like resting pitchers and utility infielders, to either collect tickets or keep an eye on the ticket collectors. Nick, being a pitcher, saw a lot of this service.

One day, according to Nick, some unnamed manager fined him $100 for not covering first base in the first game of a double header. Nick swore innocence—and revenge—and drew a ticket-selling job in the second game that day. His first act of office was to offer the ticket taker $10 to give him back all the tickets he took in until Nick told him to stop. Nick promptly sold $100 worth of grand stand tickets, got the tickets back and sold them over again, pocketing $90 and handing the ticket taker his ten bucks.

Well, Nick was not used to that sort of thing, so he was on pins and needles all evening after the game, while the boys counted up the day's proceeds. Some time that evening the business manager of the home club came into the players' hotel and asked for the name of the player who had sold grand stand tickets. Nick was unearthed, heard the summons with whitening face and went down to the lobby to give himself up. Well, the business manager jumped all over Nick and congratulated him, and said that if he ever slipped as a pitcher there would always be a job waiting for him as a ticket seller.

"No kidding, Nick," said the B. M., "you must have a great sales talk. We took in more money at that window this afternoon than ever before since we opened."

Nick's been looking for the guy who ordinarily worked that window ever since. "He's probably one of these millionaires you read about."

Al Schacht has a $10 bet up with Ed Barrow, of the New York Yankees, that three Yanks who played in the world series will not play regularly this year. The gents are Babe Ruth, Tony Lazzeri and Joe Sewell, all of them knee-deep in the thirties.

Moe Berg's first admission after arriving today was that he had become quite adept at handling chopsticks during his professorship in baseball in Japan. All the boys down here were visibly impressed at the presence of such an accomplished young man in their midst, and several rookies were heard to say, "Just think—chopsticks."

After the boys had donned uniforms at the ball yard somebody brought a couple of thin sticks up to Moe and asked him to give a practical demonstration of how the thing is done, and for the life of him he could not lift anything with the sticks. Altrock and Schacht (accomplished jugglers that they are) took the sticks away from him and, without any practice, went through the motions of eating a full eight-course dinner, Nick even lifting a baseball and nibbling on it.

The first two men to face Walter Stewart when the adept left-hander broke into the big league knocked tremendous home runs off him, and the then rookie flinger was unceremoniously yanked off the mound.

"Hey," said Stewart to the bench as he reached for sweater, "they don't use those kind of balls where I came from."

The whole crowd is going to turn out tomorrow to hiss Griffith in the Mardi Gras parade, wherein he takes the role of the Duke of Washington, knee pantics and all.

Montie Weaver takes about an hour of setting-up exercises a day.

"The best ball club I ever played on," is the way Luke Sewell describes the 1933 Nats. R. B. C.

Pitcher Burns Ball Across The Plate

Workout Cheering to Griffith and Cronin; May Be Starter.

Bolton's Improvement Is Also Good News to Club Bosses.

By BOB CONSIDINE
(Post Staff Correspondent).

BILOXI, Miss., Feb. 27.—If a hush can be said to settle over a ball park population by a score of ki-yi-ing baseball players engaged in 100 stomach-reducing activities, one such thing settled here today when a hook-nosed somewhat hefty man strolled out on the pitching hill juggling a shiny white ball.

It was Al Thomas. On his face was one of those looks that must come over a man when his next move will mean the difference between a good job or no job. On the side lines, a fast-getting-bald man in white ducks popped a couple heads of sweat out of his forehead. It was Mike Martin, whose prestige was stored up in the right arm of the man out on the pitching hill now tightening upon his belt and getting the feel of the slab.

Down at home plate Luke Sewell was pulling on his big mitt, and Joe Cronin was standing in the batter's box, minus a bat.

Thomas Tries His Arm.

Al Thomas, whose salary arm buckled up into excruciating pretzel shape last year, was ready to shoot the works. Six months ago his flipper was crippled. He hadn't pitched a hard ball since the tenth inning of a ball game with the New York Yankees when Bill Ruffing clouted one into the stands to win 1-0. Some time before that he had chipped a bone in that arm. Instead of his blood dissolving it, as is generally the case, it fastened on to another part of the bone like a barnacle on the side of an old ship. It became infected. Surgeons had to lay his arm wide open and remove the growth. Mike Martin had to heal it, bake it, massage it for five months.

Thomas spit in his glove. He cracked his arm and sent a zipping fast ball across the heart of the plate. Again and again he fired that ball down the lane with beautiful speed, control and now and then a confident hook, and with every thump of the ball in Sewell's glove, a wrinkle disappeared from his face and Mike's.

Clark Griffith was an interested spectator. After Thomas was unwillingly pulled away from the pitching slab and relegated unceremoniously to a pepper game, Griffith said: "Tommy is going to deliver the punch our pitching staff can use this year. He's a fifth starter as sure as sin. His being in condition will mean another day's rest for Crowder, Weaver, Stewart and Whitehill."

It was a grayish sort of day here today, but the nip in the weather furthered instead of detracted from the vim with which the workout was held. Manager Cronin's Sunday ultimatum of bigger and better practices held true.

Bolton Shows Improvement.

Next in importance today to the Thomas incident was the work of Cliff Bolton, who rigged out in full catching regalia, was sent backward for countless pop flies. His workout seemed to impress Cronin, who intimated afterward that even if Bolton improves no more than he is right at present, he plans to alternate him with Luke Sewell right on through the season.

Clark Griffith said later in the night that, with the manager right on the field with Bolton and able to communicate with him continually by signals, the rookie receiver will be better handled than by a bench manager. He pointed out Bucky Harris' success with Benny Tate back half a dozen years.

Monte Weaver, who is taking things easier than any player in camp, said tonight that he could see no reason why he shouldn't win more games than last year. "The club is a good 40 per cent better I figure, and I know more about the American League batters than I did last year."

Moe Berg arrived this morning, signed up for 1933, and jumped right into a uniform. Just what part he will play in the 1933 proceedings with Bolton and Sewell around remains problematical.

HIALEAH CHARITY DAY FEATURE IS WON BY SEMAPHORE

Scoutmaster Second to Choice

Trails by Length and Half; Haggerson Takes Third.

HIALEAH PARK, Fla., Feb. 27 (A.P.).—A charity day program opened another week of sport at the home of the Miami Jockey Club, with all proceeds, taxes deducted, being turned over to the Harry-Anna Memorial Home for crippled children at Umatilla, Fla. Receipts from betting, the gate, concessions and salaries of employes were contributed to the cause, and a banner crowd enjoyed the afternoon's festivities.

The Harry-Anna purse, 1-mile test, drew half a dozen seasoned performers to the post. Semaphore, the Greentree Stable's 4-year-old son of Pennant, proved the third successful odds-on choice of the day, leading C. H. Thieriot's Scoutmaster home by a length and a half without being fully extended. J. C. Clark's Haggerson was another length and a half away in third place. Semaphore, paying $3.80, completed the 8 furlongs in 1:37 2-5.

Semaphore Always On Top.

Semaphore always held his field safe for speed. Silvio Coucci shot him into immediate command and kept the colt under steadying restraint, with Brown Wisdom closest in pursuit to the head of the stretch. There Coucci had his work cut out trying to keep the leader from running out. Scoutmaster slipped through threateningly on the inside, but was held safe in the run to the pogoda pole. Haggerson ran a good race while losing ground.

AT THE POST

with Bill Bennings

DEAR AL: MIAMI, FEBRUARY 27.

Well, pal, I broke into the win column with four today. Wise Count, Ebony Lady, Semaphore and Noelwood all dented the victory block, but Noelwood, at $6.30, was the only one to bring a respectable mutuel. The others paid just a little better than a stack of cigar coupons. However, a winner is a winner. I can only pick them and let the totalizator grind out the prices. Tomorrow, I'm sending Polar Brush after some of that tall dough you read about at the congressional investigations. Goes in the last race. Get on the line.

BILL.

FIRST RACE—TEMPLE DANGER went sour the first time and failed to run her true race. I expect to see her out there tomorrow winging for the main end of the dough. FLOWER DAY breaks from the No 1 post and will be the one to beat. BRAN MUFFIN appears to have the edge on the others.

SECOND RACE—INTERRUPTION is one that I dug up and this looks like an ideal spot for the youngster, which has both speed and courage. PAPER PROFITS and KING SAXON, both winners here, to fight it out for the rest of the purse.

THIRD RACE—Looks like AEGIS and a $3 mutuel to me. The conditions couldn't be better and I can't see the stable passing up this chance. CONTRIBUTE and DON ROMERO could lead the rest of the pack home.

FOURTH RACE—JAFFA has displayed her speed here on one occasion and may get out in front tomorrow and coast home. She loves a lightning-fast track and gets such at this course. TELA and MISS CORRINE for the place and show.

FIFTH RACE—GENERAL A and MR. SPONGE hook up in the principal part of this battle. Both are in excellent sprinting condition. There is oodles of early speed here and if the pace is too fast MY DANDY may come up and nip the field in the last sixteenth.

SIXTH RACE—SPUD appears the safest bet in this field of in-and-outers. WE DUN IT is said to be fit and may save the place from IMPEACH. FORT DEARBORN still has the apprentice mark aboard.

Grand Union Lands Feature at Havana

Taking the track at the rise of the barrier, the son of Busy American quickly opened up daylight and steadily increased his advantage, holding a four length lead over Principio at the stretch turn. When he crossed the finish line he was six lengths to the good with Griffin second and Water Port third.

The winner ran the distance in 1:42 3-5 and paid 3 to 1.

URGES RACES BUT NO BETTING

Dover, Del., Feb. 27 (A.P.).—Senator C. R. Van Sant introduced a bill in the Legislature today to legalize horse racing in Delaware, but to penalize gambling on the results. Betting would be prohibited under a penalty of $100 fine or two years in prison.

The State would collect a 20-cent tax on each admission ticket and no race would be permitted for a purse of less than $700.

Golden Miller Installed Grand National Choice

London, Feb. 27 (A.P.).—Golden Miller, Miss Dorothy Paget's 6-year-old gelding which has been assigned 170 pounds for the Grand National, today was made a lukewarm favorite at 100 to 7 in the first call over of betting odds for the steeplechase classic, which will be run at Aintree March 24.

Gregalach, 1929 winner and assigned the top impost of 175 pounds, was the second choice at 18 to 1. Mrs. C. S. Bird, jr.'s Heartbreak Hill and F. Ambrose Clark's Kellaboro Jack, both American owned, were quoted at 20 to 1 while Forbra, last year's winner, was held at 28 to 1. John Hay Whitney's Long Eagle also was well considered at 28 to 1.

C. U. STARTS SPRING GRID DRILLS

Squad of 50 Reports; Weather Forces Work Indoors.

FIFTY Catholic University boys, who will don the moleskins for the Brookland institution next season, inaugurated a six weeks spring training program yesterday afternoon in their spacious gym under the direction of Head Coach Dutch Bergmann and his assistants, George Vik, Forrest Cotton and Eddie La Fond.

The players were plainly disappointed when the muddy condition of the stadium field made it impossible to practice outdoors, but they were given little time to worry about it for Bergmann put them through a lengthy calisthenics drill, followed by 15 minutes of signal practice with the squad divided into four teams.

The only absentee who figures prominently in the 1933 plans was Ray Howell, regular end two seasons ago. Howell broke a leg last season and was forced to the sidelines. He failed to return to school for the second semester, but will report for classes in September.

Preliminary bouts in the C. U. intramural championships will be staged tonight. Tomorrow night the finals will be put on starting at 8 o'clock as the first half of a twin boxing show which will bring Maryland's leather pushers up against the Cardinal ringmen in the nightcap.

Admission will be by invitation only.

Grobmier Meets Judson Thursday

After the rough treatment he received from Gino Garibaldo in their match last week, which finally ended in the latter's disqualification for kicking in the groin, Frank Judson expects to have an easy time of it against Fred Grobmier when the two tangle Thursday night at the Auditorium. The bout headlines Marse Joe Turner's card.

Judson relies principally on his wrist lock, which inflicts a punishing pressure on his opponent, for victory. Grobmier's strong suit, well known to local mat fans, is his Japanese frog scissors.

Fred turned the tables on the dopesters two weeks ago by squeezing a victory out of Paul Jones. However, he will enter the ring Thursday night in the role of under dog.

Other bouts on the program include George Kotsonaras vs. Rudy Dusek, Paul Jones vs. Jim Clinstock, and Floyd Marshall vs. Tiger Nelson. Women accompanied by paying escorts will be admitted free.

Three-Cushion Cue Aces Here Thursday

Washington's three-cushion billiard fans are promised a rare treat at the Lewis & Krause parlors Thursday afternoon and night when Welker Cochran, newly crowned champion, will meet J. N. Bozeman, jr., the runner-up, in matches at 3 o'clock and at 8 o'clock. Besides the angle game, both men will give exhibitions of trick and fancy shots.

Cochran is well known here and that he is versatile is indicated by the fact that he is a former 18.2 balkline champion, having won his title in the tourney staged at the Arcadia here several years ago.

PALE DRY NINE MEETS.

Rip Mills' National Pale Dry Baseball Team, a leader in the midget class last season, will move up into the junior division this year. For that purpose an organization meeting will be held tonight at 7:30 o'clock at 140 Eleventh street southeast. All members of the Oriole Insects are requested to attend also. The team will be sponsored by the Dixie Polish Co.

Nine Sextets to Compete In Post's A. A. U. Tourney

Als Defend Title in Senior Class Against Four Rivals; Four Seek Junior Honors; Weighing In Ends Tonight.

NINE teams will contest for the girls' basket ball championships of the District in the annual A. A. U. tournament sponsored by The Post, it was announced last night by Miss Maude Parker, director of girls' activities of the municipal playgrounds, who again is in charge of the entries.

The Als A. C. will defend its title in the senior class against four rivals, the Howitsers, Jewish Community Center, Satellites and United Typewriters.

Four teams will contest for the junior class crown, which carries individual A. A. U. medals and a team trophy for the victors. These contenders are the Benning, Bethesda-Chevy Chase, Georgetown A. C. and Hyattsville sextets.

Many of the veteran teams of former years have disbanded, notably the Eagles, former senior champions, and the Rockville sextet. Many of the players of the latter team, which for many years was an outstanding contender, are now with the Satellites.

According to present plans, the girls' competition in the tournament, which starts on Thursday at the McKinley Tech High gymnasium, will not commence until the second week of the tourney, due to the heavy schedule in the boys' classes.

The weighing-in ceremonies of the boys' teams will be completed this afternoon and tonight at the Boys Club. Pairings are to be made thereafter.

Hitting the Baseball Trail

With George Earnshaw, big right-hand hurler, and George (Rube) Walberg, veteran left-hand pitcher, on board the train, Manager Connie Mack was satisfied there would be no holdouts among the A's this season. It was reported Earnshaw had signed his contract during the day.

Walberg admitted he had not as yet put his name to a contract, but said:

"But what's the use of staying here and missing training," he said. "I'm going down there, and we can talk it over."

Robert (Moses) Grove, the A's star portside hurler, joined the party shortly before train time and said Mrs. Grove was "much better." His wife was operated on last week in a Cumberland, Md., hotel, and "Lefty" canceled a motor trip South to leave with the squad tonight.

Los Angeles, Feb. 27 (A.P.).—Travis Jackson, New York Giants' shortstop, failed to show up for spring training practice today because of a slight cold in his head.

Manager Bill Terry did not consider Jackson's illness serious, but advised the important cog in his infield machine to avoid exertion and exposure as precaution against influenza.

Radio Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL

THE latest word from Berlin is that Adolf Hitler, German Chancellor, will be heard on the American air on Thursday afternoon, (WJSV, 3 o'clock). Hitler's talk will be part of the campaign the German government is waging for support in the Reichstag elections on March 5.

The last fifteen minutes of Hitler's address will be sent to America. Since the chancellor speaks little English, an interpreter will give an English resume of the speech.

John Charles Thomas will sing a return engagement on the Five Star Theater (WJSV, 10 p. m.)

For his first selection Mr. Thomas has chosen the prologue to Leoncavallo's opera "Pagliacci." His second appearance before the microphone that evening will be in a group of three songs: "Gwine to Heaven," by Wolf; "Forgotten," by Cowles, and "Danny Deever," by Damrosch.

"YOU had several paragraphs on the compositions of William H. Woodin, who is to be the new Secretary of the Treasury, and mentioned that his new 'Covered Wagon Days' suite had been played over the radio by the Marine Band Wednesday," writes J. A. Winn, of the Navy Band. "This suite was broadcast for the first time on the preceding Tuesday by the Navy Band.

"Mr. Woodin came down from New York to hear his new work, and Hans Kindler, who is to play the number at the inaugural concert next Friday night, was also in our audience. Our own scribes made a copy of the suite, which was presented to the National Symphony Orchestra by Lieut. Benter.

"On May 30, 1931, we played Mr. Woodin's Lamento, 'The Unknown Soldier,' in connection with the Memorial Day exercises. The 'four musical compositions' played by the Manhattan Symphony Orchestra last month were played over the air by the Navy Band in 1931 and have appeared on our radio programs at intervals since then. The good things being said by the critics at this time were just as true of Mr. Woodin's works at that time. I was especially impressed with his 'Chinese Magic' and 'Tartar Dance,' and in writing continuity for radio announcers I presented these scenes as I felt them by following the scores.

"The new march, 'Franklin Delano Roosevelt,' was first performed by the Navy Band, and we were also first to broadcast it. The President-elect listened in on this concert, and his letter to Mr. Woodin, dated January 27, from Warm Springs, telling of his reaction to this number, is on the fly leaf of the march as published for the piano. All these works will now be heard frequently in concerts and on the air."

Another of Mr. Woodin's compositions, "The Fire Chief March," dedicated to Ed Wynn, will be featured on the Fire Chief's program over WRC at 9:30 o'clock tonight. Wynn's laugh and the siren and bell signature of the broadcasts inspired the march. Mr. Woodin and Ed Wynn are friends of long standing.

NEW ORLEANS' annual Mardi Gras will come in for its share of air attention today. Impressions of a Mardi Gras queen will be described over WRC by Miss Adele Townsend Jahncke, daughter of Commodore Ernest Lee Jahncke, Assistant Secretary of the Navy, over WRC at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon. Miss Jahncke was queen of the Mardi Gras in 1931.

A description of the Mardi Gras parade will be given over WJSV, beginning at 1:15 o'clock this afternoon.

"Amos 'n' Andy," who come to Loew's Fox Theater on Friday of this week, have been appearing at the International Music Hall in Radio City in New York. There they demonstrated to the radio audience exactly which parts each took in the nightly broadcasts.

A boy from Washington, present at the performance, was eager to know about this but said the Music Hall was so big and his seat so far away, he couldn't see which of the entertainers was moving his lips, so he wasn't any the wiser after he had seen them do it.

Doubtless "Amos 'n' Andy" will put on the same stunt at the Fox. Since this theater is not nearly as large as the New York show house, those in the audience will be able to see quite easily which parts Amos takes and which voices Andy does.

Since they went on the air five years ago Freeman J. Gosden and Charles J. Correll, who play "Amos 'n' Andy," respectively, have portrayed 65 different characters in their radio sketches. Amos is currently playing Lightnin', Kingfish, Brother Crawford and Gwindell, while his partner is kept busy with the lines that fall to Andy, Mr. Van Porter, Pop Johnson and the "landlord."

A PROGRAM from the "42nd Street Special," as it moves Eastward with several carloads of movie stars on their way to Washington to attend the inauguration, will be heard over WRC at 12:15 a. m. Among those who will be heard are Bette Davis, Tom Mix, Jack Dempsey, Joe E. Brown, Laura La Plante, Lyle Talbot and Leo Carillo. . . . Irene Dunne will be interviewed from Hollywood during the California Melodies (WJSV, 9:30 p. m.) . . . Leon Errol, comedian of the musical comedy stage and screen, will be the guest of Julia Sanderson and Frank Crumit (WRC, 8 p. m.) . . . Jane Froman, singing "There's a Ring Around My Rainbow" and Jimmy Dorsey, saxophone soloist playing his own composition, "Oodles of Noodles," will be featured in Leonard Hayton's Chesterfield presentation, (WJSV, 9 p. m.), tonight. Jane also will sing the currently popular "Street of Dreams," and "Willow Weep for Me.' . . . St. David's Day will be observed with a program by the Welsh Male Chorus (WJSV, 3 p. m.) today.

The Magic Carpet crime dramas on Tuesday nights cause the network engineers their greatest headaches. Six engineers walk about on eggs during the broadcasts because there are always shots and those sounds are hard to handle with delicate equipment. Emergency equipment is kept ready and twice they've been off the air due to noises, but the cast picked up the action at the shot and completed the show.

ADDRESSES at a dinner to be given in honor of Claude G. Bowers, Democratic orator and editor, by the Thomas Jefferson Memorial Association will be broadcast from New York, (WJZ, 10 p. m.). The speakers will be Representative Ruth Bryan Owen, Josephus Daniels and Will Hays, fellow Hoosier of Mr. Bowers.

Bob White
The Old Philosopher SAYS:

Question—Do you think married women should work, thereby doing single girls and men out of a job?

Answer—On the face of this question, I should say no. But there are many reasons why married women work in jobs outside the home. I know of many for whom life is very difficult. The husband earns insufficient to keep the wolf away from the door and the woman braves the world to keep the home fires burning. Surely no one would levy abuse at her for this. Particularly where the husband may be ill and unable to work. There are so many reasons that one hesitates to condemn. In other days things were different, but in these days any member of the family who has the chance to work ought to take it.

Mind you, I do not believe in unfair competition. There are cases of this—many—and always will be, but from my knowledge most married women who are at work today are there, not by choice, but from sheer downright necessity.

You must deal kindly with these people, for you do not know the sorrow that may be at the heart's door.

So my answer is: Yes, married women have perfect liberty to seek employment, and more power to them, when they take up family financing.

Bob White, the old philosopher, will answer an outstanding question each week day on this page. He is heard twice daily over WMAL, at 8 a. m. and 4:30 p. m.

Mrs. Sidney C. Graves To Build $45,000 Home

Application for a permit to build a two-story, stone residence at an estimated cost of $45,000, was filed with the office of District Building Inspector Oehmann yesterday by Mrs. Sidney C. Graves, society woman. The residence, to be built at 2401 Foxhall road northwest, will be located on a lot approximately 218 feet wide and 538 feet deep.

The dwelling will contain nineteen rooms and have a cubical content of 100,000 feet. James L. Parsons, jr., will be the builder and Clifton B. White, the architect. The house will be 30 feet high.

A New Yorker AT LARGE

By MARK BARRON.

Babe Ruth, Peggy Hopkins Joyce, Bishop William T. Manning, Traffic Cop MacDonald, Otto Kahn, Lee and Jake Shubert, John McGraw, Nicholas Murray Butler, Frank Campbell (the undertaker), Samuel Seabury, Mayor O'Brien, Tony the bootlegger, Jean Dalrymple, Faith Bacon, Gladys Glad.

Also, Peggy Joyce, Mr. Zero Lynn Fontanne, Tammany Chieftain Curry, Ina Clarie, Magistrate Corrigan, Grover Whalen, Dr. Charles Namack, Lawrence Tibbett, the Sligo Slasher, James J. Johnston.

Also, Howard Scott, Texas Guinan, George Jean Nathan, Al Smith, Capt. Bob Bartlett, Lillian Gish, Talluhah Bankhead, Adolph Ochs, Yehudi Menuhin, Anne Morgan, Ogden L. Mills, Eugene Leontovich, Ely Culbertson, Grand Duchess Marie, Mae West, Stanley Walker, James Farley, Roxy, Gilda Gray, Alice Brady and George M. Cohan.

Quite incidentally, if you want to devise a parlor game, you might try to see how many of the above mentioned names you can identify.

Ballyhoo.

Sandwich board men, those wooden shoe fellows, usually advertise such things as shoe repairing shops, beauty parlors and pants patching emporiums.

So it was sufficiently upsetting to meet up with that sandwich man walking along Madison avenue advertising a book. An investigation revealed that he was ballyhooing the newest novel from the pen of Robert Nathan.

The latter is an author who has written several books which have won critical bouquets from the reviewers, but he was dissatisfied with the fact that in these hours the sale of books is not overly large.

Wherewith, Brother Nathan writes a new novel which attracts flowery comments, but he doesn't depend on that. He hires himself a man to walk up and down the avenues telling the world in person what a grand book it is.

Catching Criminals.

In Times Square are a pair of news stands which apecialize in out-of-town newspapers. If you watch these stands for a lengthy time it will be observed that there are two or three men who loaf there day after day. These men are detectives.

Next to the railway terminals, these two out-of-town news stands are the most logical places in the city to capture fugitive criminals. Say a bank robber from Minneapolis or Punxsutawney or New Orleans has fled to New York. The odds are that the first place in town he will head for is these stands to buy the home town paper.

AUCTION SALES

FRIDAY, MARCH 10, 1933—
THOS. J. OWEN & SON, Auctioneers,
1431 Eye Street N.W.

TRUSTEES' SALE OF VALUABLE IMPROVED REAL ESTATE BEING A SEMI-DETACHED BRICK DWELLING KNOWN AS PREMISES NO. 6807 SIXTEENTH STREET NORTHWEST.

By virtue of a certain deed of trust duly recorded in Liber No. 6360, Folio 251 et seq., of the land records of the District of Columbia, and at the request of the party secured thereby, the undersigned trustees substituted in Equity Cause No. 45386, will sell, at public auction, within the office of Thos. J. Owen & Son, 1431 I street northwest, on FRIDAY, THE TENTH DAY OF MARCH, A. D. 1933, AT ONE O'CLOCK P. M., the following-described land and premises, situate in the District of Columbia, and designated as and being lot 71 in the subdivision made by S. J. Shinnick of square 2722 as per plat recorded in Liber 84, Folio 100, of the Records of the Office of the Surveyor of the District of Columbia. Subject to the building restriction line shown on said plat.

TERMS OF SALE—All cash. A deposit of $500.00 will be required at time of sale. All conveyancing, recording, &c., at cost of purchaser. Terms of sale to be complied with within thirty days from day of sale, otherwise the trustees reserve the right to resell the property at the risk and cost of defaulting purchaser, after five days' advertisement of such resale in some newspaper published in Washington, D. C.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

PROHIBITION GOES TO THE JURY. CONGRESS has returned the liquor situation to the voters to have it analyzed.

* * * *

It has given prohibition back to the States in the original package.

* * * *

The question of whether Government of the bathtub gin makers by the bathtub gin makers and for the bathtub gin makers shall perish from the earth now goes to State conventions.

* * * *

Congress has at last come around to the feeling that we might as well repeal prohibition as drink to excess.

* * * *

Congress fixes seven years as the time limit within which the States must ratify. Seven years for 36 States to agree on anything is at least two under par.

* * * *

The prohibition amendment became effective thirteen years ago, and had eaten the finish off practically every piano and mahogany table in the land in the first twelve months.

* * * *

It was a noble experiment, with most of the experimenting being done in bathtubs, cellars and speakeasies. It developed fake-label designing to a high art, substituted the metal cap for the old-fashioned bottle cork and made the country's favorite joke, "Mister, your suitcase is leaking."

* * * *

It put the doctor's prescription permanently among the country's ten best sellers, caused all librarians to place the statutes of America on the shelf marked, "Fiction only," and made hypocrisy an accepted feature of American character.

* * * *

For thirteen years the country has been obliged to flavor rum punches with hair tonic, make egg noggs out of bug spray and use rubbing liniment for its cocktail parties. And Congress has at last come around to the point of deciding that the people should have a chance to decide whether they have suffered enough or still consider floor varnish a delicacy.

* * * *

Millions of Americans had fallen into such habits under prohibition that they knocked on the door and waited for a signal before entering their own homes.

* * * *

Prohibition was passed during the World War and it made a major disturbance permanent.

* * * *

The end appears in sight. All that is needed is a favorable vote in 36 States. But it will take a long time to get enough voters out of the speakeasies long enough to put them out of business.

FUMBLED BY THE RULE MAKERS.

It begins to appear as if what the financial world needed back in 1929 was some way to penalize holding companies 25 yards for holding.

Hitler is said to be considering calling back the Kaiser to serve merely as a guest artist.

Disbarred Lawyer Must Serve Term

Abner Siegel, disbarred lawyer, will have to serve a sentence of 18 months' imprisonment, Justice James M. Proctor, in District Supreme Court, ruled yesterday after withdrawing from Prohibition Officer Amos A. Steele a request for a report on the advisability of allowing Siegel to be placed on probation.

Convicted of attempting to bribe a guard at the District Jail, Siegel first appealed to the Court of Appeals and when his conviction was sustained there he went to the United States Supreme Court, which refused to grant him a hearing.

When the mandate from the Court of Appeals was sent to the District Supreme Court and Siegel was brought in to have sentence imposed, he asked for leniency on the grounds that his disbarment as a lawyer was enough of a hardship. No reason was given for ordering the sentence served before the probation report was made.

Clifton Manor Is Sold At Auction for $70,000

The eight-story and basement, brick and concrete apartments building at 2514 Fourteenth street northwest, formerly known as Clifton Manor, was sold at public auction yesterday for $70,000 to the M. A. Long Co., of Baltimore, holders of the first trust, and sole bidder. The sale was advertised by John J. Hamilton, of this city, and C. Ralph Leland, of Baltimore, trustees. T. W. Owen was the auctioneer.

The building was erected in 1929 by the Long company. Milburn & Heister, of this city, being its architects. Its current assessed valuation is $181,246, of which $21,246 represents land. Its owners have been the Clifton Manor Corporation and the 2514 Fourteenth Street Corporation. The building has a width of approximately 48 feet, a depth of 125 feet and contains 56 apartments.

DEADLOCKED, JURY IN ECKLUND KILLING RETIRES FOR NIGHT

Is Locked Up After Nearly Eight Hours' Deliberation on Fate of Four Men.

Deadlocked in its effort to decide whether the four alleged murderers of Einer H. Ecklund should live or die, the jury was locked up at 11 o'clock last night after nearly eight hours of deliberation.

Soon after 9 o'clock the foreman asked that he be given additional instructions by Justice Daniel W. O'Donoghue. The judge was notified, but did not appear in court. It was believed the request of the jurymen involved a point on which the judge could not properly give instructions.

As the defendants were led from the cells to the prisoners' van, Everett Blackwell, one of those accused, waved reassuringly to a few friends near the courthouse door. The other three, Albert Ernest Cash, Fewel Workman and Claude Myers, the last two colored, appeared downcast.

Took Case at 2:40 P. M.

Since all of the defendants admitted their complicity in the murder of Ecklund during an attempted holdup near the new House Office Building on January 20, it was thought that the deadlock was in dispute of the degree of guilt that should be attributed to each of the men.

The question whether all or any of the defendants should expiate with their lives was placed with the jury at 2:40 p. m., and at 6 p. m. the jurymen were taken to dinner and upon their return two hours later immediately resumed deliberations.

Outside the courtroom was Elsie Ecklund, the daughter of the slain man. She was garbed in black.

Urges Punishment.

"Sometimes when I am feeling gloomy, and I think that they took my father's life, I hope they are sent to the electric chair," she said. "Then at other times, I think, well, my father is gone and taking four lives will not bring him back to me. But I am convinced that they should be punished. Just what should be done to them, I am undecided."

Standing vigil near the door of the courtroom was Thomas Cash, the brother of Albert Ernest Cash, whom the Government has accused of being the guiding hand behind the holdup and murder.

"Maybe I'm wrong," he said, "but I can not figure how four lives can be taken for one life. I swear, my brother meant to kill no one. He intended to rob, there is no doubt of that, but he had no intention to kill anyone. He should be punished, but I don't think by taking his life. Even he says he intended to rob, but not to kill."

Arguments for Four.

The early part of the day was taken up with arguments in behalf of the four defendants: Cash, who allegedly plotted the crime; Blackwell, who allegedly aided and abetted at the scene of the killing, and Workman and Myers, both colored, who allegedly did the actual killing.

James A. O'Shea, one of the attorneys for Cash, based his argument on the contention that Cash had no intention to kill; while Louis Whitestone, the attorney for Workman, argued insanity as a defense, and because of the insanity his client was unable to form the intent to kill.

Assistant United States Attorney William H. Collins, in his closing arguments, refuted the contentions of the defense counsel and charged that all of the men, being in a common enterprise, were guilty of murder in the first degree, which would automatically bring imposition of the death penalty.

In his charge to the jurymen, Justice O'Donoghue instructed that they might bring verdicts of murder in either the first or second degree. A second degree conviction would carry with it imprisonment for 20 years to life.

HOLIDAY MARKED BY DANISH JUNIOR LEAGUE

FATHER, 78, IS HELD FOR JURY IN SLAYING

Says Son-in-Law Was Too Proud to Peddle Fruit as Daughter Did.

A father's love for his only daughter was unfolded before a coroner's jury yesterday, when Albert Koch, 78, retired photographer, was held for the grand jury in connection with the murder of his son-in-law, William Palmer Gray, 45.

The elderly man was in a near state of collapse as he told of the fatal shooting Sunday in their third-floor apartment at 1420 North Capitol street. Gray's death climaxed a family quarrel of long standing, Koch declared.

He testified that the shot which killed his son-in-law was accidentally discharged.

"I didn't mean to hurt him," he said. "I had the pistol in my hand only because I wanted to get after him for not working, and he was such a rough fellow I thought he might strike me. I figured if I let him see I had a gun he wouldn't try to get rough. But he hit me anyway, and the revolver went off when I tried to push him away."

Only when his daughter, Mrs. Rose Gray, 28, was called to the stand, did Koch show any evidence of interest in the proceedings. He raised his head from a bowed position and listened intently.

Her testimony was much the same as that given by her father. She wept bitterly in describing the affair and was helped from the stand after concluding her story. Mrs. Koch was excused from testifying by Acting Coroner A. Magruder Macdonald.

Koch broke down in tears as he told of how his daughter was forced to go from door to door selling fruit. Gray, he said, was "too proud to do the work."

After hearing testimony for nearly an hour, the jury ordered Koch held for the grand jury. Apparently unperturbed by the murder charge, he kissed his wife and daughter good-bye and climbed into a patrol wagon and was taken to the District Jail.

Girl Loses Action To Recover $1,200

Statute of Limitations Enters Alleged Theft of Travel Funds.

An indictment charging Alpheus J. Sherman, former conductor of a travel bureau, with embezzling $1,200 from Miss Jessie Holt, an employe of Children's Hospital, was dropped in the District Supreme Court yesterday when Chief Justice A. A. Wheat ruled that the indictment had been returned more than three years after the transaction and therefore was outlawed by the statute of limitations.

Sherman and his brother, James, will stand trial March 13 on another indictment, charging them with embezzling $600 from Miss Holt. The money was paid by her, she said, to cover expenses of a world-wide tour that fell through.

Through Attorney George D. Horning, jr., Sherman, in pleading that the offense which he faced yesterday was not valid in law, claimed that he was not a fugitive, as the Government contended. Had he been a fugitive the statute would not have operated to bar him from prosecution. The remaining indictment comes within this three-year statute.

TRAFFIC TOLL

TO DATE.

With the influx of many out-of-town motorists for the inauguration, traffic will become more congested and difficult to handle due to the fact that most of these drivers are not familiar with our traffic regulations. If an out-of-towner should happen to have a near-accident with you, don't lose your temper.

It is painful to the visitor, ignorant of the traffic laws, to have some home-town motorist bawl him out for an infraction he knew nothing about.

The accident figures are:

	1932	1933
Deaths	19	11
Injuries	589	531
Accidents	1,281	1,305

"Be Careful"

Man With 100 Stitches Asks Attacker Be Freed

Although he was slashed so severely that physicians were required to take 100 stitches to close his wounds, Andrew J. Ford yesterday asked Assistant United States Attorney Michael F. Keogh not to prosecute Almon D. Lovett, charged with having inflicted the wounds.

Mr. Keogh refused to drop the charges and Almon was held under a $1,500 bond for the grand jury when he was given a preliminary hearing before Judge John P. McMahon in Police Court. Ford spent nine days in the hospital recovering from his injuries.

EXPLANATION ENDS IGNORED ACTORS' IRE

Disgruntled amateur actors who were ignored in the selection of plays for the finals in the 1933 District one-act play tournament were reported to be greatly mollified last night by the explanation from the Community Center Department of the manner in which the presentations were judged.

Rehearsals for the finals, which are to be held tomorrow night at McKinley High School, went forward smoothly last night.

The play tournament committee will meet at 4:30 p. m. today at the Franklin Administration Building to complete plans for the finals. The judges of the finals will be the dramatic editors of the five Washington newspapers.

In addition to selecting the best play in the contest, the judges will pick the actor giving the best performance and the one excelling in voice and diction.

The plays to be presented are "The Love Pirate," by the St. James Players; "The Girl," by the Southeast Community Players; "The Wolf at the Door," by the Troupers of the East Washington Community Center, and "Betrayal," by the religious drama group of the Washington Federation of Churches.

Studio Club Will Show Paintings During March

In the exhibition will be a historical map by Eddie Groves, portraits in oil and pencil by Olga Helms and book-cover designs by local artists.

DANISH JUNIOR UNIT HOLDS CELEBRATION

Brave Norsemen who once circled a decorated barrel on fast horses in competition for the honor of being king of the festival may well have been proud if they could have seen their descendants celebrate the "Fastelawn Masquerade" last night at the Y. W. C. A., 614 E street northwest.

Following the Viking custom of belaboring a heavy barrel suspended from the rafters until one person is successful in breaking it and is thus chosen as king, the Danish Junior League in a celebration sponsored by the Danish Club of Washington crowned its own royal leaders.

Hans Jorgensen, president of the group, explained that in the Norse celebrations the festival was held as a sun holiday and later it was merged with the pre-Lenten holiday. The Lutherans of Denmark, he explained, attach no religious significance to the day, but merely celebrate it through custom.

In the original observance horsemen circled a huge barrel containing a black cat, and the one who was able to break the container and release the animal was adjudged leader of the day.

Fred C. Thnielsen, garbed as an old Danish fisherwoman, wearing wooden boots, checked skirts and ample kerchief, was adjudged the most original in choice of costume by popular vote.

Fingerprints Identify Man Who Fell Dead

John E. Chapple, 40, of 436 Tenth street southwest, whom police were unable to identify since the morning of February 22, when he dropped dead near Scott Circle from heart disease, was identified yesterday afternoon through the efforts of Detective Sergt. Dan Murphy, of the homicide squad, who found a set of the man's fingerprints filed at the Bureau of Criminal Identification.

Identity was confirmed by the man's sister, Mrs. Sadie Chishom, of the Tenth street address, who viewed the body at the Morgue. Chapple was arrested in March, 1932, and served a short time in the District Jail for intoxication.

PHILADELPHIA FOUND GREATLY BENEFITED BY 'RENOVIZE' DRIVE

Capital Group Makes Flying Visit to Learn How Plan Aided City.

Enthusiastic reports were given last night by the flying squadron of the renovize Washington campaign upon their return from a one-day air trip to Philadelphia to study methods used in a similar campaign just completed in that city.

Results of the trip and recommendations will be given by the Washington Advertising Club committee at a meeting at 2 p. m. today at the Raleigh Hotel. Arthur B. Heaton, general chairman of the campaign, will report to the general committee at headquarters of the Washington Board of Trade.

The local renovize heads spent several hours with men who conducted the Philadelphia campaign, collected data used in that drive and inspected an exhibit demonstrating how the renovizing work was carried on.

Philadelphia Results.

The Philadelphia drive, which began January 3 and ended last Friday, developed $21,000,000 worth of business, it was learned. Many homes and stores that had been vacant were rented because of improvements made on adjoining buildings.

Members of the local committee indicated that the general plan used in the Philadelphia drive will be adopted here. This will call for a system of canvassing similar to that followed in the Community Chest campaigns. However, local residents will not be urged to spend money on any particular product—but to renovize, not necessarily borrowing from the established credit fund of $500,000, but by taking advantage of low prices with the money they may have available for home improvement.

Whole City Benefited.

Seven thousand workers were used for canvassing in Philadelphia. How many will be used here has not yet been determined.

The campaign, it was stated by the Philadelphia authorities, is one that will benefit the entire community, affecting every phase of business.

Members of the Washington Advertising Club committee who made the trip with Mr. Heaton were Charles J. Columbus, managing director; Col. Leroy W. Herron, and James W. Hardey, chairman of the committee.

The committee learned that the word "renovize" was created in Cleveland and later used in Philadelphia. It is derived from the words, "renovate and modernize."

Night Parking Ban Downtown Asked

North Capital Citizens Association Also Demands Old-Car Removal.

Abolition of all-night parking in the downtown area was asked last night by the North Capitol Citizens Association, meeting at McKinley High School. The same motion recommended that the Police Department see to the removal of old and broken down cars parked in the streets.

The proposed extension of the Bloomingdale Playground, in McMillan Park, was described by Miss Sibyl Baker, superintendent of District playgrounds, who received in a formal motion the support of the association in procuring from the District Commissioners the necessary appropriation for the work.

The association indorsed the action of the Federation of Citizens Associations in opposing the proposed $2,500,000 loan from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, and agreed to cooperate with the Dupont Circle and other organizations in demanding legislation to exterminte starlings.

Weigie, the White House Norwegian elk hound, took French leave early yesterday. Whether he anticipated what was going to happen around the Executive Mansion this week and did not want to be a party to the induction of a new administration, or whether he just wanted to put one over on the White House police is not known.

Anyway, the preparations for the induction made possible his escape through the removal of a part of the fence along Pennsylvania avenue. Sergt. Arthur M. Gibbons was placed at a disadvantage as he could not duck under the stands and Weigie could.

Weigie remained at large from 1:30 a. m. until 9 a. m. He was spied strolling nonchalantly along L street near Twenty-first street northwest, probably having forgotten that the White House garage was located in that vicinity.

Employes of the garage recognized him and shouted: "Here, Weigie!" Caught off his guard, he answered, and back to the White House he went.

GAS LIGHT CONCERNS TO RAISE VALUATION

$10,000,000 in Excess of P. U. C. Records Will Be Claimed.

A valuation of $30,000,000, some $10,000,000 above the figure now carried on the books of the Public Utilities Commission, will be claimed by the Washington and the Georgetown Gas Light companies, it was revealed yesterday just before a public hearing was continued until April 3 upon request of the utilities.

Although the hearing was formally opened at 10 a. m. yesterday morning, no evidence was offered by either the gas companies or the commission. Stoddard M. Stevens, New York attorney for the Chase National Bank interests, explained that the preparation of data by the utilities had been delayed by the death of William H. Blood, jr., a valuation engineer, and the illness of Joseph I. Weller, realty expert.

Engineers of both the commission and the gas companies will hold informal conferences to compare figures, but no questions of policy will be determined prior to resumption of the hearing.

Previously it had been planned to hold formal conferences with the aim of reducing the number of controversial issues, but William McK. Clayton, chairman of the public utilities committee of the Federation of Citizens Associations, objected, and the plan was modified.

A printed report of hearings before the Senate District Committee on the bill to merge the Washington and Georgetown companies as released yesterday reveals some new figures inserted by People's Counsel Richmond B. Keech.

The testimony was that the actual authorized capitalization of the Washington company is $2,400,000, of which $1,500,000 has been paid in cash. From 1848 to 1932, approximately $25,000,000 has been paid in dividends, Mr. Keech said. The average annual rate of dividend on stock outstanding for the period from 1857 to 1932, inclusive, was 16.8 per cent, while the average rate of dividends on actual cash paid for stock was 29.3 per cent. In addition, the company's surplus is over $8,000,000.

A seven-day drive for members will conclude with the muster call. A series of radio addresses featured the drive.

Dismissal May Be Granted; Appeals Lost by Landrum, Mostyn and Laflin.

With his conviction set aside by the District Court of Appeals yesterday, Robert J. Barrett, suspended detective sergeant, probably will learn today whether he will have to stand a new trial or be acquitted through dismissal of the accusation of beating George M. Baber. If the charge is dropped Barrett will seek reinstatement in the Police Department.

Dropping of the indictment is in the hands of United States Attorney Leo A. Rover, and his assistant, Julian Richards, who prosecuted Barrett. Neither of those officials had had time yesterday to study their future course in regard to a new trial.

Allegedly Struck Baber.

The charge against Barrett was that he struck Baber with his hands in effecting Baber's arrest shortly after Mrs. Lizzie Jaynes, cashier of the Garden T-Shoppe, near Eighteenth street and Columbia road, was fatally wounded in a hold-up. In reversing the action of a jury in District Supreme Court in finding Barrett guilty of a simple assault, the appellate court pointed out that Baber's arrest was in connection with the investigation of a murder and that the officer was entitled to use such force as was necessary under the circumstances.

Chief Justice Martin and Associate Justices Robb and Van Orsdel reversed the conviction while Justices Hitz and Groner dissented. Justice Groner cited for his dissent his belief that Barrett had a fair trial. However, he said, that "the injury sustained by Baber was trifling, and a moderate fine rather than imprisonment for a year in jail would have better met the ends of justice."

At the same time, the Appellate Court sustained convictions in two other so-called "third degree" cases involving policemen. The conviction of Vivian H. Landrum was affirmed as were those of James A. Mostyn and William R. Leflin.

Sentenced to Pay Fine.

Landrum was sentenced to pay a fine of $100 after he was found guilty of hitting a colored man, and Mostyn and Laflin were convicted of beating James Henry Harker in a cell at the old Sixth Precinct station. Both Mostyn and Laflin are under sentences to pay fines of $500 each and serve a year in jail. The story of Harker's beating appeared first exclusively in The Washington Post and led to an investigation by the Department of Justice.

In reversing the Barrett case, the higher court held that there were reversable errors committed in the course of the trial both as to excluding evidence by the defense and in disallowing requested instructions to the jurors. Attorneys E. Russell Kelly, Harry T. Whelan and W. Gwynn Gardiner represented Barrett.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

PROHIBITION GOES TO THE JURY.

CONGRESS has returned the liquor situation to the voters to have it analyzed.

• • • •

It has given prohibition back to the States in the original package.

• • • •

The question of whether Government of the bathtub gin makers by the bathtub gin makers and for the bathtub gin makers shall perish from the earth now goes to State conventions.

• • • •

Congress has at last come around to the feeling that we might as well repeal prohibition as drink to excess.

• • • •

Congress fixes seven years as the time limit within which the States must ratify. Seven years for 36 States to agree on anything is at least two under par.

• • • •

The prohibition amendment became effective thirteen years ago, and had eaten the finish off practically every piano and mahogany table in the land in the first twelve months.

• • • •

It was a noble experiment, with most of the experimenting being done in bathtubs, cellars and speakeasies. It developed fake-label designing to a high art, substituted the metal cap for the old-fashioned bottle cork and made the country's favorite joke, "Mister, your suitcase is leaking."

• • • •

It put the doctor's prescription permanently among the country's ten best sellers, caused all librarians to place the statutes of America on the shelf marked, "Fiction only," and made hypocrisy an accepted feature of American character.

• • • •

For thirteen years the country has been obliged to flavor rum punches with hair tonic, make egg noggs out of bug spray and use rubbing liniment for its cocktail parties. And Congress has at last come around to the point of deciding that the people should have a chance to decide whether they have suffered enough or still consider floor varnish a delicacy.

• • • •

Millions of Americans had fallen into such habits under prohibition that they knocked on the door and waited for a signal before entering their own homes.

• • • •

Prohibition was passed during the World War and it made a major disturbance permanent.

• • • •

The end appears in sight. All that is needed is a favorable vote in 36 States. But it will take a long time to get enough voters out of the speakeasies long enough to put them out of business.

DEADLOCKED, JURY IN ECKLUND KILLING RETIRES FOR NIGHT

Is Locked Up After Nearly Eight Hours' Deliberation on Fate of Four Men.

Deadlocked in its effort to decide whether the four alleged murderers of Einer H. Ecklund should live or die, the jury was locked up at 11 o'clock last night after nearly eight hours of deliberation.

Soon after 9 o'clock the foreman asked that he be given additional instructions by Justice Daniel W. O'Donoghue. The judge was notified, but did not appear in court. It was believed the request of the jurymen involved a point on which the judge could not properly give instructions.

As the defendants were led from the cells to the prisoners' van, Everett Blackwell, one of those accused, waved reassuringly to a few friends near the courthouse door. The other three, Albert Ernest Cash, Fewel Workman and Claude Myers, the last two colored, appeared downcast.

Took Case at 2:40 P. M.

Since all of the defendants admitted their complicity in the murder of Ecklund during an attempted holdup near the new House Office Building on January 20, it was thought that the deadlock was in dispute of the degree of guilt that should be attributed to each of the men.

The question whether all or any of the defendants should expiate with their lives was placed with the jury at 2:40 p. m., and at 6 p. m. the jurymen were taken to dinner and upon their return two hours later immediately resumed deliberations.

Outside the courtroom was Elsie Ecklund, the daughter of the slain man. She was garbed in black.

Urges Punishment.

"Sometimes when I am feeling gloomy, and I think that they took my father's life, I hope they are sent to the electric chair," she said. "Then at other times, I think, well, my father is gone and taking four lives will not bring him back to me. But I am convinced that they should be punished. Just what should be done to them, I am undecided."

Standing vigil near the door of the courtroom was Thomas Cash, the brother of Albert Ernest Cash, whom the Government has accused of being the guiding hand behind the holdup and murder.

"Maybe I'm wrong," he said, "but I can not figure how four lives can be taken for one life. I swear, my brother meant to kill no one. He intended to rob, there is no doubt of that, but he had no intention to kill anyone. He should be punished, but I don't think by taking his life. Even he says he intended to rob, but not to kill."

Arguments for Four.

The early part of the day was taken up with arguments in behalf of the four defendants: Cash, who allegedly plotted the crime; Blackwell, who allegedly aided and abetted at the scene of the killing, and Workman and Myers, both colored, who allegedly did the actual killing.

James A. O'Shea, one of the attorneys for Cash, based his argument on the contention that Cash had no intention to kill; while Louis Whitestone, the attorney for Workman, argued insanity as a defense, and because of the insanity his client was unable to form the intent to kill.

Assistant United States Attorney William H. Collins, in his closing arguments, refuted the contentions of the defense counsel and charged that all of the men, being in a common enterprise, were guilty of murder in the first degree, which would automatically bring imposition of the death penalty.

In his charge to the jurymen, Justice O'Donoghue instructed that they might bring verdicts of murder in either the first or second degree. A second degree conviction would carry with it imprisonment for 20 years to life.

FATHER, 78, IS HELD FOR JURY IN SLAYING

Says Son-in-Law Was Too Proud to Peddle Fruit as Daughter Did.

A father's love for his only daughter was unfolded before a coroner's jury yesterday, when Albert Koch, 78, retired photographer, was held for the grand jury in connection with the murder of his son-in-law, William Palmer Gray, 45.

The elderly man was in a near state of collapse as he told of the fatal shooting Sunday in their third-floor apartment at 1420 North Capitol street. Gray's death climaxed a family quarrel of long standing, Koch declared.

He testified that the shot which killed his son-in-law was accidentally discharged.

"I didn't mean to hurt him," he said. "I had the pistol in my hand only because I wanted to get after him for not working, and he was such a rough fellow I thought he might strike me. I figured if I let him see I had a gun he wouldn't try to get rough. But he hit me anyway, and the revolver went off when I tried to push him away."

Only when his daughter, Mrs. Rose Gray, 28, was called to the stand, did Koch show any evidence of interest in the proceedings. He raised his head from a bowed position and listened intently.

Her testimony was much the same as that given by her father. She wept bitterly in describing the affair and was helped from the stand after concluding her story. Mrs. Koch was excused from testifying by Acting Coroner A. Magruder Macdonald.

Koch broke down in tears as he told of how his daughter was forced to go from door to door selling fruit. Gray, he said, was "too proud to do the work."

After hearing testimony for nearly an hour, the jury ordered Koch held for the grand jury. Apparently unperturbed by the murder charge, he kissed his wife and daughter good-bye and climbed into a patrol wagon and was taken to the District Jail.

Although he was slashed so severely that physicians were required to take 100 stitches to close his wounds, Andrew J. Ford yesterday asked Assistant United States Attorney Michael F. Keogh not to prosecute Almon D. Lovett, charged with having inflicted the wounds.

Mr. Keogh refused to drop the charges and Almon was held under a $1,500 bond for the grand jury when he was given a preliminary hearing before Judge John P. McMahon in Police Court. Ford spent nine days in the hospital recovering from his injuries.

EXPLANATION ENDS IGNORED ACTORS' IRE

Disgruntled amateur actors who were ignored in the selection of plays for the finals in the 1933 District one-act play tournament were reported to be greatly mollified last night by the explanation from the Community Center Department of the manner in which the presentations were judged.

Rehearsals for the finals, which are to be held tomorrow night at McKinley High School, went forward smoothly last night.

The play tournament committee will meet at 4:30 p. m. today at the Franklin Administration Building to complete plans for the finals. The judges of the finals will be the dramatic editors of the five Washington newspapers.

In addition to selecting the best play in the contest, the judges will pick the actor giving the best performance and the one excelling in voice and diction.

The plays to be presented are "The Love Pirate," by the St. James Players; "The Girl," by the Southeast Community Players; "The Wolf at the Door," by the Troupers of the East Washington Community Center, and "Betrayal," by the religious drama group of the Washington Federation of Churches.

DANISH JUNIOR UNIT HOLDS CELEBRATION

Brave Norsemen who once circled a decorated barrel on fast horses in competition for the honor of being king of the festival may well have been proud if they could have seen their descendants celebrate the "Fastelawn Masquerade" last night at the Y. W. C. A., 614 E street northwest.

Following the Viking custom of belaboring a heavy barrel suspended from the rafters until one person is successful in breaking it and is thus chosen as king, the Danish Junior League in a celebration sponsored by the Danish Club of Washington crowned its own royal leaders.

Hans Jorgensen, president of the group, explained that in the Norse celebrations the festival was held as a sun holiday and later it was merged with the pre-Lenten holiday. The Lutherans of Denmark, he explained, attach no religious significance to the day, but merely celebrate it through custom.

In the original observance horsemen circled a huge barrel containing a black cat, and the one who was able to break the container and release the animal was adjudged leader of the day.

Fred C. Thnielsen, garbed as an old Danish fisherwoman, wearing wooden boots, checked skirts and ample kerchief, was adjudged the most original in choice of costume by popular vote.

Statute of Limitations Enters Alleged Theft of Travel Funds.

An indictment charging Alpheus J. Sherman, former conductor of a travel bureau, with embezzling $1,200 from Misss Jessie Holt, an employe of Children's Hospital, was dropped in the District Supreme Court yesterday when Chief Justice A. A. Wheat ruled that the indictment had been returned more than three years after the transaction and therefore was outlawed by the statute of limitations.

Sherman and his brother, James, will stand trial March 13 on another indictment, charging them with embezzling $600 from Miss Holt. The money was paid by her, she said, to cover expenses of a world-wide tour that fell through.

Through Attorney George D. Horning, jr., Sherman, in pleading that the offense which he faced yesterday was not valid in law, claimed that he was not a fugitive, as the Government contended. Had he been a fugitive the statute would not have operated to bar him from prosecution. The remaining indictment comes within this three-year statute.

Studio Club Will Show Paintings During March

In the exhibition will be a historical map by Eddie Groves, portraits in oil and pencil by Olga Helms and book-cover designs by local artists.

Fingerprints Identify Man Who Fell Dead

John E. Chapple, 40, of 436 Tenth street southwest, whom police were unable to identify since the morning of February 22, when he dropped dead near Scott Circle from heart disease, was identified yesterday afternoon through the efforts of Detective Sergt. Dan Murphy, of the homicide squad, who found a set of the man's fingerprints filed at the Bureau of Criminal Identification.

Identity was confirmed by the man's sister, Mrs. Sadie Chishom, of the Tenth street address, who viewed the body at the Morgue. Chapple was arrested in March, 1932, and served a short time in the District Jail for intoxication.

A valuation of $30,000,000, some $10,000,000 above the figure now carried on the books of the Public Utilities Commission, will be claimed by the Washington and the Georgetown Gas Light companies, it was revealed yesterday just before a public hearing was continued until April 3 upon request of the utilities.

Although the hearing was formally opened at 10 a. m. yesterday morning, no evidence was offered by either the gas companies or the commission. Stoddard M. Stevens, New York attorney for the Chase National Bank interests, explained that the preparation of data by the utilities had been delayed by the death of William H. Blood, jr., a valuation engineer, and the illness of Joseph I. Weller, realty expert.

Engineers of both the commission and the gas companies will hold informal conferences to compare figures, but no questions of policy will be determined prior to resumption of the hearing.

Previously it had been planned to hold formal conferences with the aim of reducing the number of controversial issues, but William McK. Clayton, chairman of the public utilities committee of the Federation of Citizens Associations, objected, and the plan was modified.

A printed report of hearings before the Senate District Committee on the bill to merge the Washington and Georgetown companies as released yesterday reveals some new figures inserted by People's Counsel Richmond B. Keech.

The testimony was that the actual authorized capitalization of the Washington company is $2,600,000, of which $1,500,000 has been paid in cash. From 1848 to 1932, approximately $25,000,000 has been paid in dividends, Mr. Keech said. The average annual rate of dividend on stock outstanding for the period from 1857 to 1932, inclusive, was 16.8 per cent, while the average rate of dividends on actual cash paid for stock was 29.3 per cent. In addition, the company's surplus is over $8,000,000.

Membership Roll Call Of Legion to Be Today

The annual membership roll call for the District department of the American Legion will be held today in the Transportation Building.

A seven-day drive for members will conclude with the muster call. A series of radio addresses featured the drive.

Dismissal May Be Granted; Appeals Lost by Landrum, Mostyn and Laflin.

With his conviction set aside by the District Court of Appeals yesterday, Robert J. Barrett, suspended detective sergeant, probably will learn today whether he will have to stand a new trial or be acquitted through dismissal of the accusation of beating George M. Baber. If the charge is dropped Barrett will seek reinstatement in the Police Department.

Dropping of the indictment is in the hands of United States Attorney Leo A. Rover, and his assistant, Julian Richards, who prosecuted Barrett. Neither of those officials had had time yesterday to study their future course in regard to a new trial.

Allegedly Struck Baber.

The charge against Barrett was that he struck Baber with his hands in effecting Baber's arrest shortly after Mrs. Lizzie Jaynes, cashier of the Garden T-Shoppe, near Eighteenth street and Columbia road, was fatally wounded in a hold-up. In reversing the action of a jury in District Supreme Court in finding Barrett guilty of a simple assault, the appellate court pointed out that Baber's arrest was in connection with the investigation of a murder and that the officer was entitled to use such force as was necessary under the circumstances.

Chief Justice Martin and Associate Justices Robb and Van Orsdel reversed the conviction while Justices Hitz and Groner dissented. Justice Groner cited for his dissent his belief that Barrett had a fair trial. However, he said, that "the injury sustained by Baber was trifling, and a moderate fine rather than imprisonment for a year in jail would have better met the ends of justice."

At the same time, the Appellate Court sustained convictions in two other so-called "third degree" cases involving policemen. The conviction of Vivian H. Landrum was affirmed as were those of James A. Mostyn and William R. Leflin.

Sentenced to Pay Fine.

Landrum was sentenced to pay a fine of $100 after he was found guilty of hitting a colored man, and Mostyn and Laflin were convicted of beating James Henry Harker in a cell at the old Sixth Precinct station. Both Mostyn and Laflin are under sentence to pay fines of $500 each and serve a year in jail. The story of Harker's beating appeared first exclusively in The Washington Post and led to an investigation by the Department of Justice.

In reversing the Barrett case, the higher court held that there were reversable errors committed in the course of the trial both as to excluding evidence by the defense and in disallowing requested instructions to the jurors. Attorneys E. Russell Kelly, Harry T. Whelan and W. Gwynn Gardiner represented Barrett.

Disbarred Lawyer Must Serve Term

Abner Siegel, disbarred lawyer, will have to serve a sentence of 18 months' imprisonment, Justice James M. Proctor, in District Supreme Court, ruled yesterday after withdrawing from Prohibition Officer Amos A. Steele a request for a report on the advisability of allowing Siegel to be placed on probation.

Convicted of attempting to bribe a guard at the District Jail, Siegel first appealed to the Court of Appeals and when his conviction was sustained there he went to the United States Supreme Court, which refused to grant him a hearing.

When the mandate from the Court of Appeals was sent to the District Supreme Court and Siegel was brought in to have sentence imposed, he asked for leniency on the grounds that his disbarment as a lawyer was enough of a hardship. No reason was given for ordering the sentence served before the probation report was made.

The eight-story and basement, brick and concrete apartments building at 2514 Fourteenth street northwest, formerly known as Clifton Manor, was sold at public auction yesterday for $70,000 to the M. A. Long Co., of Baltimore, holders of the first trust, and sole bidder. The sale was advertised by John J. Hamilton, of this city, and C. Ral... Leland, of Baltimore, trustees. T. W. Owen was the auctioneer.

The building was erected in 1929 by the Long company. Milburn & Heister, of this city, being its architects. Its current assessed valuation is $181,246, of which $21,246 represents land. Its owners have been the Clifton Manor Corporation and the 2514 Fourteenth Street Corporation. The building has a width of approximately 48 feet, a depth of 125 feet and contains 56 apartments.

TRAFFIC TOLL

TO DATE.

With the influx of many out-of-town motorists for the inauguration, traffic will become more congested and difficult to handle due to the fact that most of these drivers are not familiar with our traffic regulations. If an out-of-towner should happen to have a near-accident with you, don't lose your temper.

It is painful to the visitor, ignorant of the traffic laws, to have some home-town motorist bawl him out for an infraction he knew nothing about.

The accident figures are:

	1932	1933
Deaths	19	11
Injuries	589	531
Accidents	1,281	1,365
